York County Autoists Injured in Wreck.

Hampstead, Md., Oct. 21.—Four York county men returning from a visit to Camp Meade, Admiral, Md., were injured today at 7 p. m., when a Western Maryland railway passenger train struck and wrecked an automobile at the Hanover and Baltimore pike grade crossing, a quarter of a mile from the local station. The injured, who are in the Union Protestant infirmary, Baltimore, are: John Rauby, 20 years old, of Thomasville, fractured skull and bruises of the body. Condition serious. Luther Gross, 19 years old, near Thomasville, broken thigh and bruises of body. Samuel Stambaugh, Thomasville, 45 years old, bruises and cuts on the head. George Thomas, La Bot, bruises and cuts about face and head. The train which struck the machine was the one due here at 7 p. m., from Baltimore, and had just pulled out of the station, but had gained considerable speed. The automobile was going down grade and while the occupants saw the train approaching at a distance of 25 feet it was too late for Stambaugh, who was driving to stop. When struck the machine was driven 25 feet up the track and rolled over twice, pinning the four men beneath. Another man was thrown out and escaped with minor bruises. Samuel Stambaugh, is the son of Thomas Stambaugh; Luther Gross, of H. G. Gross, and George Thomas, of Mrs. Frank Eyster.

Wants Revenge.

His patriotism thoroughly aroused by the accounts of the sinking of the United States transport Antilles by a torpedo from a German submarine, Charles E. Carnes, 16 year-old son of William Carnes, of Hanover, asked to be excused from work on Saturday morning at the Hanover Shoe company's factory, where he is employed. He boarded a car for York, and upon arriving there went directly to the office of Sergeant Wall, recruiting officer, to plead to that official to be allowed to join the army, that he might do his share to avenge the lives of the some 60 men drowned when the ship sank. The young would-be recruit is of slight stature, weighing only 84 pounds. He is also nearly six inches under height. When enlistment was refused him, despite the consolation offered him by Sergeant Wall that he would soon be 18 and that until that time he would grow sufficiently to qualify for enlistment, the little patriot left the office in tears, replying that as soon as he was old enough he would "get them Germans all right."

Real Estate Sales.

Harry Sritzel has purchased a farm from F. A. Coulson, who in turn has purchased the Isaac Thomas farm in Latimore township.

P. C. Smith, Esq., of East Berlin, has exchanged his 140-acre farm near Bowdler to Chas. Emig for 4 houses and 3 building lots in Hanover.

The J. C. Brown property in Reading township was bought by his son, Hilard, at public sale on Saturday for $500. Mr. and Mrs. Brown will make their future home with their daughter, Mrs. W. Denton Myers in East Berlin.

Robt. Mehling has sold his property in Littlestown to the St. James Charge.

N. E. Orndorff has sold Holly Brook Stock Farm, near White Hall, to D. C. Shambrook, of Mt. Pleasant township. The farm contains 191 acres of land with large and substantial buildings. Terms private.

Franklin Rudisill, of Gettysburg, has purchased from Prof. J. Louis Sowens his residence and 4 acres of land close to that borough, for $4000.

Injured in Collision.

Leo A. Diehl and Gomer Sharpe, of Gettysburg met with an accident on Sunday afternoon when they were riding along the Greencastle road, near Marion, on a motorcycle. Their motor sideswiped an automobile, driven by George Deardorff, of Marion, and ran almost 100 feet before the riders fell to the ground. Diehl was the more seriously hurt and is now in the Chambersburg hospital, reported to be critically ill. His parents, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Diehl, were summoned Monday afternoon. The young man was badly hurt about the head and Monday afternoon was still unconscious. Sharpe escaped with a few minor bruises and an arm cut that eight stitches were required to close the wound. He was able to return to his home on Sunday evening. Deardorff said that the men were riding very rapidly when they sideswiped his machine.

Social and Dance.

A Social and Dance for the benefit of the immaculate Conception Church will be held in the Parochial Hall, North Peters street, on Saturday evening. Refreshments will be served.

George Boose and Ellsworth King, who have been employed in Gettysburg for some time, have returned to their respective homes at Five Points for the winter evening.

Roger Heimer, son of the Rev. P. E. Heimer, of Thurmont, a student at Gettysburg college, spent Saturday at the home of Mrs. Isaiah Diller, of Lincoln Way, East.

Miss Ellen Miller, of Carlisle street, one of the obliging operators in the local Bell Tel. Exchange, spent Sunday and Monday at Baltimore and Camp Meade.

Frank Smith and wife, of Hanover, spent the week-end with her parents J. S. A. Smith and wife South Orange street.

M. G. Colstock, wife and daughter, of Hanover street, and the former's mother, Mrs. Sarah Colstock, of near town, visited friends at Littlestown.

Miss Hermie Roth, and classmates, Miss Florence Edwards, of McConnellsburg, students at the S. N. S., spent the week-end at the home of the former's parents, Prothonator and Mrs. G. H. Roth, North Peters street.

Bugle Notes.

C. Russell Paxton, son of R. C. Paxton, of Gettysburg, who is with the Medical Corps stationed at Camp Lee, Petersburg, was recently made a hospital sergeant, and will soon take an exam for a lieutenancy.

Carl Hartman, of Hanover, has been made office clerk of Co. G at Camp Meade, and Edwin Kline, of Pennville has been promoted to first sergeant of Co. G.

Richard, 8-year-old son of J. W. Keffler, McSherrystown, has fully recovered from diphtheria.

Irvin D. Robinson, a Hanover boy at Camp Meade, has been appointed corporal.

Charles Leib, formerly of East Berlin, brother of Mrs. Geo. Fissel, that place, has been appointed a non-commissioned officer in the Medical corps. He is now stationed at Camp Sevier, S. C.

Luther C. Weissensale, a member of Co. 1, Telegraph Battalion Signal Corps, stationed at Monmouth Park Camp, N. J., spent several days with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Emory C. Weissensale, Hanover.

H. A. Smith, the Hanover horse-dealer, who was on a business trip West last week, spent a day with his son, Hoke Smith, and Harry W. Young, who are at the barracks in Columbus, Ohio. He found both young men enjoying army life.

John Dell, a former member of the Hanover K. of P. band, a son of Dennis Dell, now at Camp Meade, writes that he has been acting Drum Major of the 316th Regiment Band, and states that he now has an opportunity to become Top-Sergeant and Drum Major of the organization, which he will probably accept.

Lieut. Raymond Pearson, a dental surgeon in the U. S. Army, is now located at Houston, Texas, where he has charge of training 32 dentists for the U. S. service. He is a son of Mr. and Mrs. I. W. Pearson of York Springs.

Miss Beatrice Sterner, of Poplar street, received a letter on Friday from her brother, Sergt. Maurice Sterner, a member of Aero Squadron No. 61, stationed at San Antonio, Texas, in which he stated that he and Simon Stock, of Gettysburg, a brother of Lieut. Mark E. Stock, were to be sent to New York within the near future, and that after a short furlough, during which they would visit their homes they would leave for active service.

Robert J. Chronister, a member of the first contingent of draftees men from Abbottstown, stationed at Camp Meade, was exempted from army service on account of defective vision, and returned home on Thursday.

Bert Heagy, youngest son of William Heagy, of Orrtanna, who is stationed at Camp Oglethorpe, Ga., is home on a furlough.

The 4th Regiment stationed at Gettysburg camp have made all preparations to be ready for their removal to some other quarters during the present week. A camp in one of the Carolinas will most likely be their destination. The 7th Regiment will also be moved from Gettysburg in the near future.

38 Denied Exemption.

Thirty-eight more young men from Adams County have had their claims for exemption refused by the District Board. Of this number all asked freedom from military service on the ground of agricultural or industrial activities, the great majority asking exemption on the former grounds. Thirty-one young men, who passed the physical tests and asked no exemption, have been certified back from the District Board to the Local Board and are now ready for the next call to go to Camp Meade. In addition, seven colored men, Reuben Lyles, Walter Daniels, George S. Carter, Freeman Stanton, John S. Williams, Joseph A. Williams and Adrian Crampton all of Gettysburg, have been certified back to the board and will go to Camp Meade on Saturday, the date for the first movement of drafted negro troops to the cantonments. This brings the total of available men, and men already sent, to 206, leaving 35 yet to be secured to fill Adams County's quota.

Thus far, the Local Board has examined 1492 of the 2428 registered men, and in this number are many who did not ask exemption and whose names have not yet been returned, so that it is not felt that many more will have to be called before the final section of the contingent is secured. Included in the 31 physically fit men certified for the next contingent, and who do not ask exemption, are 19 who in some way or other were overlooked at Harrisburg, when the first list was sent back weeks ago, and before the first contingent left. Normally some or all of them would have been in that outfit but, thru the mistake, they have just that much more time at home before leaving. This mistake was thru no fault of the Adams County Board. The 69 most recently certified back and who, in all probability will go with the next white contingent are the following:

Official Call For 72 Men.

Thursday evening Sheriff H. J. Hartman, chairman of the Adams County Exemption Board, received the following telegram from Frank Sweeney, for the Adjutant General: "The next shipment of white men to Camp Meade will be 30 per cent of your quota. The shipment will commence the week beginning November 2. Please certify at once all the men you can to the District Board in order that there will be no falling down on the shipment. Official notice will be forwarded to you later. Please acknowledge receipt of this telegram." Thirty per cent of our quota amounts to 72 men. The board has certified to 69 men as ready for service. Three more remain to be secured to fill the 30 per cent.

District Deputy Grand Sachem H. J. Hahn, of Hanover, paid an official visit to Oniska Tribe No. 40 a. Est Berlin on Monday evening to install the officers for the ensuing term. An interesting meeting was held, one of the items of interest was the reading of the minutes of the first meeting of Oniska Tribe held in the church and schoolhouse, that place, in 1837. After the meeting a supper was served at the hotel.

Prof. Chas. J. Hemmig, former principal of the Abbottstown schools, was one of the draftees discharged from Camp Meade, on account of physical disability.

Purse and Contents Returned.

During his recent visit to Philadelphia and while attending the dedication of a new school building in that city, some sleek-fingered person, relieved L. H. Miller, of near Swift Run schoolhouse, of his pocket-book which contained $75.75, besides a number of valuable papers. A reward of $20 was offered for the return of the goods. The police made a raid on several suspicious characters, after Mr. Miller had returned home, and succeeded in regaining the cash and papers. The pocket-book and contents, with the exception of the reward, was returned to the owner a few days ago.

York County Autoists Injured in Wreck.

Hampstead, Md., Oct. 21.—Four York county men returning from a visit to Camp Meade, Admiral, Md., were injured today at 7 p. m., when a Western Maryland railway passenger train struck and wrecked an automobile at the Hanover and Baltimore pike grade crossing, a quarter of a mile from the local station. The injured, who are in the Union Protestant infirmary, Baltimore, are: John Rauby, 20 years old, of Thomasville, fractured skull and bruises of the body. Condition serious. Luther Gross, 19 years old, near Thomasville, broken thigh and bruises of body. Samuel Stambaugh, Thomasville, 45 years old, bruises and cuts on the head. George Thomas, La Bott, bruises and cuts about face and head. The train which struck the machine was the one due here at 7 p. m., from Baltimore, and had just pulled out of the station, but had gained considerable speed. The automobile was going down grade and while the occupants saw the train approaching at a distance of 25 feet it was too late for Stambaugh, who was driving to stop. When struck the machine was driven 25 feet up the track and rolled over twice, pinning the four men beneath. Another man was thrown out and escaped with minor bruises. Samuel Stambaugh, is the son of George Stambaugh; Luther Gross, of H. G. Gross, and George Thomas, of Mrs. Frank Eyster.

Wants Revenge.

His patriotism thoroughly aroused by the accounts of the sinking of the United States transport Antilles by a torpedo from a German submarine, Charles E. Carnes, 16 year-old son of William Carnes, of Hanover, asked to be excused from work on Saturday morning at the Hanover Shoe company's factory, where he is employed. He boarded a car for York, and upon arriving there went directly to the office of Sergeant Wall, recruiting officer, to plead to that official to be allowed to join the army, that he might do his share to avenge the lives of the some 60 men drowned when the ship sank. The young would-be recruit is of slight stature, weighing only 84 pounds. He is also nearly six inches under height. When enlistment was refused him, despite the consolation offered him by Sergeant Wall that he would soon be 18 and that until that time he would grow sufficiently to qualify for enlistment, the little patriot left the office in tears, replying that as soon as he was old enough he would "get them Germans all right."

Injured in Collision.

Leo A. Diehl and Gomer Sharpe, of Gettysburg met with an accident on Sunday afternoon when they were riding along the Greenacres road, near Marion, on a motorcycle. Their motor sideswiped an automobile, driven by George Deardorff, of Marion, and ran almost 100 feet before the riders fell to the ground. Diehl was the more seriously hurt and is now in the Chambersburg hospital, reported to be critically ill. His parents, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Diehl, were summoned Monday afternoon. The young man was badly hurt about the head and Monday afternoon was still unconscious. Sharpe escaped with a few minor bruises and an arm cut that eight stitches were required to close the wound. He was able to return to his home on Sunday evening. Deardorff said that the men were riding very rapidly when they sideswiped his machine.

Child Hit by Motorcycle.

Never Regained Senses.

William son of Mr. and Mrs. Claude H. Hartman, of Hanover, died at the Hanemann Hospital, Philadelphia, Thursday night at 9:30 o'clock, following an operation for the removal of a blood clot on the brain. The child who was 3 years of age, was knocked down and dragged by a reckless motorcyclist, on Sunday afternoon, on a road near Manchester, causing concussion of the brain and paralysis, from which he never regained consciousness. The identity of the man could not be learned. The child was struck in crossing the road, while his parents, who were taking an auto ride, had stopped to pick flowers. After remaining in an unconscious condition for several days, the child was taken to the hospital on Wednesday evening, in the hope that an operation might save his life, but the blood clot was embedded deep in the brain and could not be reached.

38 Denied Exemption.

Thirty-eight more young men from Adams County have had their claims for exemption refused by the District Board. Of this number all asked freedom from military service on the ground of agricultural or industrial activities, the great majority asking exemption on the former grounds. Thirty-one young men, who passed the physical tests and asked no exemption, have been certified back from the District Board to the Local Board and are now ready for the next call to go to Camp Meade. In addition, seven colored men, Huben Lyles, Walter Daniels, George S. Carter, Freeman Stanton, John S. Williams, Joseph A. Williams and Adrian Crampton all of Gettysburg, have been certified back to the board and will go to Camp Meade on Saturday, the date for the first movement of drafted negro troops to the cantonments. This brings the total of available men, and men already sent, to 206, leaving 35 yet to be secured to fill Adams County's quota.

Thus far, the Local Board has examined 1492 of the 2428 registered men, and in this number are many who did not ask exemption and whose names have not yet been returned, so that it is not felt that many more will have to be called before the final section of the contingent is secured. Included in the 31 physically fit men certified for the next contingent, and who do not ask exemption, are 19 who in some way or other were overlooked at Harrisburg when the first list was sent back weeks ago, and before the first contingent left. Normally some or all of them would have been in that outfit but, thru the mistake, they have just that much more time at home before leaving. This mistake was thru no fault of the Adams County Board. The 69 most recently certified back and who, in all probability will go with the next white contingent are the following:

Official Call For 72 Men.

Thursday evening Sheriff H. J. Hartman, chairman of the Adams County Exemption Board, received the following telegram from Frank Sweeney, for the Adjutant General: "The next shipment of white men to Camp Meade will be 30 per cent of your quota. The shipment will commence the week beginning November 2. Please certify at once all the men you can to the District Board in order that there will be no falling down on the shipment. Official notice will be forwarded to you later. Please acknowledge receipt of this telegram." Thirty per cent of our quota amounts to 72 men. The board has certified to 69 men as ready for service. Three more remain to be secured to fill the 30 per cent.

District Deputy Grand Sachem H. J. Hahn, of Hanover, paid an official visit to Oniska Tribe No. 40 at Fort Berlin on Monday evening to install the officers for the ensuing term. An interesting meeting was held, one of the items of interest was the reading of the minutes of the first meeting of Oniska Tribe held in the church and schoolhouse, that place, in 1837. After the meeting a supper was served at the hotel.

Prof. Chas. J. Hemmig, former principal of the Abbottstown schools, was one of the draftees discharged from Camp Meade, on account of physical disability.

Purse and Contents Returned.

During his recent visit to Philadelphia and while attending the dedication of a new school building in that city, some sleek-fingered person, relieved L. H. Miller, of near Swift Run schoolhouse, of his pocket-book which contained $75.73, besides a number of valuable papers. A reward of $20 was offered for the return of the goods. The police made a raid on several suspicious characters, after Mr. Miller had returned home, and succeeded in regaining the cash and papers. The pocket-book and contents, with the exception of the reward, was returned to the owner a few days ago.

Preparing For Long War Only Way to Hasten End.

"I have scanned the horizon intently," said David Lloyd George, the premier, "and can see no terms in sight which will lead to enduring peace."

"The only terms now possible would mean an armed truce ending in an even more frightful struggle."

The premier spoke at a mass meeting held in Albert Hall, in London.

Germany, he asserted, would make peace now only on terms which would enable her to benefit by the war. He asserted that would be encouragement to every buccaneering empire in the future to repeat the experiment.

The war was terrible in itself, but more terrible in the possibilities it revealed of new horrors on land and sea and in the air. It must be settled now, once for all, he declared.

If the war should be renewed after thirty years more of scientific application, it would mean the death of civilization. Brute force must be de-throned forever.

BROKEN DOWN IN HEALTH

Woman Tells How $5 Worth of Pinkham's Compound Made Her Well.

Lima, Ohio.—"I was all broken down in health from a displacement. One of my lady friends came to see me and she advised me to commence taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and to use Lydia E. Pinkham's Sanative Wash. I began taking your remedies and took $5.00 worth and in two months was a well woman after three doctors said I never would stand up straight again. I was a midwife for seven years and I recommended the Vegetable Compound to every woman to take before birth and afterwards, and they all got along so nicely that it surely is a godsend to suffering women. If women wish to write to me I will be delighted to answer them."

—Mrs. JENNIE MOYER, 342 E. North St., Lima, Ohio.

Women who suffer from displacements, weakness, irregularities, nervousness, backache, or bearing-down pains, need the tonic properties of the roots and herbs contained in Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Help to Save Nation's Food Supply

In this time of high cost of living, everybody should use all possible means to prevent waste and to help save food. No one means is more effective than a vigorous campaign to exterminate rats which destroy over two hundred million dollars worth of foodstuffs annually. Keep garbage in rat-proof cans, stop up their holes and shove all exterminate them with Stearns' Paste, which can be bought for a few cents at any store. A two ounce box will usually rid a house or bin of every rat. It destroys mice, cockroaches and waterbugs as well. Adv.

HERMIT SCULPTOR IS FOUND

Spends Time Modeling Little Masterpieces Which He Promptly Destroys Upon Completion.

There has been discovered at Cape Scott, one of the most solitary points in Vancouver island, by the chief engineer of the public works department of British Columbia, a sculptor who spends his time in modeling little masterpieces from lumps of clay and then destroying them, relates an exchange. He is A. F. Whitfield, and he calls himself a "prospector." Living entirely alone, he has for the past two years been carrying out lonely investigations of mineral claims in his neighborhood. His sculptor's tools are of the simplest kind, and it is his habit to work with the same piece of clay, which weighs scarcely five pounds, but with that he has modeled scores of objects.

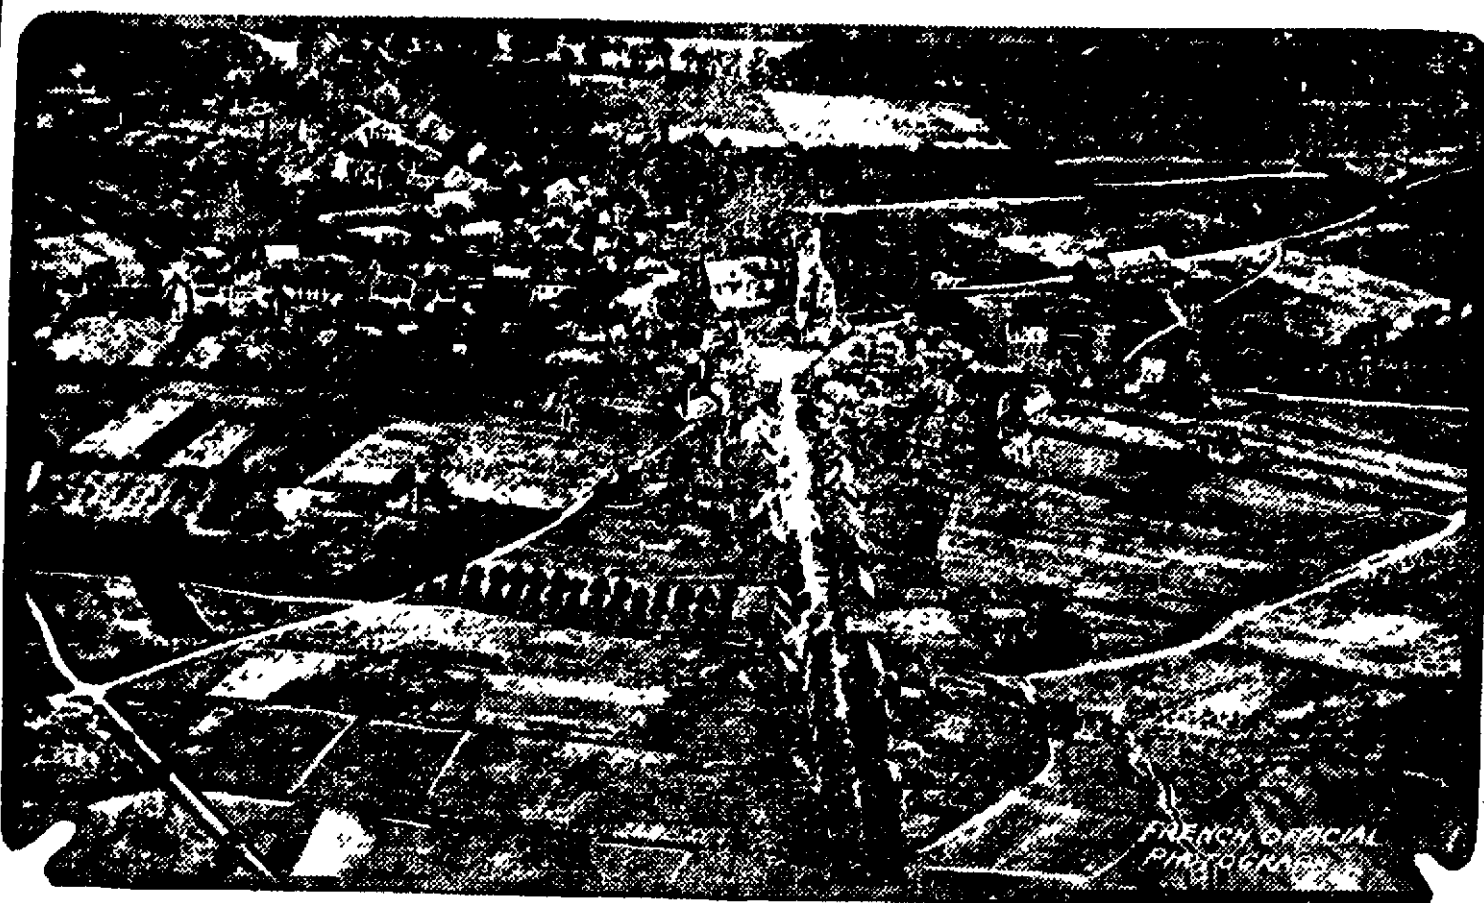

The government engineer found him just as he had completed a bust of the martyred British nurse, Edith Cavell. Mr. Whitfield was about to destroy the work in order that he might use the clay for a miniature statue of his son, who was recently killed. He was, however, persuaded to part with the bust, which is to be auctioned in aid of the Red Cross funds.

Tommy and the Medicos.

ONE FORTUNATE TOWN IN FLANDERS

This interesting and remarkable picture shows a view of a town in Flanders taken from a German airplane. Attention is called to the fact that it is one of the few towns in Flanders that has not been spoiled by the ravages of war. Its church, houses and green fields appear as they did before the conflict began.

During Fine Spells, With Occasional Airplane Raids To Be
Order of Day for Winter.

Paris.—Preparations for the fourth winter campaign on the western front are already in full swing. The summer campaign is over, and while both the English and French may be expected to make a few big drives, it is not anticipated that the beginning of winter, for military purposes, will see any radical alteration in the war map of France and Flanders.

Millions of sweaters, socks, paper suits, rubber Wellington boots, head wraps, mufflers, gloves and mittens are beginning to flow out from factory and home to the French poilus and British Tommies, hundreds of thousands of whom are facing their fourth winter period in the trenches. The comfort of the fighting man is so carefully studied now, after three years' experience, that nothing will be overlooked to make the coming harsh and bearable.

Practically all the way from Nieuport to Verdun the armies are in quarters totally different from those they occupied last winter; with the exception of one or two stretches—as around La Bassée and the Argonne—the French and British are stationed in captured German lines. Throughout the spring and summer the men have shown little inclination to dig, feeling that in view of the possibility of a further move forward, just enough shelter was good enough for the time being. Turning over earth has never appealed to any infantry in this war, but necessity is likely to force them to do a lot of it in order to provide themselves with snug and well-fortified trenches for the winter.

Little Change in Line.

Until next spring the western line is not likely to vary to any great extent, unless the totally unexpected happens. High winds, morning and evening mists, snow flurries and rain will limit the usefulness of the airplane and diminish the enormous help it gives nowadays in every big offensive. The machines are capable of performing wonders in any weather short of a hurricane, and there will be plenty of aerial activity, especially bombing raids, right through the worst months; but poor visibility will make co-operation with the gun batteries difficult, the more so as the Germans' latest type of "Archibald," or anti-aircraft gun, enforces respect and compels pilots to fly high.

In these circumstances big sweeping

U-BOATS NOW EMPLOY SMOKE SCREEN DEVICE

New York.—New German devices for aiding U-boat frightfulness are reported by passengers on an American liner just arrived in port from England.

One is the use of a smoke screen in which the submarine may conceal itself while attacking, escaping or submerging. The smoke screen has been used for months by battleships, destroyers and merchantmen. Its first use by a submarine was reported in the warnings of a U-boat off the Atlantic coast.

The other device is the use of mirrored periscopes. By coating them with silver the periscopes reflect the surrounding water and become invisible a couple of hundred yards away. It is believed this explains why survivors of several ships lately sunk saw no evidence of a submarine before or after the attack.

ing moves are not looked for, but rather a repetition on a more intensive scale of last winter's tactics. Short, sharp blows at selected points during fine spells, a continual battering on wide fronts by concentrated gun fire lengthening out to close-up rest stations, hundreds of airplanes swarming out to attack encampments, aviation sheds, munition dumps and lines of communication—these will be the regular order of the day throughout the winter. The enemy will be kept on the jump all the time, great gaps will be torn in his dwindling reserves and every possible step taken, first to prevent his ever again assuming the initiative upon the western front, and, secondly, to weaken him irreparably for the final knockout blow in 1918.

The part the American contingents will play in the winter's activity is the closest of all military secrets at this time. There is nothing that Hindenburg is burning to know so much as just what Pershing's plans are, and there is nothing that Pershing is more bent upon doing than keeping the slightest hint from Hindenburg.

Prudence the Motto.

But while no light can be shed at this stage upon the plans of the American commander in chief, I am able to give this assurance, that prudence is his motto, that he will never consent to play to the gallery as even the best generals are sometimes tempted to do. It is Haig's great merit that he bides his time and only strikes when he is able to strike in real earnest. Pershing resembles the British leader in this respect, and Europe has had enough war experience to know that these are the men who get the real results at the least possible cost in lives, and that though they have little to show on the war map, they are steadily, persistently, relentlessly wearing down the toughest foe that ever took the field.

What can be said, however, without giving any information to the enemy is that here in France Americans will co-operate throughout the winter in the gigantic task of preparing for the death blow. The details cannot be discussed, but the ground has been cleared for a colossal amount of work, embracing all branches that go to make for the efficient operation of a modern war machine, and a big share will be taken over during the bad weather by Americans, not only in the United States, but also in France. And this quite aside from the training of the fighting men and the education of the officers in the latest phases of warfare.

The result of all this activity will be that next spring the entente allies will possess a superlative war machine, gunned, manned and equipped in an unprecedentedly complete and magnificent manner. It was correct to say last winter that in 1917 the entente allies would develop a striking force which could not be exceeded in 1918 if the war continued. But at that time the intervention of the United States was only a dim possibility; the revolution in Russia and the collapse of her army were foreseen by nobody.

Tough Problem for Enemy.

As the situation stands at present, with the United States adding her mighty power to the common lot, and with a still unextinguished hope that the Muscovites may be brought back to their old aggressive fighting, men belonging to the inner circles of Europe affirm their belief that the entente allies will be able to confront Hindenburg with a far harsher problem in 1918 than they could have hoped to put up to him in 1917.

Next spring the British army will still be at top strength, for in the past summer Haig has put forth nothing like his maximum effort, and in consequence has suffered losses far below the figures anticipated at the British war office. When it was seen that the Russian army must drop out of all offensive plans this summer and that Germany would be able to develop an unexpected strength upon the western front, the Franco-British policy naturally became more conservative. The building up of the American armies has confirmed the wisdom of this course, which looks to the accumulation of an irresistible power before the last continuous, annihilating blows are delivered upon all possible fronts.

"TRUST US," SAY BRITISH

War Does Not Make Englishmen Understand American Colloquialisms Any Better Than Before.

Washington.—Evidently the war has not made the English understand American colloquialisms any better than heretofore—or some particular Englishmen are merely lacking a sense of humor. Anyway, an official Washington is smiling an official smile (which is the diplomatic way of concealing undue mirth) over a little incident that occurred in Hampton Roads the other day, when Secretary Baker was on an inspection trip. He crossed from one camp to another when a British cruiser, lying near by, signalled:

"Who is that going ashore flying an official flag?"

"The secretary of war," was the answer.

"Thank you," said the Britisher. "Don't mention it," replied our courteous bluejackets.

That ended it until one of our sailors saw the British wig-wagging furiously. He read the signal.

"Trust us," the British were saying, "we'll never mention it to a soul."

GERMAN CHANCELLOR'S SON A FARM LABORER

Berlin.—Willy Michaelis, the youngest son of the new German chancellor, is working as a common laborer on a large farm in Langmell, near Gruenberg, in Silesia. The young man is a student of one of the Berlin high schools. When the summer vacation began in July he offered his services for the harvest with thousands of other pupils, and was sent to Silesia, where he works hard every day from four o'clock in the morning until eight o'clock at night. After the harvest he will, of course, return to school.

ON THE FUNNY SIDE

FRENZIED FINANCE.

Young DeSmart—Say, do you want to make $10,000 in a few minutes?
Old Gotrox—Sure!
Young DeSmart—I understand you intend to give your only daughter $100,000 as a marriage portion.
Old Gotrox—Yes, that's a fact. But what has that got to do with the $10,000?
Young DeSmart—Well, I'm willing to marry her for $90,000. See?

Old Method Revived.

"What do you suppose will be the next reform to ship on the educational crusade?"
"I wouldn't be surprised if it were a spanker boom."

Anything but That.

Mrs. Fussbody—If I don't get a letter from you every day I'll feel so lonely I'll come right back home.
Hubby—Never fear; I'll write twice a day.

A Bad Way.

"He's in a bad way."
"Broke, eh?"
"Worse than that. He's down to the point where nobody will lend him money any more."

NOTHING NEW.

"The practice of medicine has certainly changed. When I was young, the doctors used to bleed their patients."
"Huh! I don't see that they've changed much in that respect."

The Invariable Assertion.
Every man who tries to wake a disposition strappy declares he does it all to make his fellow mortals happy.

Its Advantage.
"How can you keep up the pretense that your crabbing is a profitable industry?"
"Well, any way you look at it it is a not gain."

Its Class.
"The minister says his parrot is so well trained that it joins in the family prayers."
"Well, that's the first time I ever heard a parrot was a bird of pray."

Natural History.
Freddie—It's always in damp places where mushrooms grow, isn't it, papa?
Papa—Yes, my boy.
Freddie—Is that the reason they look like umbrella's, papa.

Described.
"Pa, what is luck?"
"Luck is what the anti-preparedness people think we should depend on to keep us out of trouble."

A Problem.
"Economy is the watchword of the hour. Everything must be used. Nothing must go to the waste heap."
"But what are we going to do with our kinks?"

The Beginning.
"How did you happen to become a lightning change artist?"
"I got started at the game by switching my winter flannels on and off."

The Right Place.
"Do you know I have specks before my eyes."
"Well, where else would you want to wear 'em?"

In Doubt.
"I understand she's taken up knitting?"
"Yes."
"What is she making?"
"That we can't tell. You see, even she can't make it out just yet whether it's going to be a sweater or a pair of socks."

There'd Be None Left.
Author—I have put a good deal of my own life into this story.
Editor—I wish you had put all of it into it.

Back Lame and Achy?

There's little peace when your kidneys are weak and while at first there may be nothing more serious than dull backache, sharp, stabbing pains, headaches, dizzy spells and kidney irregularities, you must act quickly to avoid the more serious trouble, dropsy, gravel, heart disease, Bright's disease. Use Doan's Kidney Pills, the remedy that is so warmly recommended everywhere by grateful users.

A Virginia Case

C. L. Cook, 274 Oak St., Covington, Va., says: "A bad case of diphtheria left my kidneys very weak. The first symptom was a backache that kept growing worse and then the kidney secretions began to pass too frequently and were painful. My limbs swelled nearly twice their normal size and though doctors treated me, I kept getting worse until I gave up hope of recovery. Finally I used Doan's Kidney Pills and they cured me. During the past seven years, I have had no further trouble."

An Exaggeration.

"Crossing the ocean nowadays is a serious proposition," said J. P. Morgan, who crosses the ocean continually, "but it isn't, after all, as terrible a thing as certain exaggerations would make you believe."

"Anything to declare?" a customs officer said to a man who had just crossed the ocean.

"Yes," said the man. "I declare that I'm one mass of black and blue bruises from jolting and bumping for six days over a regular corduroy road of German mines and submarines."

GREAT PRAISE FOR GOOD MEDICINE

Eight years ago we commenced selling Dr. Kilmer's Swamp Root, and during this time it has found many friends among our customers who speak in the highest terms regarding the benefits obtained from the use of Swamp Root. We have never heard a single criticism.

ADAM SPRUNG FIRST JOKE

Asked Eve If She Expected an Ichthyosaurus, When She Objected to Spider on Rose.

We believe that in the Garden of Eden, Adam gave Eve a rose in exchange for a kiss. And she shuddered and said, "Ugh! There's a spider on the rose!" And he answered, "Well, what do you expect for one stingy little kiss—an ichthyosaurus?"

We believe that to be the oldest joke in the world—older than the goat, the mother-in-law, or any that are supposed to be included in the Original Seven. In varying forms one finds it in the Talmud, in Plautus, in Aesop, in Rabelais, in Joe Miller, in all the almanacs and comic papers.

When we were a boy, it was told in a minstrel show, thus: A man buys a suit of clothes at a second-hand store. He comes back and complains that the coat is inhabited by unpleasant insects. And the dealer says, "Well, what do you expect for $5—humming birds?"

Vaudeville knows it in this form: Tenant—"Look here, you'll have to make some repairs in this house. The cellar is full of water!" Landlord—"Well, what do you expect for $15 a month—champagne?"

And just last week we ran across our old friend again in a weekly comic paper. This time a passenger on a street car calls down the conductor for not calling the names of the streets distinctly. And the conductor replies, "Well, what do you expect for $14 a week—a tenor solo?"

Lastly—a few days ago, we ran a version of the old thing in this column. We cut its hair, trimmed its whiskers, and fitted it with a new suit, but we could not disguise it completely. When you run across it in any of its costumes, send us a clipping, will you? We are making a collection of that joke.

Where He Put Last Employer.
Bilton (engaging new chauffeur)—And have you any references from your last employer?

Applicant—No, sir; but I can get some in about a week.

Bilton—Why the delay?

Applicant—He's in the hospital, sir.

THURSDAY, MARCH 16, 1916.

Fire completely destroyed the summer cottage of Mrs. W. H. Taylor, Norfolk, at Blue Ridge Summit, together with its contents on Tuesday morning. Two weeks ago Mr. Taylor died at his home. The cottage, a frame structure of about 10 rooms, caught fire in some manner, presumably from the interior, and was burned to the ground.

The gross earnings of the Harrisburg Railway Company were reduced $78,992—90 per cent of which was due to unregulated jitney competition, according to the annual report to the board of directors submitted to the stockholders at the annual meeting held at the offices of the company in Harrisburg, Tuesday.

Together with 12 other nearby counties Adams county is placed in the second district of the bureau of township highways. Harrisburg is to be the head quarters for this district, which has for its engineer George L. Sollenberger. The formation of these districts becomes effective April 1st.

A verdict in favor of Dr. W. E. Bacon, York, was rendered by a jury in common pleas court, Tuesday, in a suit brought by Edgar F. Byers against the physician to recover damages for injuries caused by the failure to remove from the patient's abdomen a drainage tube after an operation at the York hospital. The defendant declared that it was not his duty to examine a patient after an operation except when requested to do so by the interne or nurse. He also declared that it was not his duty to remove the tube after the operation but that that work fell to the nurses and the house physician. Byers left the hospital some time later, knowing nothing of the tube being in the wound. When the wound did not heal, an examination was made, disclosing the presence of the tube.

Captain Rudolph Smyser, of troop H., United States Cavalry, formerly of York, and his wife and children, were in the thick of the attack on Columbus, New Mexico, by Villa and his bandit army Thursday morning, and all had narrow escapes from the bandits. The Smyser home was surrounded on three sides by bandits, but not a shot was fired. Captain Smyser managed to get his family into a barn at the rear of the house, just as the bandits broke into the house and looted it. They were preparing to set fire to the barn when the American troops opened fire. The bandits fled and the Smyers escaped harm by a narrow margin. Captain Smyser joined his troops later. He is a son of Mrs. Lewis E. Smyser, of York.

Some persons have taken advantage of the tie-up in freight on the W. M. Railway to lay in a supply of wheat, whether to be used for grinding into flour or for sale to a warehouse it is not known. The W. M. has not been able to get all its cars to Baltimore. Recently about 200 cars full of grain were on the four long switches at Pen Mar park. It has been discovered that some fellows have been robbing these cars of wheat. Their method has been very simple. They bored holes in the bottom of the cars with augers and gathered the grain that flowed out through these in bags beneath the car. A wagon was used to haul away the plunder. Tracks near the cars show this but they could not be followed very far. It is not known how much grain was stolen nor is it known from which direction the thieves came or where they went.

Some person or persons entered the coal yard of the White Pine Sanatorium at Mont Alto park early Friday morning and completely demolished three coal wagons stored there. The vandals not only chopped up the wagon beds but the spokes out of the wheels, leaving nothing but piles of kindling wood and metal scrap. It seems that there is quite a spirit of jealousy and vindictiveness abroad in that section against those who are favored with the hauling. Anonymous notes have been received threatening trouble to the favored draymen.

Bert Henninger, elder son of Clay Henninger, the head of baseball in Chambersburg, and exponent of the game in the Cumberland Valley for 25 years, died in Mt. Hope Sanatorium, Baltimore, Friday night after cutting his throat with a piece of glass he broke out of a picture frame. He was aged 36 years, and until 5 days ago seemed in perfect health. Clay, a brother, but a few years younger, hanged himself a year ago this week. Both Bert Henninger and his brother were baseball players.

Hurled a distance of 10 feet by a fall of brick in the kiln of the Thomasville Stone and Lime company, Wednesday afternoon, B. Hauser a bricklayer, of York, sustained, 2 broken ribs on his left side. His head also was lacerated and his face bruised. At the time of the accident Hauser was making repairs to the kiln.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

Facts Versus Fallacies

FACT is a real state of things. FALLACY is an apparently genuine but really illogical statement or argument.

HERE is an experience of a State recently enrolled under Prohibition. The quotation is from a Pennsylvania paper:

"WEST VIRGINIA is a 'dry' State. It is also, so far as paying its running expenses goes, a bankrupt State. On the first of April the State officials were compelled to personally put up money to purchase postage stamps, as Uncle Sam does no business on 'tick,' and the State had no money in its treasury; but the stamps were urgently necessary to transact public business. Hundreds of school teachers received their monthly pay warrants on the same date, and were compelled to take them to banks where they were discounted at six per cent. Over one hundred and fifty persons in the State's employ received no salary for the month of March, while the Auditor General was compelled to become personally responsible to banks for the monthly pay of heads of various State institutions."

"THERE is but one reason ascribed for this lack of funds. The workings of the prohibition law, which went into effect some time since, has deprived the State of $600,000 annual income formerly received from liquor licenses, and as there is no other source from which to make up the deficiency the State treasury is empty. The West Virginia officials are in a quandary."

HERE is another example from a Prohibition State. The extract is from the New York American:

"ALABAMA may be in the market for a loan of from $1,000,000 to $2,000,000 before the end of the year, the State Treasurer announces. The deficit, which is growing at the rate of $100,000 a month, is now said to total $1,000,000."

PROHIBITION is rapidly depleting State treasuries—and seems to be doing little else. For it is a FALLACY to suppose Prohibition prohibits—it is FACT that all Prohibition does is to prevent the regulated and legalized sale of liquor.

THE brewer and distiller are thereby deprived of their lawful market, which is usurped by the moonshiner and the bootlegger. And the State is deprived of its lawful revenue—for the moonshiner who makes, and the bootlegger who sells, pay no revenue tax either to State or to nation.

SO THE only persons who benefit from the sale of liquor, in Prohibition States, are those who break the law!

Fully Ready or Spring With A Greater Stock Than Ever Before Mostly at Old Prices.

There is a Bonafide Reason for the high prices ruling today in all commodities. You have heard all about it, but it has not yet touched your purse in the buying of Dry Goods if you came here for them, for the reason that we tried to forestall price advances by heavy orders whenever old prices advanced, or near it, could be had. But we are now at the limit, as to quantity of stock we carry and getting everything on new orders, except at present day prices, or what the wholesaler calls "At Value." We advise you, take advantage of our present prices on stock contracted for at, or near the old prices.

Women's and Misses' SPRING DRESSES of Silks, Serges, Poplins—or combination of two materials

If you have seen or read of any Special Style Creation for Spring, or even if it is a product of your own imagination, the probability is that, in part at least, you will see it embodied in our New Spring Dresses. Some are of all Taffeta Messaline with Georgette Crepe, or in combination with Serge. Others are of all Serge with Silk or Braid bands, &c.—in fact cannot describe any one style as in most cases there is only one of a style.

Price begins at $7.75 to $20.00

Ladies' & Misses' Tailored Suits

Between $9.75 and 27.50 there are dozens of styles in Serges, Poplins, Garbardines, Taffeta Silks—all smart and new and unusually attractive. The "Wooltex" line is represented by its best styles. Colors are Navy, Roseda, Black, Brown, Burgundy, Tan, &c.—also various Checks. Coats are mostly plain backs with blouse fronts and rippled over hips—or semi-fitted back—full skirts. Some of the coats have leather collar and cuffs and belt trimmings—some with a touch of white on collars—others braid and Taffeta silk bands, etc.

Special—Cut and Style—for the woman who is somewhat out of proportion in size, but who wants a suit away from the plainness of those usually shown in odd sizes can be suited with us this season—at a medium price.

For the younger and petite Miss are Norfolk styles, or ideas in coats—with skirts pleated to conform.

No two Suits alike—never a prettier or more varied assortment.

Guaranteed Finger Tips

An order placed last August for Spring delivery gives us complete of 50c, 75c and $1 gloves in exactly same grades as we have had before, with the addition of White Points on Black and Black Points on White, and colors such as Tan and Grey—at 50 cts.

In 16 Button Musquetaire lengths—we are showing White, Blacks and Tan, at $1.00.

The scarcity of Kid Gloves and the consequent higher prices asked by most stores has made Silk Fabric gloves very greatly in demand and we consider ourselves fortunate in having secured this most excellent Silk Glove at no advance in price.

Lisle and other Fabric Gloves—for heavier wear—35c and 50c—in same qualities as before.

In Kid Gloves

The F. Centemeri & Co. Lines.

We are pleased to be able to say that they have taken excellent care of us in the matter of keeping us stocked in sizes and kinds in the same former qualities and—except in one instance—we have made no advance in price. A full and complete stock of colors and sizes for Easter now—but owing to the great demand for this period, and scarcity in Importers' hands, we suggest early purchase for fear of disappointment at last moment.

Umbrellas—Under Value

Last fall we bought an unusual quantity of Umbrellas under the advance price "squeeze." We know if we tried to buy the same kinds now we would have to pay more for them. Except for three small factories in the United States all Umbrella frames were made in the War Country, and it is represented to us that these "Small Factories" have for some time been operating on Munitions, and up goes the price on handles and frames. All cloths, especially dyed cloths, are much higher. We are offering this lot at exactly the same prices that we asked for same grades a year ago. Ladies' and Men's sizes and handles, and because of the great number of our stock prices are even less for some grades than formerly.

Prices are $1.00, $1.25, $1.50, to $3.00.

WAS IN HUNDRED SERIOUS MISHAPS

New York Daredevil Is Now Retired Member of the Police Force.

RECORD DEATH DODGER

During Last Sixteen Months of Service He Was in Five Hospitals—Won Fame as Bicycle Rider.

New York.—Charles M. Murphy, retired member of the New York police force, figured in five accidents during the last 16 months he was on duty, any one of which would have been sufficient to kill an ordinary man. He rounded out his active career as a patrolman while on his way to the office to turn in his badge by falling and fracturing his knee cap. Now he is a bit curious to know just why all these misfortunes have befallen him and why he is alive to recount his experiences.

Murphy is little known as a policeman. In the days of his youth, 20 or more years ago, he was the speediest bicycle rider in the world.

First Mishap at Three Years.

When Murphy was three years of age a fire broke out in the Murphy home in Brooklyn. In a panicky rush to call for assistance, his mother dropped Charles in the flames. He was scorched, no more. At ten he was rendered unconscious while coasting. When Murphy was eleven the family horse was killed in a runaway and the family scattered about the street. Charles suffered only scratches. At fourteen he crashed into an iron post while running from the "cops" and was rendered unconscious. When he was eighteen Murphy was driving a spirited horse that ran away at the sound of a fire alarm. He was dragged 50 yards and was shaken up.

During that same year an engineer was stunned by a stone thrown by a boy. Murphy raced the engine, mounted the cabin and shut off the throttle. When twenty he came near drowning while leaving his ship in the Brazilian harbor of Bahia. His twenty-fifth year opened with a mishap on January 1 when he and a motorman were picked from a street car wreck and Murphy was believed crippled for life.

Racer and New York Policeman.

When twenty-seven, Murphy was rendered unconscious while racing at Manhattan Beach. Next morning the doctor found him working out on the track. In 1890, when he was twenty-nine years of age, he won the cognomen "Mile-a-Minute" Murphy. In 1901 he was appointed a member of the New York police force. The next year Murphy and his brother built a tandem bicycle driven by a steam engine and hoped to speed three miles a minute. The engine broke loose, fell on Charles, and came near killing him. In 1903 he started a fight with 10 gangsters and would have been killed but for the arrival of reserves. In 1905, while chasing a thief, he jumped down a 20-foot embankment, suffering a sprained ankle.

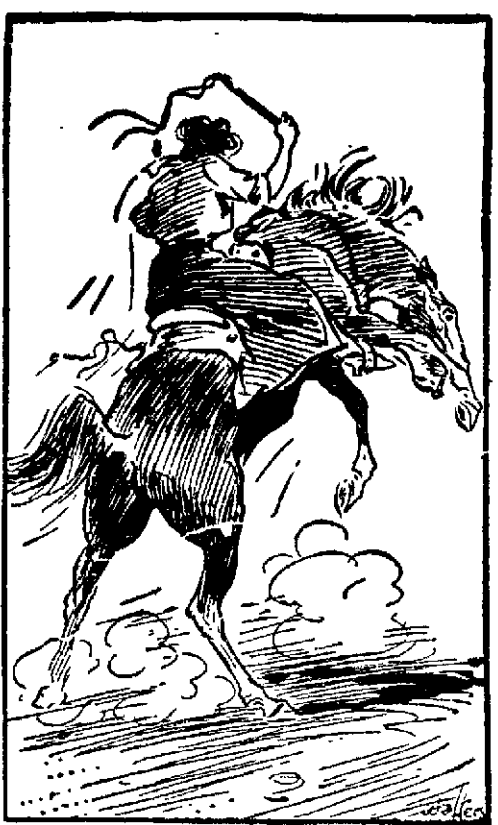

In 1906 he formed the bottom link in a 20-foot human chain which rescued a man who had fallen in a well and was neck deep in quicksand. In 1913 he arrested 12 foreigners at a clip and stopped a runaway by choking a bridleless horse into submission. Things were dull for Murphy until September 19, 1915, when he was appointed motorcycle policeman. He was run over by an automobile that year. Later a towing line became entangled with his wheel and he was dragged 50 feet. The following spring a fork on his wheel broke and he suffered internal injuries. In September, 1916, he was thrown 80 feet on Manhattan bridge, and finally on January 27, 1917, when he was slated for retirement, he fell and fractured his knee cap. Murphy, however, still retains the characteristics of his youth, and gives he is good for many more stunts.

RODE HORSE, PAID FOR IT WITH LIFE

Champion Woman Rough Rider of World Dies as Result of Daring Feat.

Denver, Colo.—"Well, I rode her!" were the dying words of Mrs. Ed. Wright, champion woman rough rider of the world, when she was picked up at Union park here, after being thrown by a wild horse during a field day celebration for the benefit of Colorado National Guardsmen, encamped here.

Mrs. Wright died before she reached a hospital. Too proud to admit before a crowded grandstand that she dared not ride the bucking broncho, the woman mounted Gentle Annie amid great cheering by the cowboys who had taunted her.

Succeeded in Subduing Her Mount.

when she first declined to ride the animal. Mrs. Wright succeeded in subduing her mount from its furious bucking, but Gentle Annie started on a wild gallop toward a corral. Before the cowboys, who immediately started in pursuit, could catch the fleeing horse, the animal plunged through a wire fence, stumbled and slid along the ground with Mrs. Wright still in the saddle. A part of the saddle caught in the fence and the broncho raised its heels in the air, and then fell to the ground again. As it rose it stepped on the woman's face, crushing her skull.

FAT MAN—BAD; FAT CONDUCTOR—WORSE

Atlanta, Ga.—Fat conductors are taboo with the local street car company as the result of suits filed by Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Shields against the company because a conductor was too fat. The suits allege that the conductor on a car on which Mrs. Shields rode home was so big that she could not get by him, and in trying to squeeze through she fell to the street and was seriously injured.

HAD UNIQUE LOVE SYSTEM

Poet, Author and Soldier of Cleveland Won Many Women by Correspondence.

Cleveland.—John Francis Beckwith, poet, author and soldier, was arrested recently because of his successful method of making love by mail. He was accused of winning the hearts of women and then procuring money from them.

Beckwith had a complete system of love correspondence, beginning with a friendly letter referring lightly to love. One by one the letters increased in the intensity of their love expressions. In masterful English Beckwith finished up the mail campaign with such fervor that "they all fell for it."

When arrested, Beckwith had the names of 75 women in towns and cities throughout the country. He kept a ledger telling how far the correspondence had advanced in each case. The replies from some women made it evident that the time was ripe for procuring the "loan."

Beckwith served as an English officers through the Boer war. He is a college graduate, holding two degrees. He was born in Norway, his father having been a former chief justice of the Norwegian Supreme court.

"I hate women," said Beckwith, when arrested.

Fingers Betray Him.

Eldora, Ia.—Jeff Freed, wanted on a forgery charge, who worked in the Excelsior restaurant here last winter, was caught by a private detective and identified through finger prints on a soup plate in the restaurant. The proprietor explains the durability of the finger prints by saying that the plates were used only for oyster soup, not served in summer.

Snake in Dinner Pail Causes Suit.

Prospects Excellent.

A friend dropped in to say hello the other day—he had been in the Blue Ridge region for a few weeks. He brought this story:

A young native, a widower of a year, called at the shack of the father of a numerous family, and after beating about the bush for a while, asked the parent for his daughter's hand.

"So ye want to get hitched with Sal?" said the old man. "I dunno about it. Yer fust wife didn't last ye long. What are yer prospects?"

"Fine!" asserted the suitor. "All the wimmen what sent their washin' to my fust wife has promised to do the same by her successor, whoever she mout be. Oh, we'll git erlong all right!"

Wheat is much higher but her fertile farm land just as cheap, and in the provinces of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta

160 Acre Homesteads Are Actually Free to Settlers and Other Land Sold at from $15 to $20 per Acre. The great demand for Canadian Wheat will keep up the price. Where a farmer can get near $2 for wheat and raise 20 to 45 bushels to the acre he is bound to make money. That's what you can expect in Western Canada. Wonderful yields also of Oats, Barley and Flax. Mixed Farming in Western Canada is fully as profitable an industry as grain raising.

A Letter From Washington

The Food Administrator Writes Us:

"The use of baking powder breads made of corn and other coarse flours instead of patent wheat flour is recommended by the Conservation Division of the Food Administration. The wheat needed for export is thus conserved, and at the same time healthful food for our own people is provided. The circulation of recipes providing for these uses would be of assistance in carrying out our plans."

The following recipes for Corn Bread and Rye Rolls save wheat flour and make attractive and wholesome food for every day when made with

ROYAL BAKING POWDER

CORN BREAD

1 1/2 cups corn meal
1/2 cup flour
1 level teaspoon Royal Baking Powder
1 tablespoon sugar
1/2 teaspoon salt
1 1/2 cups milk
1 tablespoon shortening

Mix thoroughly dry ingredients; add milk and melted shortening; beat well; pour into well greased pan and bake in hot oven about 25 minutes.

Our red, white and blue booklet "Best War Time Recipes" containing additional similar recipes sent free on request. Address Royal Baking Powder Company, Dept. W, 135 William Street, New York.

RYE ROLLS

2 cups rye flour
1/2 teaspoon salt
1 level teaspoon Royal Baking Powder
1/2 cup milk
1 tablespoon shortening

Sift dry ingredients together; add milk and melted shortening. Knead on floured board; shape into rolls. Put into greased pans and allow to stand in warm place 20 to 25 minutes. Bake in moderate oven 25 to 30 minutes.

Help to Save Nation's Food Supply

In this time of high cost of living, everybody should use all possible means to prevent waste and to help save food. No one means can be more effective than a vigorous campaign to exterminate rats which destroy over two hundred million dollars worth of foodstuffs annually. Keep garbage in rat-proof cans, stop up their holes, and above all exterminate them with Searns' Paste, which can be bought for a few cents at any store. A two ounce box will usually rid a house or barn of every rat. It destroys mice, cockroaches and waterbugs as well. Adv.

HERMIT SCULPTOR IS FOUND

Spends Time Modeling Little Masterpieces Which He Promptly Destroys Upon Completion.

There has been discovered at Cape Scott, one of the most solitary points in Vancouver Island, by the chief engineer of the public works department of British Columbia, a sculptor who spends his time in modeling little masterpieces from lumps of clay and then destroying them, relates an exchange. He is A. F. Whittier, and he calls himself a "prospector." Living entirely alone, he has for the past two years been carrying out lonely investigations of mineral claims in his neighborhood. His sculptor's tools are of the simplest kind, and it is his habit to work with the same piece of clay, which weighs scarcely five pounds, but with that he has modeled scores of objects.

The government engineer found him just as he had completed a bust of the martyred British nurse, Edith Cavell. Mr. Whittier was about to destroy the work in order that he might use the clay for a miniature statue of his son, who was recently killed. He was, however, persuaded to part with the bust, which is to be auctioned in aid of the Red Cross funds.

ONE FORTUNATE TOWN IN FLANDERS

This interesting and remarkable picture shows a view of a town in Flanders taken from a German airplane. Attention is called to the fact that it is one of the few towns in Flanders that has not been spoiled by the ravages of war. Its church, houses and green fields appear as they did before the conflict began.

ALLIES PREPARING FOR THE WINTER

Warm Clothing Being Rushed From Factory and Home to Men in Trenches.

BIG MOVES NOT LOOKED FOR

Short, Sharp Blows at Selected Points
During Fine Spells, With Occasional Airplane Raids To Be
Order of Day for Winter.

Paris.—Preparations for the fourth winter campaign on the western front are already in full swing. The summer campaign is over, and while both the English and French may be expected to make a few big drives, it is not anticipated that the beginning of winter, for military purposes, will see any radical alteration in the war map of France and Flanders.

Millions of sweaters, socks, paper suits, rubber Wellington boots, head wraps, mufflers, gloves and mittens are beginning to flow out from factory and home to the French poilus and British Tommies, hundreds of thousands of whom are facing their fourth winter period in the trenches. The comfort of the fighting man is so carefully studied now, after three years' experience, that nothing will be overlooked to make the coming harsh trial bearable.

Practically all the way from Newport to Verdun the armies are in quarters totally different from those they occupied last winter; with the exception of one or two stretches—as around La Bassée and the Argonne—the French and British are stationed in captured German lines. Throughout the spring and summer the men have shown little inclination to dig, feeling that in view of the possibility of a further move forward, just enough shelter was good enough for the time being. Turning over earth has never appealed to any infantry in this war, but necessity is likely to force them to do a lot of it in order to provide themselves with snug and well-drained trenches for the winter.

Little Change in Line.

Until next spring the western line is not likely to vary to any great extent, unless the totally unexpected happens. High winds, morning and evening mists, snow flurries and rain will limit the usefulness of the airplane and diminish the enormous help it gives nowadays in every big offensive. The machines are capable of performing wonders in any weather short of a hurricane, and there will be plenty of aerial activity, especially bombing raids, right through the worst months; but poor visibility will make co-operation with the gun batteries difficult, the more so as the Germans' latest type of "Archibald," or anti-aircraft gun, enforces respect and compels pilots to fly high.

In these circumstances big sweep-

U-BOATS NOW EMPLOY SMOKE SCREEN DEVICE

New York.—New German devices for aiding U-boat frightfulness are reported by passengers on an American liner just arrived in port from England.

One is the use of a smoke screen in which the submarine may conceal itself while attacking, escaping or submerging. The smoke screen has been used for months by battleships, destroyers and merchantmen. Its first use by a submarine was reported in the warnings of a U-boat off the Atlantic coast.

The other device is the use of mirrored periscopes. By coating them with silver the periscopes reflect the surrounding water and become invisible a couple of hundred yards away. It is believed this explains why survivors of several ships lately sunk saw no evidence of a submarine before or after the attack.

ing moves are not looked for, but rather a repetition on a more intensive scale of last winter's tactics. Short, sharp blows at selected points during fine spells, a continual battering on wide fronts by concentrated gun fire lengthening out to close-up rest stations, hundreds of airplanes swarming out to attack encampments, aviation sheds, munition dumps and lines of communication—these will be the regular order of the day throughout the winter. The enemy will be kept on the jump all the time, great gaps will be torn in his dwindling reserves and every possible step taken, first to prevent his ever again assuming the initiative upon the western front, and secondly, to weaken him irreparably for the final knockout blow in 1918.

The part the American contingents will play in the winter's activity is the closest of all military secrets at this time. There is nothing that Hindenburg is burning to know so much as just what Pershing's plans are, and there is nothing that Pershing is more bent upon doing than keeping the slightest hint from Hindenburg.

Prudence the Motto.

But while no light can be shed at this stage upon the plans of the American commander in chief, I am able to give this assurance, that prudence is his motto, that he will never consent to play to the gallery as even the best generals are sometimes tempted to do. It is Haig's great merit that he bides his time and only strikes when he is able to strike in real earnest. Pershing resembles the British leader in this respect, and Europe has had enough war experience to know that these are the men who get the real results at the least possible cost in lives, and that though they have little to show on the war map, they are steadily, persistently, relentlessly wearing down the toughest foe that ever took the field.

What can be said, however, without giving any information to the enemy is that here in France Americans will co-operate throughout the winter in the gigantic task of preparing for the death blow. The details cannot be discussed, but the ground has been cleared for a colossal amount of work, embracing all branches that go to make for the efficient operation of a modern war machine, and a big share will be taken over during the bad weather by Americans, not only in the United States, but also in France. And this quite aside from the training of the fighting men and the education of the officers in the latest phases of warfare.

The result of all this activity will be that next spring the entente allies will possess a superlative war machine, gunned, manned and equipped in an unprecedentedly complete and magnificent manner. It was correct to say last winter that in 1917 the entente allies would develop a striking force which could not be exceeded in 1918 if the war continued. But at that time the intervention of the United States was only a dim possibility; the revolution in Russia and the collapse of her army were foreseen by nobody.

Tough Problem for Enemy.

As the situation stands at present, with the United States adding her mighty power to the common lot, and with a still unextinguished hope that the Muscovites may be brought back to their old aggressive fighting, men belonging to the inner circles of Europe affirm their belief that the entente allies will be able to confront Hindenburg with a far harsher problem in 1918 than they could have hoped to put up to him in 1917.

Next spring the British army will still be at top strength, for in the past summer Haig has put forth nothing like his maximum effort, and in consequence has suffered losses far below the figures anticipated at the British war office. When it was seen that the Russian army must drop out of all offensive plans this summer and that Germany would be able to develop an unexpected strength upon the western front, the Franco-British policy naturally became more conservative. The building up of the American armies has confirmed the wisdom of this course, which looks to the accumulation of an irresistible power before the last continuous, annihilating blows are delivered upon all possible fronts.

"TRUST US," SAY BRITISH

War Does Not Make Englishmen Understand American Colloquialisms Any Better Than Before.

Washington.—Evidently the war has not made the English understand American colloquialisms any better than heretofore—or some particular Englishmen are merely lacking a sense of humor. Anyway, official Washington is smiling an official smile (which is the diplomatic way of concealing undue mirth) over a little incident that occurred in Hampton Roads the other day, when Secretary Baker was on an inspection trip. He crossed from one camp to another when a British cruiser, lying near by, signalled:

"Who is that going ashore flying an official flag?"

"The secretary of war," was the answer.

"Thank you," said the Britisher. "Don't mention it," replied our courteous bluejackets.

That ended it until one of our sailors saw the British wig-wagging furiously. He read the signal.

GERMAN CHANCELLOR'S SON A FARM LABORER

Berlin.—Willy Michaelis, the youngest son of the new German chancellor, is working as a common laborer on a large farm in Langheim, near Gruenberg, in Silesia. The young man is a student of one of the Berlin high schools. When the summer vacation began in July he offered his services for the harvest with thousands of other pupils, and was sent to Silesia, where he works hard every day from four o'clock in the morning until eight o'clock at night. After the harvest he will, of course, return to school.

ON THE FUNNY SIDE

FRENZIED FINANCE.

Young DeSmart—Say, do you want to make $10,000 in a few minutes?
Old Gotrox—Sure!
Young DeSmart—I understand you intend to give your only daughter $100,000 as a marriage portion.
Old Gotrox—Yes, that's a fact. But what has that got to do with the $10,000?
Young DeSmart—Well, I'm willing to marry her for $90,000. See?

Old Method Revived.

"What do you suppose will be the next reform to ship on the educational crusade?"
"I wouldn't be surprised if it were a spanker boom."

Anything but That.

Mrs. Fussbody—If I don't get a letter from you every day I'll feel so lonely I'll come right back home.
Hubby—Never fear; I'll write twice a day.

A Bad Way.

"He's in a bad way."
"Broke, eh?"
"Worse than that. He's down to the point where nobody will lend him money any more."

NOTHING NEW.

"The practice of medicine has certainly changed. When I was young, the doctors used to bleed their patients."

"Huh! I don't see that they've changed much in that respect."

The Invariable Assertion.

Every man who tries to wake a disposition scrappy.

Declares he does it all to make his fellow mortals happy.

Its Advantage.

"How can you keep up the pretense that your crabbing is a profitable industry?"

"Well, any way you look at it it is a net gain."

Its Class.

"The minister says his parrot is so well trained that it joins in the family prayers."

"Well, that's the first time I ever heard a parrot was a bird of pray."

Natural History.

Freddie—It's always in damp places where mushrooms grow, isn't it, papa?

Papa—Yes, my boy.

Freddie—Is that the reason they look like umbrellas, papa.

Described.

"Pa, what is luck?"

"Luck is what the anti-preparedness people think we should depend on to keep us out of trouble."

A Problem.

"Economy is the watchword of the hour. Everything must be used. Nothing must go to the waste heap."

"But what are we going to do with our kites?"

The Beginning.

"How did you happen to become a lightning change artist?"

"I got started at the game by switching my winter flannels on and off."

The Right Place.

"Do you know I have specks before my eyes."

"Well, where else would you want to wear 'em?"

In Doubt.

"I understand she's taken up knitting?"

"Yes."

"What is she making?"

"That we can't tell. You see, even she can't make it out just yet whether it's going to be a sweater or a pair of socks."

There'd Be None Left.

C. L. Cook, 22 Oak St., Covington, Va., says: "A bad case of diphtheria left my kidneys very weak. The first symptom was a backache that grew worse and then the kidney secretions began to pass frequently and were painful. My kidneys swelled, nearly twice their normal size and though doctors treated me, I kept getting worse until I gave up hope of recovery. Finally, I used Doan's Kidney Pills and they cured me. During the past seven years, I have had no further trouble."

An Exaggeration.

"Crossing the ocean nowadays is a serious proposition," said J. P. Morgan, who crosses the ocean continually, "but it isn't, after all, as terrible a thing as certain exaggerations would make you believe."

"Anything to declare?" a customs officer said to a man who had just crossed the ocean.

"Yes," said the man. "I declare that I'm one mass of black and blue bruises from jolting and bumping for six days over a regular corduroy road of German mines and submarines."

GREAT PRAISE FOR GOOD MEDICINE

Eight years ago we commenced selling Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and during this time it has found many friends among our customers who speak in the highest terms regarding the benefits obtained from the use of Swamp-Root. We have never heard a single criticism.

ADAM SPRUNG FIRST JOKE

Asked Eve If She Expected an Ichthyosaurus, When She Objected to Spider on Rose.

We believe that in the Garden of Eden, Adam gave Eve a rose in exchange for a kiss. And she shuddered and said, "Ugh! There's a spider on the rose!" And he answered, "Well, what do you expect for one stingy little kiss—an ichthyosaurus?"

We believe that to be the oldest joke in the world—older than the goat, the mother-in-law, or any that are supposed to be included in the Original Seven. In varying forms one finds it in the Talmud, in Plautus, in Aesop, in Rabelais, in Joe Miller, in all the almanacs and comic papers.

When we were a boy, it was told in a minstrel show, thus: A man buys a suit of clothes at a second-hand store. He comes back and complains that the coat is inhabited by unpleasant insects. And the dealer says, "Well, what do you expect for $5—humming birds?"

Vaudeville knows it in this form: Tenant—"Look here, you'll have to make some repairs in this house. The cellar is full of water!" Landlord—"Well, what do you expect for $15 a month—champagne?"

And just last week we ran across our old friend again in a weekly comic paper. This time a passenger on a street car calls down the conductor for not calling the names of the streets distinctly. And the conductor replies, "Well, what do you expect for $14 a week—a tenor solo?"

Lastly—a few days ago, we ran a version of the old thing in this column. We cut its hair, trimmed its whiskers, and fitted it with a new suit, but we could not disguise it completely. When you run across it in any of its costumes, send us a clipping, will you? We are making a collection of that joke.

Soldiers Buy Bonds.

The second Liberty loan drive, which was inaugurated at the reorganization camp at Gettysburg two weeks ago is meeting with splendid success during the week just closed. A total of $247,850 was subscribed by the officers and soldiers located there, making $425,100 for the two weeks. There was an increase of $70,000 over the first week's subscriptions which amounted to $177,250. There is competition between the various units in the big camp.

Two Hanover milk dealers Monday served notices on their patrons that they intend to raise the price of their product from 4 cents a pint and 8 cents a quart to 5 cents a pint and 10 cents a quart.

"The Open Door."

IN TWO ACTS AND SIX SCENES.

TIME—Saturday evening.

PLACE—Warehouse stable, Dutters alley

ACT I.

SCENE I—"Swartz" starts home in the dark, whistling timidly for company; Notices open door at warehouse stable; Hair rises on end; Stops whistling and beats it back to "Al the Pieman" with all haste.

SCENE II—"Al" refuses to approach the stable with "Swartz" alone; Demands reinforcements; Gets blue-steel 45 from underneath his pillow; "Swartz" uses phone to get "John H."

SCENE III—"John H." rings in "Plymy" to make it two all; Force goes into conference in "Al's" place; "John H." loads his trusty weapon, with "Plymy" to show him how; "Swartz" and "Al" calm each other.

ACT II.

SCENE I—"John H." and "Plymy" advance on stable from the east; "Al" and "Swartz" sneak up from the west; Come on each other around corner of stable and are too scared to shoot.

SCENE II—United army peers into dark stable; "Al" declares horse a 'goner' and looks for hoof tracks; "John H." inclined to agree, but "Bill" recognizes "Plymy" and neighs from recess of stall. All rejoice.

SCENE III—"John H." finds lock hanging on peg; "Tony's" homie attacked; "Tony" declares he locked the door, but later says maybe he didn't when told the lock was on the peg; Satisfied over unravelling mystery, the forces separate and return home to tell their wives how brave they were; "Tony" scratches head!

(THE END)

Marriages.

Miss Ella M. Rider, of York, and Noah J. Toomey, son of Mrs. Annie Toomey, Hanover, were married in Baltimore on Monday.

Charles A. DeLone, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lewis DeLone, and Miss Kathryn Dougherty, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Dougherty, all of Harrisburg, were married in the Cathedral, at the Capitol City on Thursday morning by the Rev. Thomas B. Johnson. The groom is a grandson of the late Frank J. Martin, of New Oxford.

Russel Gardner, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. B. Gardner, of Latimore township, was married to Miss Sarah Dougherty, of Orrtanna on last Friday. The ceremony was performed at the home of the bride by the Rev. Godwin. The groom is employed as a clerk in the Dillsburg National Bank.

On Friday evening Miss Mary Cromer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Cromer, and Preston Sheely, son of Mrs. Annie Sheely, all of Littlestown, were married in St. Aloysius rectory by the Rev. Fr. O'Callaghan.

Miss Winifred Mehling and Mervin L. Sanders, both of Cumberland township, were married at Frederick on Thursday by Rev. John A. Ditzler. The bride is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. T. M. Mehling. Mr. Sanders is a son of Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Sanders.

On Tuesday evening at the Reformed parsonage, Arendtsville, Dorsey J. Shultz, of Gettysburg, R. D. 5, and Miss Emma O. Singley, of Gettysburg, R. D. 4, were married by the Rev. T. C. Hesson.

Francis A. Smith, son of Mr. and Mrs. F. A. Smith, Gettysburg, and Miss Violet M. Burke, daughter of Mrs. Margaret Burke, of Centralia, were married in St. Ignatius church, Centralia, on Tuesday morning by the Rev. Fr. T. J. Crotty.

Miss Frieda I. Stape, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Stape, of Gettysburg, and Miner L. Workman, who is a sergeant in Co. B, 50th Inf. at Gettysburg, were married on Saturday evening by the Rev. J. B. Baker.

On Saturday evening the Rev. R. H. Reigstesser united in marriage Charles A. Gulden and Miss Viola M. Resh. The bride is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Noah Resh, of near Hanover, and the groom a son of Charles A. Gulden, Sr. of Hanover.

During a recent visit to Hanover, Miss Clara M. Britcher, of York, met Sergeant Blair Collins, of Co. G, 58th Inf., located at Gettysburg, and on Saturday the couple were married in York by the Rev. M. R. Hamelster. Sergt. Blair is a resident of Jackson, Ky.

Miss Nita Waltman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Waltman, of Abbotstown, recently of near the Cross-Keys, and Edgar H. Bellen, of Mineral Bluff, Ga., a soldier from the Gettysburg cantonment, were recently married at York.

Miss Anna Ulrich and Benjamin LeFevre, both of Littlestown, were married by the Rev. Fr. O'Callaghan, at Littlestown, on Monday evening.

Ward W. Porter, of Toledo, Ohio, and Miss Mary V. Sterner, of Hanover, were married in St. Vincent's rectory, Thursday evening, by the Rev. W. A. Howard. The bride is a daughter of Mrs. Amanda Sterner, of Midway.

John W. Smallwood, of the Machine Gun Co 60th Inf., now stationed at Gettysburg, and Miss Kathleen Goldobro, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Chas. F. Goldobro, of Hunterstown, were married in Baltimore on Saturday evening by Rev. Martin L. Begg. They will reside at the home of the bride for the present.

Huskie on Good Behavior.

Sentence was suspended by Squire Rice, at a hearing on Tuesday evening on J. E. Lawrence, Elmer Weaver, Frank Post, Curtis Rider and Ray Noel, who were arrested on the Sunday previous by Officers William Cassatt, E. K. Kester, constable of Conewago township, and Joseph Freet, for gambling. Each one had to give bond for good behavior for a year.

Two new buildings are now being erected by the Gen. & Gas Electric Co., manufacturers of Genco light and power plants, at Hanover. Both structures will be of brick, the one being 160x50 feet, and the other 250x90 feet.

Charles Baker Licensed.

A total of 23 students at Gettysburg college will receive a minimum sum of $200 with an added $50 if needed to assist them in financing their studies this year, according to action taken Wednesday morning by the West Pennsylvania Lutheran synod in sessions at York. The Rev. Dr. J. B. Baker, Gettysburg, chairman of the Ministerial Educational committee, made this recommendation. The Adams County Conference committee appointed is as follows: Rev. J. B. Baker, Rev. S. F. Floto, Rev. S. A. Diehl, Paul H. Mickle, C. O. Sowers, and E. W. Lightner. In the Adams county conference $8,621 was spent last year on improvements to churches. At present there are nine vacant charges in the synod, including Fairfield and New Chester. The Rev. C. W. Baker, of town was appointed chairman of the committee on State of Religion. His son, Chas. Baker, of town, was licensed to preach.

In order to provide entertainments for the soldiers at Gettysburg, the synod appointed a Soldier's Welfare commission. The commission will look after the religious welfare of the men at the Battlefield town cantonment and provide wholesome entertainment for them. The members of the Soldiers' Welfare body are the Rev. Messrs A. E. Wagner, J. B. Baker and W. W. Fleck and Laymen Amos Eckert and E. P. Miller. The Maryland synod in session last week at Washington, D. C., decided to pay $800 a year for three years to go toward the maintenance of the students of the Lutheran Theological Seminary, Gettysburg. The fund from which coal and supplies are purchased for the seminary at Gettysburg was increased from $550 to $750 for the next year. The debt which the synod has been carrying for a number of years for beneficial education, was cancelled. Ministers or lay delegates pledged themselves amounts varying from $10 to $100. A committee of three was named from each conference in the bounds of the synod to readjust boundaries of charges as may be mutually advantageous and to keep before them the standard that each charge should give $1,000 a year with parsonage.

Cullison Held For Court.

Thrown underneath the Ford car of Elmer Toddes driven by Arthur Cullison when the machine upset on the Lincoln Highway near Gettysburg on Tuesday morning, two soldiers, Archie Wells, military policeman, and Vincent Erzybulo, both stationed at the Gettysburg camp, were injured so seriously that for a time their chances for recovery were reported to have been slim. Both men were placed in the camp hospital and a successful operation was performed upon Wells in the evening to relieve the pressure of a piece of skull upon the brain, the skull having been fractured in the fall. Wells was unconscious for hours and he was not expected to live. Erzybulo was hurt internally and was in a serious condition. With the two men were Wm. Held and Gus Boehm, of Flemington, N. J., who were being given a lift, after their Ford car had burned during the night near Abbotstown. They escaped with only a few bruises. Three other soldiers were cut about the head and face but they are able to be about. Arthur Cullison was given a hearing before Squire Hill on Friday morning on a charge of operating an automobile while he was under the influence of liquor. Testimony was given and Cullison was returned to jail pending disposition of his case.

Runaway Boys Brought Home.

Starting with the understanding that the three would take turns about riding the one bicycle taken with them a trio of youngsters, Melvin Meal, Herbert Snyder, and Rodney Harner, of Littlestown, left on Tuesday afternoon with Detroit as their goal, without the knowledge of their parents. A telephone message received by relatives of one of the boys in Littlestown that night was to the effect that one of them had been found, but that no trace had been secured of the other two. It is stated, however, that the other two were seen next morning in Chambersburg. The three intended to stop at the Gettysburg camp for the purpose of visiting the brother of the Snyder lad, and it is said that the latter was persuaded to give up the trip by the soldier. It was the purpose of the three to follow the Lincoln Highway in an automobile to a point between Chambersburg and Fort Loudon, the fathers of two of the three boys came upon the missing trio and brought them home. The discovery of the whereabouts of the boys was made Saturday afternoon about 3 o'clock. Two of them were perched on the back of a butcher's wagon and the third was riding the one bicycle which the party started off with.

Hospital Patients.

Miss Mary Sadler, of Qualityville, had her tonsils and adenoids removed at the York hospital on Tuesday. She was accompanied to York by her sister, Miss Nora Sadler.

Emory Myers, for several years employed at the R. C. Taughnbaugh exchange stable, Berlin avenue, and who recently removed his family from Hanover street to the home of his parents, near the Cross-pikes, is now a typhoid patient in the York hospital.

The condition of A. C. Long, of Hanover, who underwent an operation in St. Agnes hospital, Baltimore, last week, is improving.

Harry Krenzer, of Hanover, who is suffering with typhoid fever, was taken to the York Hospital on Tuesday.

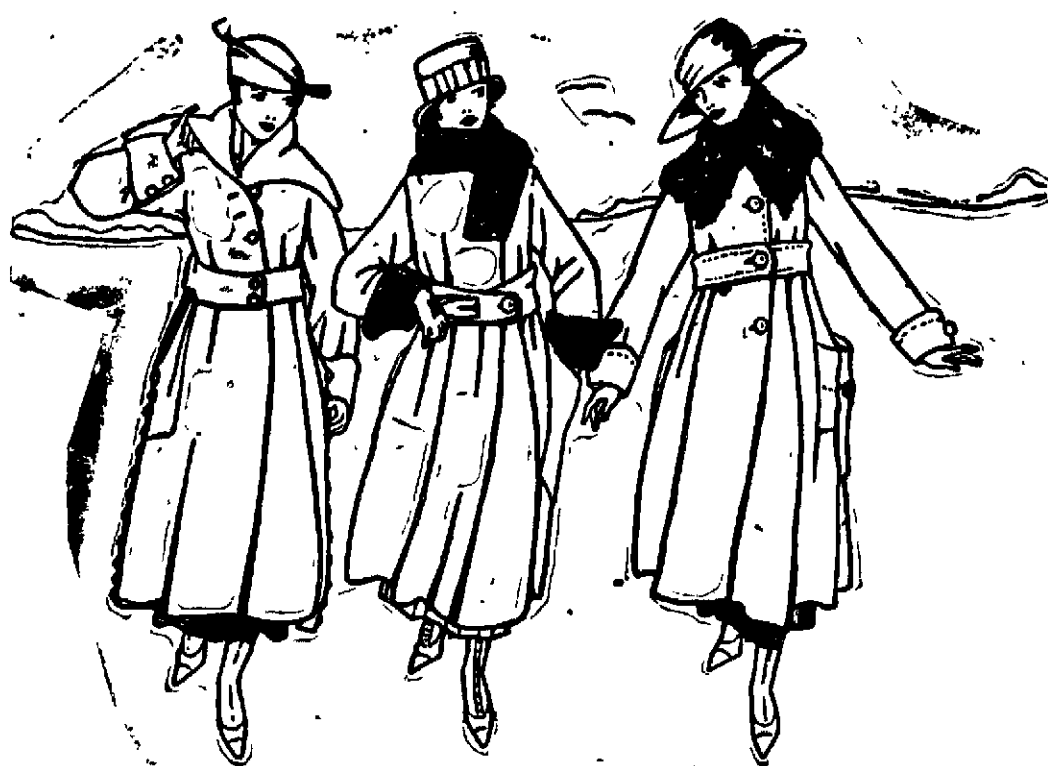

Raphael Carbaugh, son of Mr. and Mrs. Francis Carbaugh, of near Berlin Junction, who recently underwent an operation for appendicitis at the West Side Sanatorium, York, is improving. Meade Robert, of the Eagle Hotel, clerk in the Gilbert hardware store, a typhoid fever patient at the same institution, expects to be able to return to New Oxford in a few days.

Paul Walker, of Baltimore, son-in-law of G. A. Klingel, of Hanover street, recently underwent a surgical operation at St. Agnes Hospital, that city, for a serious infection of his arm, which had caused him intense suffering. He is now getting along very nicely.

James Davis, of Hanover, was admitted to the York hospital as a surgical patient.

New York Daredevil Is Now Retired Member of the Police Force.

RECORD DEATH DODGER

During Last Sixteen Months of Service He Was in Five Hospitals—Won Fame as Bicycle Rider.

New York.—Charles M. Murphy, retired member of the New York police force, figured in five accidents during the last 10 months he was on duty, any one of which would have been sufficient to kill an ordinary man. He rounded out his active career as a patrolman while on his way to the office to turn in his badge by falling and fracturing his knee cap. Now he is a bit curious to know just why all these misfortunes have befallen him and why he is alive to recount his experiences.

Murphy is little known as a policeman. In the days of his youth, 20 or more years ago, he was the speediest bicycle rider in the world.

First Mishap at Three Years.

When Murphy was three years of age a fire broke out in the Murphy home in Brooklyn. In a panicky rush to call for assistance, his mother dropped Charles in the flames. He was scorched, no more. At ten he was rendered unconscious while coasting. When Murphy was eleven the family horse was killed in a runaway and the family scattered about the street. Charles suffered only scratches. At fourteen he crashed into an iron post while running from the "cops" and was rendered unconscious. When he was eighteen Murphy was driving a spirited horse that ran away at the sound of a fire alarm. He was dragged 50 yards and was shaken up.

During that same year an engineer was stunned by a stone thrown by a boy. Murphy raced the engine, mounted the cabin and shut off the throttle. When twenty he came near drowning while leaving his ship in the Brazilian harbor of Bahia. His twenty-fifth year opened with a mishap on January 1 when he and a motorman were picked from a street car wreck and Murphy was believed crippled for life.

The Family Horse Ran Away.

Racer and New York Policeman.

When twenty-seven, Murphy was rendered unconscious while racing at Manhattan Beach. Next morning the doctor found him working out on the track. In 1890, when he was twenty-nine years of age, he won the cognomen "Mile-a-Minute" Murphy. In 1901 he was appointed a member of the New York police force. The next year Murphy and his brother built a tandem bicycle driven by a steam engine and hoped to speed three miles a minute. The engine broke loose, fell on Charles, and came near killing him. In 1903 he started a fight with 10 gangsters and would have been killed but for the arrival of reserves. In 1905, while chasing a thief, he jumped down a 20-foot embankment, suffering a sprained ankle.

In 1906 he formed the bottom link in a 20-foot human chain which rescued a man who had fallen in a well and was neck deep in quicksand. In 1913 he arrested 12 foreigners at a clip and stopped a runaway by choking a bridleless horse into submission. Things were dull for Murphy until September 19, 1915, when he was appointed motorcycle policeman. He was run over by an automobile that year. Later a towing line became entangled with his wheel and he was dragged 50 feet. The following spring a fork on his wheel broke and he suffered internal injuries. In September, 1916, he was thrown 30 feet on Manhattan bridge, and finally on January 27, 1917, when he was slated for retirement, he fell and fractured his knee cap. Murphy, however, still retains the characteristics of his youth, and gives he is good for many more stunts.

RODE HORSE, PAID FOR IT WITH LIFE

Champion Woman Rough Rider of World Dies as Result of Daring Feat.

Denver, Colo.—"Well, I rode her!" were the dying words of Mrs. Ed. Wright, champion woman rough rider of the world, when she was picked up at Union park here, after being thrown by a wild horse during a field day celebration for the benefit of Colorado National Guardsmen, encamped here.

Mrs. Wright died before she reached a hospital.

Too proud to admit before a crowd of grandstand that she dared not ride the bucking broncho, the woman mounted Gentle Annie amid great cheering by the cowboys who had taught her when she first declined to ride the animal. Mrs. Wright succeeded in subduing her mount from its furious bucking, but Gentle Annie started on a wild gallop toward a corral. Before the cowboys, who immediately started in pursuit, could catch the fleeing horse, the animal plunged through a wire fence, stumbled and slid along the ground with Mrs. Wright still in the saddle. A part of the saddle caught in the fence and the broncho raised its heels in the air, and then fell to the ground again. As it rose it stepped on the woman's face, crushing her skull.

Succeeded in Subduing Her Mount.

FAT MAN—BAD; FAT CONDUCTOR—WORSE

Atlanta, Ga.—Fat conductors are taboo with the local street car company as the result of suits filed by Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Shields against the company because a conductor was too fat. The suits allege that the conductor on a car on which Mrs. Shields rode home was so big that she could not get by him, and in trying to squeeze through she fell to the street and was seriously injured.

HAD UNIQUE LOVE SYSTEM

Poet, Author and Soldier of Cleveland Won Many Women by Correspondence.

Cleveland.—John Francis Beckwith, poet, author and soldier, was arrested recently because of his successful method of making love by mail. He was accused of winning the hearts of women and then procuring money from them.

Beckwith had a complete system of love correspondence, beginning with a friendly letter referring lightly to love. One by one the letters increased in the intensity of their love expressions. In masterful English Beckwith finished up the mail campaign with such fervor that "they all fell for it."

When arrested, Beckwith had the names of 75 women in towns and cities throughout the country. He kept a ledger telling how far the correspondence had advanced in each case. The replies from some women made it evident that the time was ripe for procuring the "loan."

Beckwith served as an English officer through the Boer war. He is a college graduate, holding two degrees. He was born in Norway, his father having been a former chief justice of the Norwegian Supreme court.

"I hate women," said Beckwith, when arrested.

Fingers Betray Him.

Eldora, Ia.—Jeff Freed, wanted on a forgery charge, who worked in the Excelsior restaurant here last winter, was caught by a private detective and identified through finger prints on a soup plate in the restaurant. The proprietor explains the durability of the finger prints by saying that the plates were used only for oyster soup, not served in summer.

An Emphatic Assurance.

"If you don't marry me," exclaimed the suitor, "I'll join the army."

"Let me tell you something," answered the girl. "If you don't join the army you won't even be well enough acquainted with me hereafter to ask me to marry you."

Prospects Excellent.

A friend dropped in to say hello the other day—he had been in the Blue Ridge region for a few weeks. He brought this story:

A young native, a widower of a year, called at the shack of the father of a numerous family, and after banting about the bush for a while, asked the parent for his daughter's hand.

"So ye want to get hitched with Sal?" said the old man. "I dunno about it. Yer fast wife didn't last ye long. What are yer prospects?"

"Fine!" asserted the suitor. "All the women what sent their washin' to my fast wife has promised to do the same by her successor, whoever she must be. Oh, we'll get along all right!"

The Spirit That's Needed.

G. Bernard Shaw, the Irish playwright, said recently in London that nobody but an idiot could imagine that the pacifists and socialists would be allowed to have any say in the peace negotiations which will end the world war.

"If Shaw is right," said a labor leader, "it's a bad thing for the world, and so I hope he's wrong."

"I hope the peace negotiations will create among the nations the spirit embodied in a saying which an old grandmother used to quote in my childhood, namely—

"If you want a neighbor, be one."—Exchange.

A Boy With a Future.

Ellis Perrot Blister, the fly-fishing expert, said at a banquet:

"The prime virtue of a good angler is patience. No man or boy ever developed into a successful fisherman who hadn't at least twice the patience of Job."

"There's a boy in Shawnee who is going to make a champion one of these days. I saw him fishing the other afternoon on the bank of a creek, and I said to him:

"What are you fishing for, son?"

"Snigs," said he.

"What are snigs?" said I.

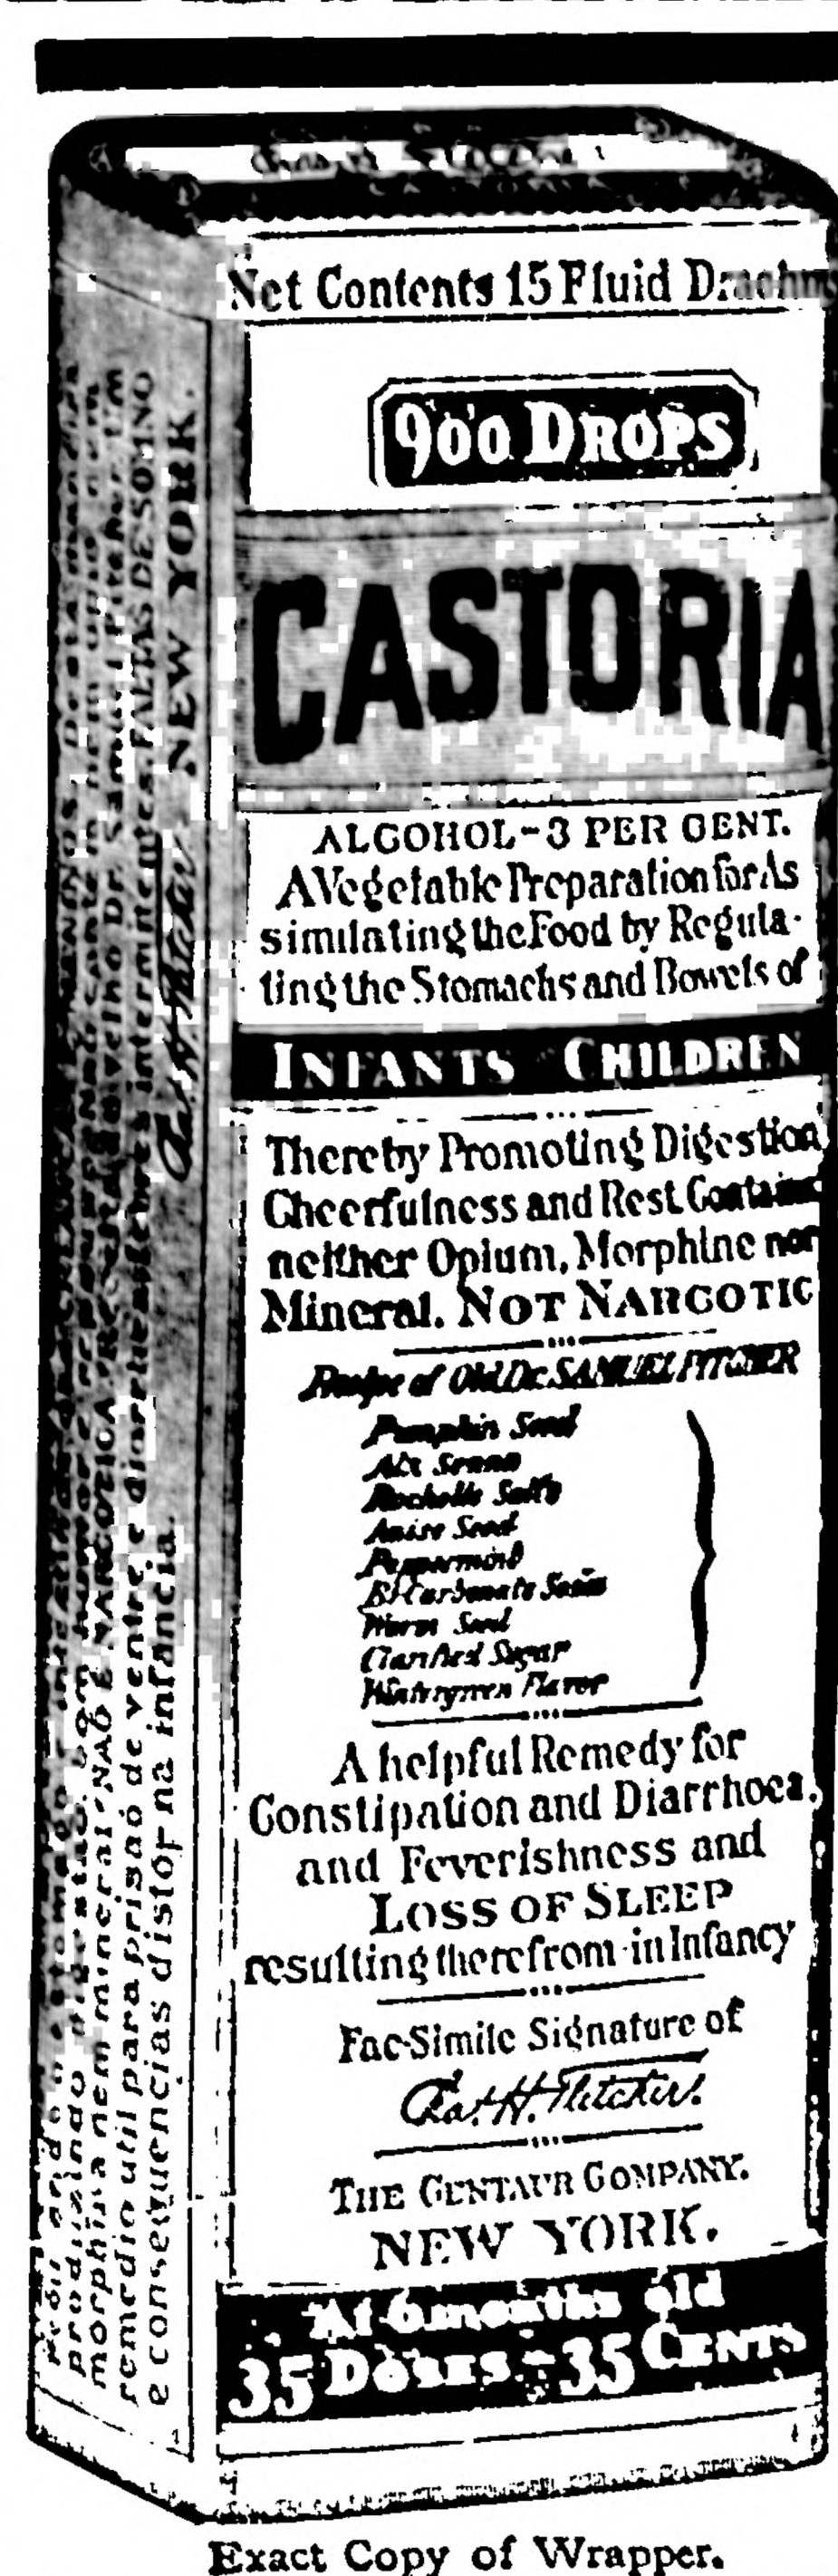

"I dunno," said the boy. "I ain't never caught none yet."

A Letter From Washington

The Food Administrator Writes Us:

"The use of baking powder breads made of corn and other coarse flours instead of patent wheat flour is recommended by the Conservation Division of the Food Administration. The wheat needed for export is thus conserved, and at the same time healthful food for our own people is provided. The circulation of recipes providing for these uses would be of assistance in carrying out our plans."

The following recipes for Corn Bread and Rye Rolls save wheat flour and make attractive and wholesome food for every day when made with

ROYAL BAKING POWDER

CORN BREAD

1 1/2 cups corn meal
1/2 cup flour
4 level teaspoons Royal Baking Powder
1 tablespoon sugar
1 teaspoon salt
1 1/2 cups milk
2 tablespoons shortening

Mix thoroughly dry ingredients; add milk and melted shortening; beat well; pour into well greased pan and bake in hot oven about 25 minutes.

Our red, white and blue booklet "Best War Time Recipes" containing additional similar recipes sent free on request. Address Royal Baking Powder Company, Dept. W, 135 William Street, New York.

RYE ROLLS

2 cups rye flour
1/2 teaspoon salt
3 level teaspoons Royal Baking Powder
1/2 cup milk
2/3 tablespoon shortening

Mix dry ingredients together; add milk and melted shortening. Knead on floured board; shape into rolls. Put into greased pans and allow to stand in warm place 20 to 25 minutes. Bake in moderate oven 25 to 30 minutes.

A. S. Dechant, and Chas. M. Wolf, both of Hanover, are president and treasurer of the synod which is composed of eight classes including the Gettysburg classis. Other ministers of the denomination in this vicinity are in attendance.

Waywards Return.

Mrs. Bertha Kuhn, wife of George Kuhn, who left her home along the Carlisle 'pike, Berwick township, on last Monday afternoon and disappeared to York with a soldier named John Downey, from the Gettysburg cantonment, leaving a 6-month-old child in the crib at her home, and taking with her $22 of her husband's hard-earned money, returned to the home of parents, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Anthony, near Bittering, on Saturday evening. It is said, the young woman and her soldier friend remained in York until the supply of cash became exhausted and then hiked the way back. The wayward woman and her soldier boy were met on the Carlisle pike between the cross-keys and Red Hill, on Saturday evening by Mr. Kuhn, but after only a few words could be spoken the man from the camp jumped a passing automobile and returned to Gettysburg; the woman went on her way to the home of her parents, and the wronged husband departed for the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Kuhn, at Berlin Junction, where he, with his child, will make their future home. Mention of the escapade was made in these columns last week, only the names of the guilty parties being omitted. Downey, whose home in Kentucky, is a member of Co. —, 7th Regt., stationed at Gettysburg.

Joseph Holtz a Sergeant.

Recently, the Hanover district exemption board reported that among the seven who failed to put in an appearance before the board was one Joseph Holtz, of York, and that the man was therefore classed as a deserter. The said Joseph Holtz is a son of Lieut. Baron G. Holtz, formerly of Hampton. He has been living with his grandparents, Henry Myers and wife, of York, formerly of town. The "Item" recently published the report as given out by the Hanover board. Last week we were advised by C. M. Myers of York, an uncle, that young Mr. Holtz is not a deserter, but a volunteer, having enlisted at Fort Howard on June 8th, last, and is now a Sergeant in the Mining Company at Ft. Howard. His father, Lieut. Holtz, is with a Stevedore regiment, which recently sailed for France. Young Holtz registered on June 5th, but being ill, he did not report before the exemption board.

Car Overturned.

Blinded by the glaring lights of another car coming in the opposite direction, the driver of the large National touring car of Reuben Strayer, of York, containing members of St. Matthew's Lutheran church, York, on their way to Gettysburg, to give an entertainment for the benefit of the soldiers, at the W. M. railroad crossing, on the Lincoln Highway, just west of Guldens station, guided the car onto the tracks. When he attempted to get back on the road the wheels of the car caught and the machine turned over on its side in the gutter. The seven passengers were thrown out but none were seriously hurt. One of the front wheels of the car was smashed and other minor damage done. A truck summoned from the Burgard garage at York towed the disabled auto to that city. The accident occurred shortly after 6 o'clock on Friday evening.

Buggy Wheel Passed

Over Child's Body. Genevieve, the 4-year-old child of Mr. and Mrs. Ivan Withers, Carlisle street, had a narrow escape from serious injury on Sunday evening. The child had just alighted from a buggy when the horse attached to the vehicle started and the wheel striking her knocked the little girl to the ground and passed over her body. Fortunately she was heavily dressed and the injury was only a few slight bruises. A local physician gave necessary attention.

Arm Ligaments Torn.

While engaged in a friendly tussle with Paul Berkheimer, son of Mr. and Mrs. Norman Berkheimer, of Pleasant street, on the public school grounds, one day recently, George Merritt, colored, aged 15 years, who resides at the home of Mr. and Mrs. C. K. Yeager, on Lincoln Way, West, had several ligaments in his right arm torn when Berkheimer, who is the larger boy, fell on him and accidentally twisted the arm. George has been carrying his arm in a sling.

"To Hell and Back."

Here's one on "Ricky!" "Ricky" had been telling his auto friends that he would never be caught without gas. Sunday afternoon, "Ricky" put 5 gallons in the tank. Evening came, with "Ricky" trying hard to get up Red Hill on his way back from McSherrystown. But the darned thing wouldn't go—No gas! So across country "Ricky" trudged for gas. He got it; but he blames young "Ricky" now for "running to hell and back" in the afternoon. How "Ricky's" auto friends do laugh.

Captured Rattler.

While on a chestnut hunt in the mountains at Newman's, beyond Cashtown, on Sunday, Melvin Reibold, Raphael Weaver, Edwin Lough, and Capt. Clark Reed, of town, captured a rattlesnake that measured 3 feet in length and had 5 rattles and a button. The reptile somewhat benumbed by the cold showed a strong resistance but was finally roped by Mr. Reibold. His snakeship is now on exhibition at Hotel Oxford.

Adding Second Story.

The 1½ story frame building owned by Michael Livingston and occupied by the F. H. Shrader Cigar Company, S. Water street, is being improved by being raised to full two stories. The cigar firm is enjoying prosperity, now having about 20 employees, which number will be increased on the completion of the new addition.

New Cigar Factory.

J. E. Miller, of near town, who has had a large experience in the business, has leased the building on West High street, near the creamery, formerly occupied as a dwelling, from Wm. D. Himes, and will at once open a cigar factory therein. He is now advertising for cigarmakers.

Mrs. C. W. Baker, of Lincoln Way, East, vice president, will give the Adams county conference report on Thursday afternoon in York before the synodical convention of the Woman's Home and Foreign Missionary society of the Lutheran church. Miss Carrie Musselman, of Gettysburg, is president of the society. Mrs. Horace D. Becker, of Hanover, will lead the devotional service on Thursday afternoon. Mrs. W. I. Redcay, Hanover, is secretary of the thank-offering department.

A Gruesome Find.

The badly decomposed body of an unidentified man—evidently a suicide—was found by two Gettysburg hunters, William Guldens and Leo Diehl, on Saturday morning when they were scouring the woods on the Albert Hollinger farm north of that place, for small game. The condition of the remains indicated that the man had been dead for many weeks.

The hunters were walking thru a thicket when they came upon the body. It was in a terrible condition and there were evidences that buzzards had been working about it. The feature was so badly disfigured as to make identification impossible and there were no papers on the body to allow of any conjecture as to the man's name or place of residence. It is believed that he was a tramp. A hole in the right temple showed where a true aim had sent the ball on its fatal mission. In the man's right hand was grasped a revolver. One chamber of the five was empty while the hammer was down upon another. The weapon was so badly rusted that it was impossible to open it.

District Attorney Topper was notified, who, in turn, communicated with Coroner Woerner at Cashtown, who is not well, and Mr. Topper placed the holding of an inquest in the hands of Squire L. H. Meals of Cumberland township.

Employers of the P & R RR, who viewed the body state that, even in its decomposed state, it appeared to be that of a man whom they saw walking out the railroad tracks some weeks ago. It has been learned that the man was Emanuel Young, an Irish traveler who frequently visited Gettysburg. His only profession, so far as is known, was that of tattooing.

Town Must Maintain Streets.

President Judge George Kunkle, of the Dauphin County Court, in a decision handed down on Wednesday clearly stated that when borough streets are a part of a turnpike taken over by the state in arguizing the main highway system under the Act of 1911, the borough must maintain the streets, the having no duty toward them. The only way state aid can be secured is on a 50-50 basis.

Judge Kunkle's decision dismissed a mandamus suit brought by the Gettysburg town council and imposed the costs on that body. The proceeding was a novel one, and had attracted state-wide attention. It came before the court upon agreed facts points in dispute before entirely legal questions. Upon the Sprout main highway act of 1911, the Gettysburg and Pottersburg Turnpike Road Company was taken over, by the state. Portions of it (Baltimore and Chambersburg streets) lay within Gettysburg's limits; the borough contended the state should improve and maintain the streets, as well as the road in townships; the state refused, as not being part of its duty. The borough council proceeded in court against Frank B. Black, then state highway commissioner.

Visiting While Burned.

When Frederick Kretz and family returned to their home a 2½ story log structure near Schiever's school house, Union township, after a visit to Hanover on Tuesday night, they found their house and its contents totally destroyed by fire during their absence. The blaze is thought to have originated from an overheated stove. The fire was discovered about 9 o'clock, and a number of persons attracted to the scene tried to extinguish the flames, but the flames had gained too much headway, and everything was consumed. The Kretz family did not arrive home until midnight and were without a place of shelter for the night. They returned to Hanover and spent the remainder of the night there. The loss is said to have been nearly $2000 and is partly covered by insurance. Mr. and Mrs. Kretz have only been married a short while. Mrs. Kretz being the widow of the late Thomas Aumen, formerly of Hanover.

Club House Set Afire.

With the deer hunting season only several weeks distant, the 1½-story club house of the Arendtsville Hunting Club in Menallen township, erected in 1915 on the club's own tract, was found by telephone linemen on Wednesday a mass of wreck age, the result of a destructive fire. The loss is $100. On the Sunday previous the club house was seen to be all right. That the quarters was deliberately set on fire and burned by some person or persons who had a spite at the organization or some of its members, was the inevitable conclusion, for while the building had a wooden framework, the sides and roof were of galvanized metal, and it could not have been set on fire except through the deliberate work of an incendiary. In the building there were destroyed the mattresses, bed springs, stoves, dishes, telephone, and all the other equipment of the club.

Loyalty to President

Going on record as favoring nation-wide prohibition and pledging without the slightest reservation its loyalty to the president and government of the United States, and resolving to use every form of service which may help to hasten the successful outcome of the war and bring a lasting peace based upon righteousness and peace to the weak as well as the strong in the family of nations of the world, the ninety-third annual convention of the West Pennsylvania Synod of the Lutheran church adjourned on Friday afternoon in St. Matthew's Lutheran church, York. Greenacres was selected as the next place of meeting.

Six Tons of Turkeys

For Thanksgiving Day. Uncle Sam's boys now in the Gettysburg Camp are to have turkey for their Thanksgiving Day dinner. On Thursday afternoon bids were opened for furnishing 12,000 pounds of the great American bird for the annual feast the last Thursday in November. But this does not necessarily mean that the boys will all stay there until that date, it is stated at headquarters of the supply department.

Bids were also opened on supplies for one month. These include: 200,000 pounds of potatoes, 24,000 pounds of lard, 10,000 pounds of butter, 2,000 pounds of oleomargarine, 10,000 pounds of cured ham, 6,000 pounds of cheese, 20,000 pounds of onions.

The bottom dropping out of a two-gallon jug of oil of tar in the cellar of the Auker drug store, Center Square, on Saturday, allowed the fluid to spread over a big part of the floor and gave the entire building a strong tarish scent.

Taken by Death.

Sister Mary Xavier, of St. Joseph's Convent, McSherrystown, died on Thursday morning after a prolonged illness. The deceased, whose name was Martin, was born in Dublin, Ireland, and has been a member of the Order of St. Joseph for 49 years, devoting her life to teaching. She taught in the parochial schools of Lebanon, Mt. Rock and McSherrystown. Interment was made in St. Joseph's Chapel burying ground on Saturday morning.

John W. Vahsley, a well known Hanoverian, died suddenly at his home in that place at 3 o'clock on Friday morning after a brief illness from ptomaine poisoning. He was aged 65 years, 6 months and 2 days. The deceased was a son of the late Frederick H. Mahaley, of Carroll county, Md. The family moved to Hanover 25 years ago. Mr. Mahaley was elected a member of the Hanover Town Council in 1904 and served one term. He was a member of Defiance Commandery Knights of Malta; Pride of Hanover Council, Daughters of Liberty, and the Order of Independent Americans. For 25 years he has been employed as a carpenter by the J. F. Rohrbach Co., building contractors. The deceased is survived by his wife and six children.

Allen Eicholtz, aged 35, died at his home in Gettysburg on Thursday morning from meningitis. Mr. Eicholtz was taken sick one week previous and his condition grew steadily worse. Four physicians were called during his illness and several consultations were held. He lapsed into unconsciousness on Tuesday and in a final effort to save his life an operation was performed on Wednesday night. The immediate cause of death was meningitis. He was a son of Samuel and Laura V. Eicholtz, and was born in Cumberland township. He served a portion of an enlistment in the United States Army, being discharged on account of physical disability. He leaves his mother, his wife; a sister, Miss Grace Eicholtz, and a step-daughter.

Mrs. Carrie Collins, wife of Alexander Collins, aged 69 years 5 months and 11 days, died at her home in Cumberland township, Friday night from a complication of diseases, after an illness of ten days. She leaves her husband, a son, Zenas Collins, at home; and one daughter, Mrs. L. H. Snyder, 15, Gettysburg; also three brothers, Addison P. and Henry Johnson, of Bairdstown, Ohio; and Albert Johnson, of Van Wert, Ohio.

The infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Ambrose Wagaman, of Cumberland township, died at their home on Friday morning, aged nine months.

Taken suddenly ill with a form of heart trouble on Saturday morning, Mrs. Sallie Martin DeLone, wife of Louis DeLone, died at 6 o'clock p. m. on the same, at her home in Harrisburg, aged 62 years. Mrs. DeLone, a native of New Oxford, was the eldest daughter of the late Franklin J. Martin, of North Peters street. She was united in marriage with Mr. DeLone in 1876 since with time she has resided in Harrisburg. Besides her husband, she leaves five daughters and seven sons, all residing in Harrisburg except two of the sons, married on Thursday morning, with his bride, were off on a wedding tour when he received the sad news of the sudden death of his mother. A. J. Martin, of near the cross-roads; F. L. Martin, of Seven Hundred; Mrs. Chas. Rinehart, of near town; Misses Elizabeth and Bertha Martin, of North Peters street, are half brothers and sisters of deceased. The funeral was held on Tuesday morning, interment being made at Harrisburg.

Miss Mary Crisler, aged 85, for the past nine years a resident at the Old Ladies' Department at the County Home, died on Thursday. She leaves one daughter, Mrs. Jones, of Mt. Holly Springs. Interment was made in the home cemetery on Thursday.

The infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Emory Wolf, formerly of New Oxford, died at his home in Midway, Saturday noon, aged 18 days. Interment was made in Mt. Olivet cemetery, Hanover, on Monday.

Mrs. Emma Whitaker, wife of Samuel W. Whitaker, died at her home in Baltimore, on Saturday evening, after a two weeks' illness. She was aged 39 years. Deceased was a daughter of Wm. and Mary Deischer, and was born and spent her early life near Swartz's schoolhouse. Since her marriage 18 years ago, she has resided in Baltimore. She leaves her husband, her parents and a number of brothers and sisters.

Mrs. Elizabeth Lilly died at the County Home at 11 o'clock Monday morning, aged 88 years. She had been a resident at the Home for almost 7 years. She was formerly of Latimore township and leaves a daughter, Miss Elmira Lilly, of York Springs.

James S. McGuigan, of York, brother of David McGuigan, of Gettysburg, died at his home on Saturday evening, aged 71 years. He was stricken with apoplexy Thursday while at work at the plant of the York Wall Paper Co.

Soldiers Buy Bonds.

The second Liberty loan drive, which was inaugurated at the reorganization camp at Gettysburg two weeks ago is meeting with splendid success during the week just closed. A total of $247,850 was subscribed by the officers and soldiers located there, making $425,100 for the two weeks. There was an increase of $70,000 over the first week's subscriptions which amounted to $177,250. There is competition between the various units in the big camp.

Two Hanover milk dealers Monday served notices on their patrons that they intend to raise the price of their product from 4 cents a pint and 8 cents a quart to 5 cents a pint and 10 cents a quart.

"The Open Door."

IN TWO ACTS AND SIX SCENES.

TIME—Saturday evening.

PLACE—Warehouse stable, Duttera alley.

PERSONNEL.—"John H." the proprietor; "Swartz," afraid of the dark; "Al" the Pieman; "Plymy" the movie man; "Antonio" the guilty; "Bill" the innocent plug.

ACT I.
SCENE I.—"Swartz" starts home in the dark, whistling timidly for company; Notices open door at warehouse stable; Hair rises on end; Stops whistling and beats it back to "Al the Pieman" with all haste.

SCENE II.—"Al" refuses to approach the stable with "Swartz" alone; Demands reinforcements; Gets blue steel 45 from underneath his pillow; "Swartz" uses phone to get "John H."

SCENE III.—"John H." rings in "Plymy" to make it two all; Force goes into conference in "Al's" place; "John H." loads his trusty weapon, with "Plymy" to show him how; "Swartz" and "Al" calm each other.

ACT II.
SCENE I.—"John H." and "Plymy" advance on stable from the east; "Al" and "Swartz" sneak up from the west; Come on each other around corner of stable and are too scared to shoot.

SCENE II.—United army peers into dark stable; "Al" declares horse a "goner" and looks for hoof tracks; "John H." inclined to agree, but "Bill" recognizes "Plymy" and neighs from recess of stall. All rejoice!

SCENE III.—"John H." finds lock hanging on peg; "Tony's" home attacked; "Tony" declares he leaked the door, but later says maybe he didn't when told the lock was on the peg; Satisfied over unravelling mystery, the forces separate and return home to tell their wives how brave they were; "Tony" scratches head!

Huskie on Good Behavior.

Sentence was suspended by Squire Rice, at a hearing on Tuesday evening on J. E. Lawrence, Elmer Weaver, Frank Poist, Curtis Rider and Ray Noel, who were arrested on the Sunday previous by Officers William Cassatt, E. K. Kester, constable of Conewago township, and Joseph Freet, for gambling. Each one had to give bond for good behavior for a year.

Two new buildings are now being erected by the Gettel & Gas Electric Co., manufacturers of Genco light and power plants, at Hanover. Both structures will be of brick, the one being 16x50 feet, and the other 25x50 feet.

Charles Baker Licensed.

A total of 23 students at Gettysburg college will receive a minimum sum of $200 with an added $50 if needed to assist them in financing their studies this year, according to action taken Wednesday morning by the West Pennsylvania Lutheran synod in sessions at York. The Rev. Dr. J. B. Baker, Gettysburg, chairman of the Ministerial Educational committee, made this recommendation. The Adams County Conference committee appointed as follows: Rev. J. B. Baker, Rev. S. F. Floto, Rev. S. A. Diehl, Paul H. Mickle, C. O. Sowers, and E. W. Lightner. In the Adams county conference $8,621 was spent last year on improvements to churches. At present there are nine vacant charges in the synod, including Fairfield and New Chester. The Rev. C. W. Baker, of town was appointed chairman of the committee on State of Religion. His son, Chas. Baker, of town, was licensed to preach.

In order to provide entertainments for the soldiers at Gettysburg, the synod appointed a Soldier's Welfare commission. The commission will look after the religious welfare of the men at the Battlefield town cantonment and provide wholesome entertainment for them. The members of the Soldiers' Welfare body are the Rev. Messrs A. E. Wagner, J. B. Baker and W. W. Fleck and Laymen Amos Eckert and E. P. Miller. The Maryland synod in session last week at Washington, D. C., decided to pay $800 a year for three years to go toward the maintenance of the students of the Lutheran Theological Seminary, Gettysburg. The fund from which coal and supplies are purchased for the seminary at Gettysburg was increased from $550 to $750 for the next year. The debt which the synod has been carrying for a number of years for beneficial education, was cancelled. Ministers or lay delegates pledged themselves amounts varying from $10 to $100. A committee of three was named from each conference in the bounds of the synod to readjust boundaries of charges as may be mutually advantageous and to keep before them the standard that each charge should give $1,000 a year with parsonage.

Cullison Held For Court.

Thrown underneath the Ford car of Elmer Toddes driven by Arthur Cullison when the machine upset on the Lincoln Highway near Gettysburg on Tuesday morning, two soldiers, Archie Wells, military policeman, and Vincent Erzybulo, both stationed at the Gettysburg camp, were injured so seriously that for a time their chances for recovery were reported to have been slim. Both men were placed in the camp hospital and a successful operation was performed upon Wells in the evening to relieve the pressure of a piece of skull upon the brain, the skull having been fractured in the fall. Wells was unconscious for hours and he was not expected to live. Erzybulo was hurt internally and was in a serious condition. With the two men were Wm. Held and Gus Boehm, of Flemington, N. J., who were being given a lift, after their Ford car had burned during the night near Abbottstown. They escaped with only a few bruises. Three other soldiers were cut about the head and face but they are able to be about.

Arthur Cullison was given a hearing before Squire Hill on Friday morning on a charge of operating an automobile while he was under the influence of liquor. Testimony was given and Cullison was returned to jail pending disposition of his case.

Runaway Boys Brought Home.

Starting with the understanding that the three would take turns about riding the one bicycle taken with them a trio of youngsters, Melvin Meal, Herbert Snyder, and Rodney Harner, of Littlestown, left on Tuesday afternoon with Detroit as their goal, without the knowledge of their parents. A telephone message received by relatives of one of the boys in Littlestown that night was to the effect that one of them had been found, but that no trace had been secured of the other two. It is stated, however, that the other two were seen next morning in Chambersburg. The three intended to stop at the Gettysburg camp for the purpose of visiting the brother of the Snyder lad, and it is said that the latter was persuaded to give up the trip by the soldier. It was the purpose of the three to follow the Lincoln Highway in an automobile to a point between Chambersburg and Port Loudon, the fathers of two of the three boys came upon the missing trio and brought them home. The discovery of the whereabouts of the boys was made Saturday afternoon about 3 o'clock. Two of them were perched on the back of a butcher's wagon and the third was riding the one bicycle which the party started off with.

Hospital Patients.

Miss Mary Sadler, of Qualityville, had her tonsils and adenoids removed at the York hospital on Tuesday. She was accompanied to York by her sister, Miss Nora Sadler.

Emory Myers, for several years employed at the R. C. Taughinbaugh exchange stable, Berlin avenue, and who recently removed his family from Hanover street to the home of his parents, near the cross-pikes, is now a typhoid patient in the York hospital.

The condition of A. C. Long, of Hanover, who underwent an operation in St. Agnes hospital, Baltimore, last week, is improving.

Harry Krenzer, of Hanover, who is suffering with typhoid fever, was taken to the York Hospital on Tuesday.

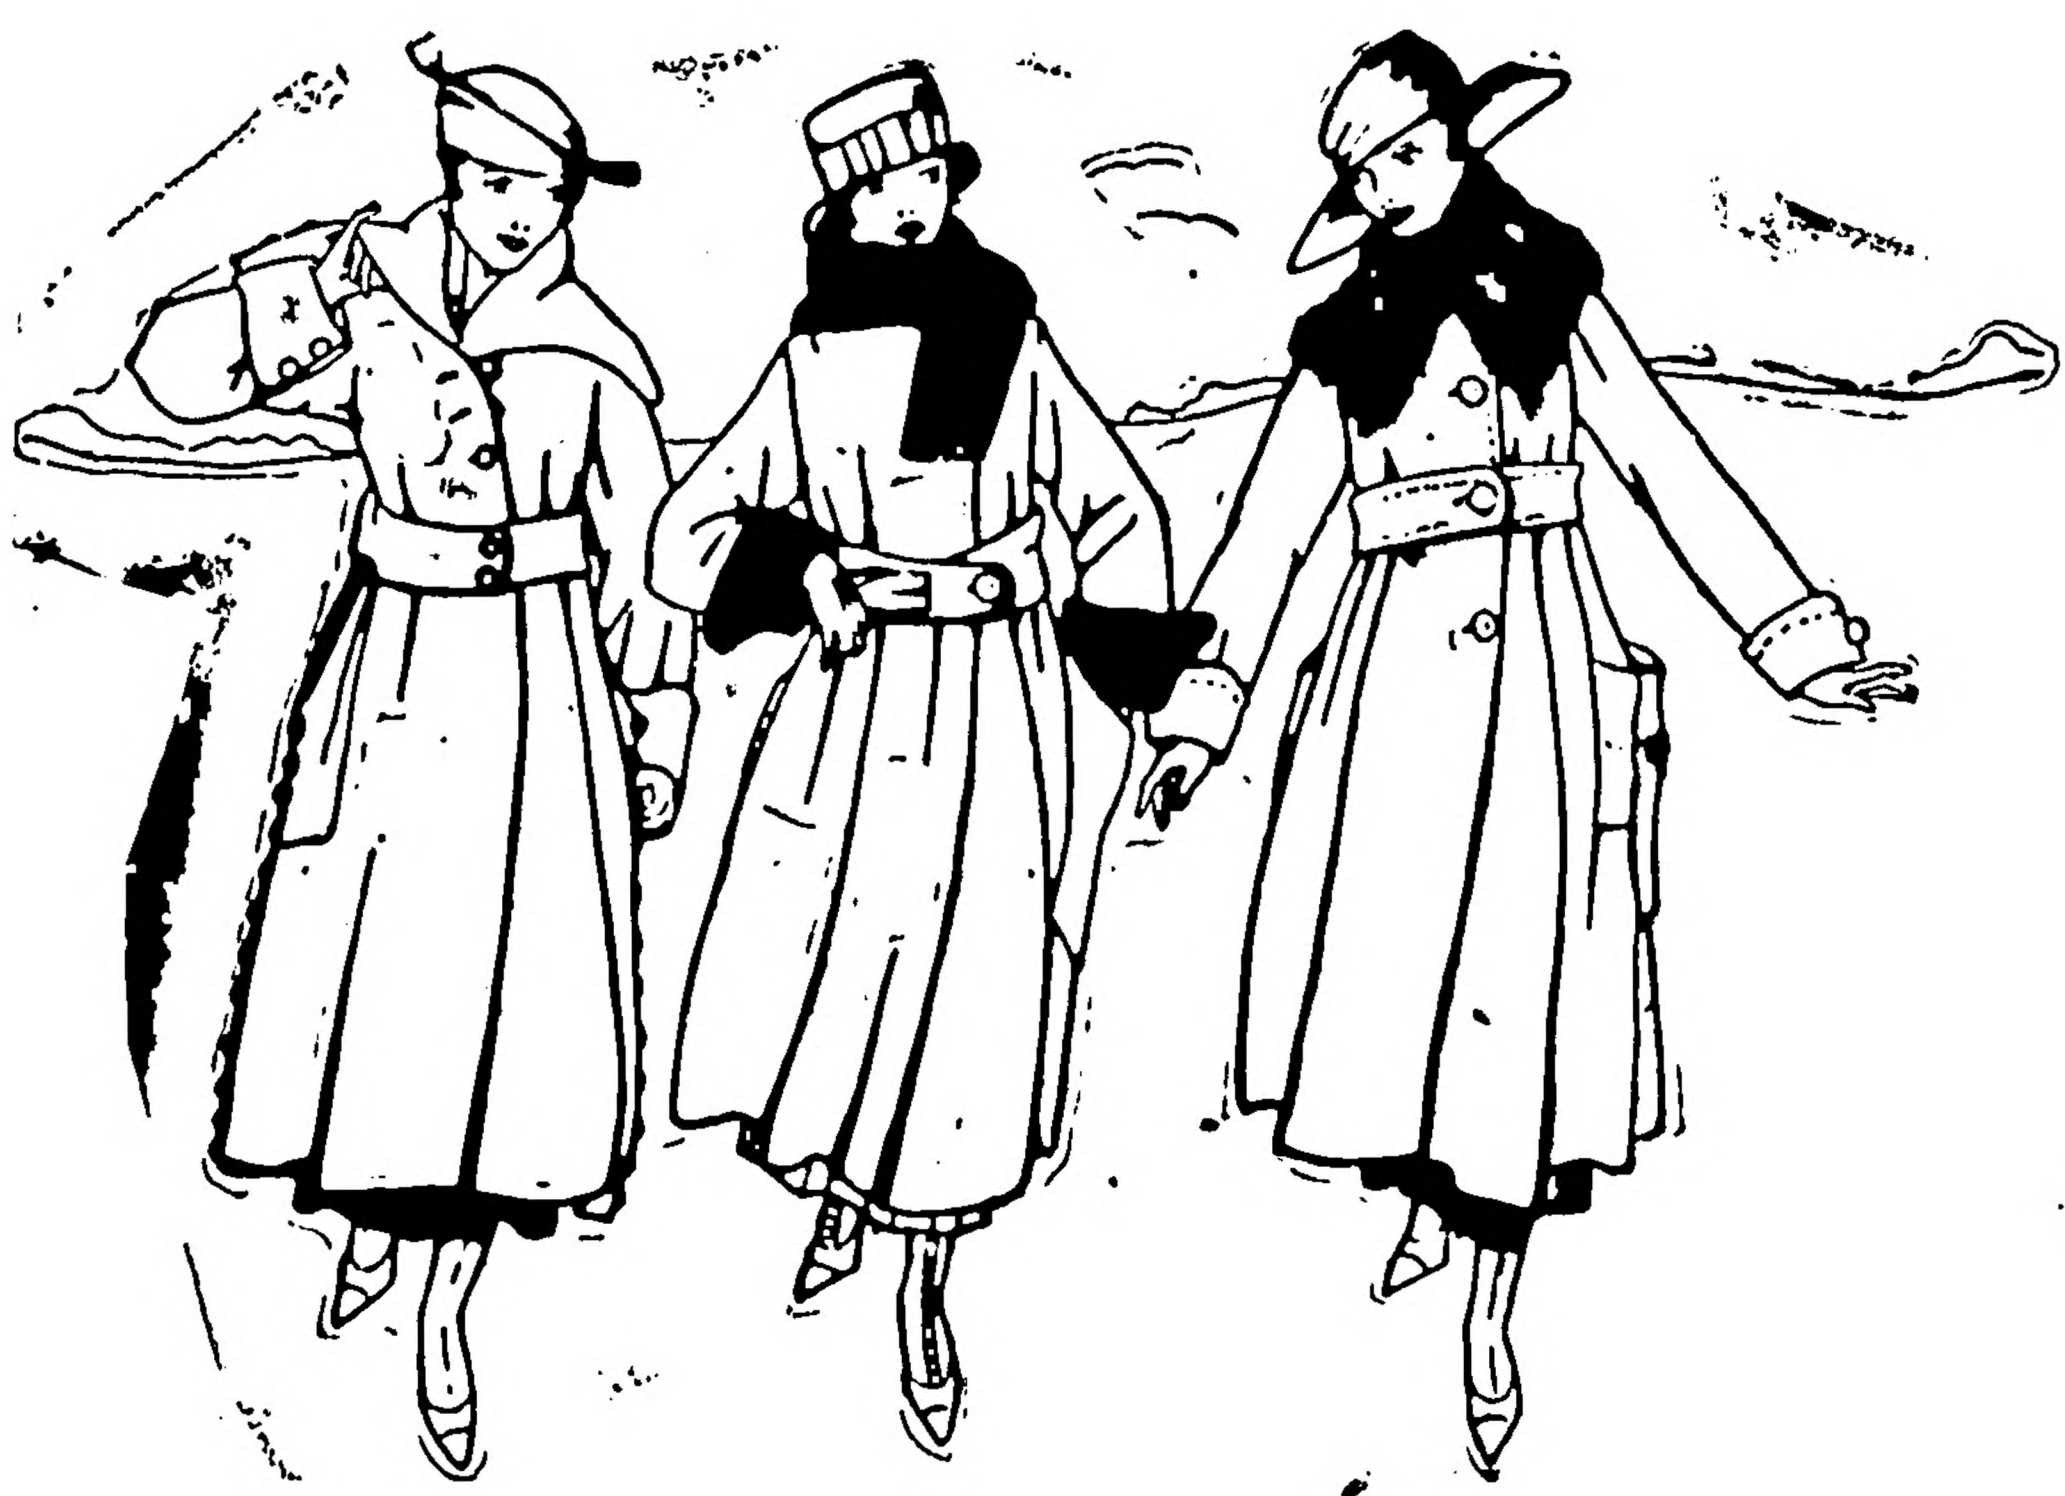

Raphael Carbaugh, son of Mr. and Mrs. Francis Carbaugh, of near Berlin Junction, who recently underwent an operation for appendicitis at the West Side Sanatorium, York, is improving. Mende Kibert, of the Eagle Hotel, clerk in the Gilbert hardware store, a typhoid fever patient at the same institution, expects to be able to return to New Oxford in a few days.

Paul Walker, of Baltimore, son-in-law of G. A. Kluegel, of Hanover street, recently underwent a surgical operation at St. Agnes Hospital, that city, for a serious infection of his arm, which had caused him intense suffering. He is now getting along very nicely.

James Davis, of Hanover, was admitted to the York hospital as a surgical patient.

Camp Libraries to Supply Soldiers With Best Reading Matter

Nothing is being left undone for the comfort and mental recreation of the men who are preparing to serve their country in the various training camps and cantonments throughout the country. The Y. M. C. A. was early in the field and besides its many activities, providing for the moral and spiritual welfare of the men, it did all it could to provide proper reading matter for them. But the need of libraries furnished in a more adequate and scientific way was so largely felt that the United States government requested the American Library association to undertake the work.

At once, it was decided to raise a million-dollar war fund; not so much for the purchase of books as for the erection of suitable library buildings at every cantonment; for the transportation of books and for the purpose of securing the service of skilled librarians. The first step in the formation of the organization in charge of the million-dollar war fund was the appointment by Secretary of War Newton D. Baker of ten nationally known men and women to constitute a library war council.

United, and co-operating with the war service committee are most of the prominent authors of the United States; practically all of the publishers, who have proved willing volunteers; and practically all of the leading members of the library profession. All these are working in conjunction with the library war council, the commission on training camp activities and the war department itself.

One of the heaviest items of expense at the beginning of the work is the erection of 32 camp-library buildings at the various cantonments throughout the country. Each building will be 40 by 120 feet in size, one-story high, and will have accommodations for 8,000 or 10,000 books, newspapers and magazines, and living quarters for the staff. It is hoped and expected that each of these libraries will be in charge of a trained librarian. In each camp it is planned to have a library headquarters with books and periodicals for reading-room use, together with a system of distributing agencies; affording to the soldiers a kind of first-class city public library service.

A careful survey of the entire field determined that $1 is the amount necessary for the purchase, maintenance and circulation of one book. One dollar, it has been figured, will furnish a book, keep it in circulation until it is worn out, replace it when it is retired for physical disability, and all the time pay a share of the expense of properly housing and caring for these libraries in the various camps.

It is not to be imagined that the stupendous task of furnishing the soldiers with books; equipping, establishing and maintaining libraries, both stationary and traveling, is undertaken with, primarily, an educational idea. The books are needed not only to provide recreation for the soldiers when they are off duty, but to help counteract evil influences in the vicinity of the camps and cantonments. Books to read will help to make the camps so wholesome and attractive that the forces that tend to take men away from their duty will lose, at least part, of their charm.

There is no desire on the part of the American Library association nor the library war council to thrust educational books at the heads of men already tired from training and from fighting and who would desire recreation rather than the acquisition of knowledge. The aim has been and will be to provide in abundance volumes of short stories and novels of the more popular sort; and these when they are purchased, from the present fund, will be selected with all the acumen that comes to men whose lives have been spent in library service. A tentative list has already been prepared, and that it is tremendously democratic may be gleaned from the fact that it starts out with W. J. Abbot's "Battlefields and Camp Fires" and includes novels by George Ade, Bantze, John Kendrick Banes, James M. Barrie, Rex Beach, Elzire Belloc, William Black, Booth Tarkington, Meredith Nicholson, Robert W. Chambers, Hall Caine, Winston Churchill, G. K. Chesterton, Wilkie Collins, Irvin Cobb, Marion Crawford, Richard Harding Davis, Charles Dickens, W. M. Thackeray, Conan Doyle, Lord Dunsany, Jeffrey Farago, Edna Ferber, Montague Glass and—but one could go on and make a list of practically all the popular American and foreign authors and that list would probably prove a pretty accurate catalogue of the books that are to be furnished the American soldier, wherever he may be, by the library war council.

"Not a cricket chirp'd," he writes in "In Memoriam," although the word would fit the grasshopper better perhaps. Tennyson prided himself on his exact word for the noises made by bird and beast. Thus he speaks of the "mean of dove," the robin's "pipe," the woodpecker's "laugh," the curlew's "whistle," the jay's "critch," the parrot's "scream," the peacock's "squal," the ocean-fowl's "shriek," and the eagle's "yelp."

Some Observations.

Experience never makes fools of wise men.

Faultfinding is unlike charity, yet it usually begins at home.

Vanity makes a lot of renumeration work for the beauty doctors.

You never really know your friends until they become your enemies.

It is awfully hard to get rich according to the methods prescribed in books.

Some men don't mind getting it in the neck if their neighbors get it just as hard.

Good sense is better than good looks, but so few people are afflicted with either!

You may have noticed that one girl no sooner breaks a man's heart than another comes along and bandages it up.

One Might While Away Idle Hours Reading One of These.

Which is the longest poem in the world? One generally regards "Paradise Lost" as pretty lengthy, and Thomson's "Seasons" and Cowper's "Task." But these are short compared with Spenser's "Faerie Queene," which is easily the longest poem in existence, even as it stands, and had he attained his object and reached the twenty-fourth book, no other poem would have been "in it."

It is only a quarter of the original plan, yet it is as long as the Iliad, the Odyssey, and the Aeneid put together, twice as long as Dante's "Divina Commedia," and three times as long as "Paradise Lost" and "Paradise Regained" in one.

The longest novel in the world belongs to Japan. Its author is Kiong Te Bakin. It was commenced in 1852, and published volume by volume as it came out over a period of fifty years. There are 106 volumes, 106,000 pages, 3,180,000 lines, and about 38,000,000 words. A complete copy weighs 130 pounds.

walls of the city of Tsinkiangpu. The grain warehouses of the town, a place of 200,000 inhabitants, were overflowing with wheat, maize and rice, and these supplies were constantly on display; yet there were no riots. The thousands outside the walls sat themselves down to die, while those within continued to transact the ordinary affairs of everyday life.

During this famine parents found it necessary to sell their daughters to wealthy families in which they became slave girls. Early in the period of distress girls of ten to fifteen years of age brought as much as $20 each, but when the suffering was most severe the customary quotation in the slave market was 60 cents each, while in one instance a father is known to have accepted 11 cents and two bowls of rice in exchange for his child.

Something New.

Peru was the first country to add instruction in aviation to its public school curriculum.

A new electric fan can be used on a desk or attached to a wall without changing any of its parts.

Concrete floors can be made almost noiseless by covering them with heavy tar paper, attached by cement.

European factories each week make about 16,000,000 pounds of artificial butter with coconut oil as a base.

Separate wind shields for each of the two seats it contains features a new English motorcycle side car.

A French scientist is trying to prevent fogs by floating small quantities of oil on rivers to check evaporation.

Spring buffers hold new shade rollers in position in a window without the use of tools or marring the wood work.

Platinum deposits recently discovered in Spain are believed to be greater and richer than those of the Ural mountains, which furnish the greater part of the world's supply.

And this is the truth as I see it: Whoever cries out for peace, Must think it and live it and do it. And the wars of the world will cease. —Ella Wheeler Wilcox.

The New Order.

She (hellishly)—Why weren't you at the station with the car to meet me as usual?

He (neekly)—My dear, you ought to get into this habit of some needless days.

To the Boys Who Were Drafted

By HAPSBURG LIEBE of the Vigilantes.

The writer of this little message to you, boys, has himself been an American soldier, and he is very proud of that fact. He knows army life, and he has seen red-hot fighting, and he knows the ways of officers.

I will put it like this: I will simply tell you what I would do if I were going into the army again. First, I would go into it with the rock-firm intention of whipping Germany. I would look at the matter just like that. Save that I would certainly not discount the importance of anybody else, I would believe, so far as it was possible, that it was up to me—to me, myself—to give Germany, the earth's pariah nation, the licking that is going to make all nations safe in a world democracy.

And the moment I was sworn into the service, I would resolve that, no matter whether it suited me or not, I would obey orders very strictly and to the letter. That is the magic phrase—it is the religion of the army: obey orders. During my time in the army, no man who lived up to that as his motto could go through with a term of enlistment without having a chance of being made a corporal, or a sergeant, or even a sergeant major. There are few commissioned officers who will overlook the enlisted man who never disobeys an order, when promotion becomes necessary. And in this war, men from the ranks are going to win commissions, boys; remember that!

But every man of the company, or the troop, or the battery, or whatever it happens to be, cannot be advanced, you say; and you are right. But every man can be a soldier. How much there is bound up in those three little words! You'll know yourself, after awhile. A real, dyed-in-the-wool American soldier, of course, is a gentleman, too.

However, there is bound to be a chance to win your chevrons. I've never yet seen the man who tried hard for promotion, if he tried honorably, who came out of it a private. In spite of their bluff military manners, officers are just like you under the skin; they are quick to recognize, and they are most heartily glad to recognize, the golden qualities of a soldier and a gentleman in an enlisted man. Remember that too!

Also, remember this: You are in the service to fight for your country, and not to make soldiering a trade; you are going across the Atlantic for the purpose of whipping Germany, and for no other reason. So long, boys, and good luck to you; and may the good God of our fathers bring you back to us!

Mother's Cook Book.

It's a gay old world if you're great. A gay old world if you're small. It's a world full of hate For the foolish who prate Of the uselessness of it all.

Beet Relish.
Take a quart of chopped, cooked beets, two cupsful of sugar, a quart of chopped cabbage, a cupful of horseradish and a cupful of chopped celery. Cover with cold vinegar and seal. This will keep all winter and makes a very good relish.

Oatmeal Soup.
Take three-fourths of a cupful of left-over cooked oatmeal, one medium-sized onion, a tablespoonful of butter, a fourth of a teaspoonful of celery seed, one-half a bay leaf, two cupsful of water or stock, two cupsful of milk, salt and pepper to taste. Cook the onion in the butter until soft. Add the bay leaf, celery seed, oatmeal and milk and water. Boil up and strain, season with salt and pepper and serve on hot buttered toast.

Cereal Coffee.
Mix together two quarts of bran, one quart of whole-ground cornmeal and one cupful of molasses until it resembles moist brown sugar. Turn the mixture into two large dripping pans and brown slowly in the oven, stirring often. When done it will be a rich seal-brown color. Store in fruit jars. Use two tablespoonfuls to a cupful and a half of water and boil 20 minutes. This is especially good for the children who think they must indulge in coffee when the grown-ups have it.

Corn Patties.
Take a half-cupful of corn, three cupsful of chopped ham, one beaten egg, and a dash of pepper. Form into cakes and fry brown on both sides.

Pecan Macaroons.
Grind a cupful of pecan meats and eight soda crackers through the meat chopper, using the fine knife. Beat the whites of two eggs, add a cupful of sugar, a tablespoonful of cocoa, a teaspoonful of vanilla, then the ground nuts and crackers. Bake in a moderate oven 20 minutes. Coconut could be used in place of the pecans if preferred.

Celery on Toast.
Celery with cheese in a cream sauce served on toast makes a nutritious and appetizing dish.

Some Superstitions That Have to Do With Love and Marriage Refuse to Die.

No superstitions persist more strongly than those which concern love. Many people who in general understand the absurdity of folk signs are yet somewhat influenced by those which have to do with the affections. Here are some of the typical superstitions of love and prospective marriage. It will be observed that the great majority apply to the feminine rather than the masculine sex.

If a boy pulls a hair from a girl's head she will always love him. If a girl buries a boy's hair and her own together under a stone he will love her always. The wearing of a wasp's nest in a girl's clothes will cause her lover's affection for her to increase.

If some one takes the combings from your hair she will also take your sweetheart. Similarly, if a girl steps on your heel she is trying to supplant you in your sweetheart's affections. A boy should not give his sweetheart a pair of shoes, for, if he does, she will walk away from him.

If a bramble catches in your skirt a widower is in love with you. The sight of a blue-eyed dog is a sign that your next lover will be white-headed. As many times as you can pop your knuckles, so many lovers have you.

The finding of a one-leaf clover indicates that you are about to get a letter from your sweetheart. If you find a two-leaf clover you will receive a kiss from your sweetheart. If your upper lip itches you will soon be kissed by a tall man.

Great Heat Loss on Ocean Ships Is Held Unavoidable.

On all sea-going steamers the steam is condensed by sea water pumped through the surface condensers. This circulating water is then discharged overboard. In the process of condensation the cooling water, taken in at temperatures varying from 32 to 58 degrees Fahrenheit, according to climatic and other conditions, is raised to temperatures varying from 80 to 120 degrees and then discharged.

This great loss of heat is practically unavoidable, says the Popular Science Monthly. Even on comparatively small steamers hundreds of tons of heated water are pumped overboard daily.

This constitutes one of the greatest heat losses in the operation of steam machinery, although sometimes a portion of the war water is used for scrubbing decks and for bath water on passenger ships.

Oldest American City.

The first permanent European settlement in the United States was founded September 8, 1565. Menendez de Aviles had arrived on the coast of Florida on St. Augustine's day in that year, and accordingly he gave the name of that saint to the city he founded. The founding was accompanied by much pomp and display. Accompanied by his chaplain, arrayed in rich sacerdotal robes, Menendez went ashore, followed by numerous ecclesiastics and "gentlemen," while flags waved, cannons roared, drums beat and trumpets sounded. Menendez planted the royal standard in the sands, beside which the chaplain placed the large cross he had carried. With such consecration Menendez laid the foundation of the city of St. Augustine. Only a human sacrifice was needed to give the city a

JUST FOR FUN.

Joke on the Lions.
"What's the trouble here?"
"One of life's grim ironies."
"Yes?"

"A lion tamer was assaulted by his ninety-pound wife and a patrol wagon full of police was rushed to the spot to give him protection."

Strong.
"Ever try any of this Gibraltar cheese?"

"No. Why do you call it Gibraltar cheese?"

"That's easily explained. Take a sniff."

The Way of It.
"Mercy, dearie, what a pretty new sweater you have on. It seems to be made of some highly colored yarn."

"Yep—and you ought to have heard the highly colored yarn I had to tell my husband to get it."

The Part Fitted.
"What was the most realistic acting you ever saw in the movies?"

"A beautiful star had to play the part of a girl who couldn't cook. And she played it to perfection, I must say."

Scum Milk.
Little Raymond, brought up in a city, had never seen real milk till he moved to a country town. He did not know that "it creams and mantes like a standing pool."

He brought in the milk bottle from proper start, so the Spaniards sailed forth and slew Jean Ribault and his company of French Huguenots. St. Augustine now has a population of about 6,000 and is known chiefly as a winter resort.

POULTRY POINTERS

Two weeks is long enough to fatten a fowl if highly fed.

Late hatched chicks should be fed by themselves, not with a larger stock. No man can raise poultry and produce eggs at so low a cost as the farmer.

Store away some oats, wheat or rye in the shenaves for the use of the hens in the winter.

Both hens and pullets need to be well cared for during the fall months if winter eggs are wanted.

Fowls should never be kept in such quarters that they cannot take sufficient exercise to promote digestion.

Repeat the poultry house if eggs are desired in winter. The first cold weather should find all in good condition.

It does not pay to kill and sell young turkeys until they are well developed.

Young ducks that are to be kept for sale as breeders should have plenty of range and two fair feeds each day.

Do not feed small chicks with big ones, or the latter will get most of the feed and the smaller ones most of hungry.

Japanese Eat Ice.

The Japanese are probably the only civilized people in the world who eat ice in the way they do. Blocks of small cakes of ice smashed into tiny pebbly pieces are eaten with sugar and lemon or any other mixture one may fancy. But by far the commonest way of eating ice is to shave into snowy flakes by means of a plane and swallow it with sweetened water into which various appetizers may be thrown, such as fruit juice or sweetmeats, says the Japanese Advertiser. Ice cream, milk and eggs shaken with ice, and other kinds of cooling beverages are sold in an ever-increasing quantity, but the old style of eating ice—that is, in the above described "korimidzu" fashion—is still in the greatest vogue. Every summer finds the number of kori shops swelling at an enormous ratio.

Havana's Orphans.

A whole series of romances could be written round the strange little opening in the wall below the iron-barred window through which infants enter Havana's great orphan asylum at La Beneficencia, says a writer in Wide World Magazine. Parents, guardians, and others desirous of getting rid of infants place them within the boxlike compartment, which is really a stile. They then give the stile a turn, which has the effect of ringing a bell in the building, announcing to the sister on duty the advent of another little foundling. The identity of the person who brings the child is never known, and every infant deserted in this way is nourished and cared for by the kindly sisters. Some of Havana's most prosperous citizens were brought up in this institution.

Spoiled His Alibi.

Charging her husband with abusing her, Mrs. Hairscum produced a handful of hair which she declared he pulled out of her head.

"Why," said the magistrate, examining the mass, "with the exception of a few strands of woman's hair, this is apparently part of the prisoner's whiskers."

"Them's his whiskers, sure enough, yer worship," she replied. "I took this so that he couldn't prove an alibi—he's such a liar he'll swear any tain'."

the front doorstep the first morning, and said disgustedly:
"Ma, that milk is no good at all—there's scum on it!"

Just Ordinary Weapons.

Judge—Describe what passed between you in the quarrel with your wife.

Witness—The plates and cups were regular dinner size, your honor.

She—I don't believe I could ever learn to love you, you are so distant. He—Well, I'll come nearer if you'll let me.

No Rustlers.

"Every man should have the right to enjoy life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness."

"Some men ain't satisfied with the pursuit of happiness," declared Uncle Pennywise.

"Huh?"

"They want it brang."

Hanover borough workmen employed in constructing a sewer in the rear of Baltimore street, unearthed Saturday morning, what is supposed to have been a grave at a depth of about six feet. The earth still retains the shape of the casket, which was one of the old-style—wide at the head and narrow at the foot end. Parts of the casket also were found.

Immediately following the High Mass at 10 o'clock on Sunday morning, in the Church of the Immaculate Conception the Right Rev. Bishop McDevitt, of Harrisburg, administered the Sacrament of Confirmation to a class of 33 children and 8 adults.

While Mr. and Mrs. T. F. Chrostwhite and W. W. Kroh, of Hanover, were motoring in the South Mountain, near Mont Alto, on Friday, they saw three deer. They appeared very tame and stood quietly within twenty feet of the automobile.

The Hanover police have declared war on "hoboes" and every tramp who remains in that borough for over three hours will be escorted out of town. The "traveling gentry" have been very numerous there recently and many citizens have been annoyed by them. It is believed that tramps were responsible for purchasing liquor for soldiers at that place.

The will of E. H. Lippy, who died recently at his home in Littlestown, leaves $10,000 to his wife, and directs that the residue of the estate be divided into four equal shares and given to his daughter, Mrs. Frank Weaver; his sons, M. Harry, and A. P. Lippy; and the children of his daughter, Mrs. Samuel Bixler.

The Rev. W. E. Garrett, pastor of St. Paul's Reformed church, this place, is attending the 45th annual session of the Potomac synod of the Reformed church being held this week in Hagerstown. The Rev. A. S. Dechant, and Chas. M. Wolf, both of Hanover, are president and treasurer of the synod which is composed of eight classes including the Gettysburg classes. Other ministers of the denomination in this vicinity are in attendance.

Waywards Return.

Mrs. Bertha Kuhn, wife of George Kuhn, who left her home along the Carlisle pike, Berwick township, on last Monday afternoon and disappeared to York with a soldier named John Downey, from the Gettysburg cantonment, leaving a 6-month-old child in the crib at her home, and taking with her $22 of her husband's hard-earned money, returned to the home of parents, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Anthony, near Bittinger, on Saturday evening. It is said, the young woman and her soldier friend remained in York until the supply of cash became exhausted and then hiked the way back. The wayward woman with her soldier boy were met on the Carlisle pike between the cross-roads and Red Hill, on Saturday evening by Mr. Kuhn, but after a few words could be spoken by the woman from the camp jumped a passing automobile and returned to Gettysburg; the woman went on her way to the home of her parents and the wronged husband departed for the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Kuhn, at Berk Junction, where he, with his child, will make their future home. Mention of the escapee was made in these columns last week, only the names of the guilty parties being omitted. Downey, whose home in Kentucky, is a member of Co. —, 7th Regt., stationed at Gettysburg.

Joseph Holtz a Sergeant.

Recently, the Hanover district exemption board reported that among the seven who failed to put in an appearance before the board was one Joseph Holtz, of York, and that the man was therefore classified as a deserter. The said Joseph Holtz is a son of Lieut. Baron G. Holtz, formerly of Hampton. He has been living with his grandparents, Henry Myers and wife, of York, formerly of town. The "Item" recently published the report as given out by the Hanover board. Last week we were advised by C. R. Myers, of York, an uncle, that young Mr. Holtz is not a deserter, but a volunteer, having enlisted at Fort Howard on June 6th, last, and is now a Sergeant in the Mining Company at Ft. Howard. His father, Lieut. Holtz is with a Stevedore regiment, which recently sailed for France. Young Holtz registered on June 5th, but, being in the army, he did not report before the exemption board.

Car Overtaken.

Blinded by the glaring lights of another car coming in the opposite direction, the driver of the large National touring car of Reuben Statter, of York, containing members of St. Matthew's Lutheran church, York, on their way to Gettysburg, to give an entertainment for the benefit of the soldiers, at the W. M. railroad crossing, on the Lincoln Highway, just west of Guldens station, guided the car onto the tracks. When he attempted to get back on the road the wheels of the car caught and the machine turned over on its side in the gutter. The seven passengers were thrown out but none were seriously hurt. One of the front wheels of the car was smashed and other minor damage done. A truck summoned from the Burgard garage at York towed the disabled auto to that city. The accident occurred shortly after 6 o'clock on Friday evening.

Buggy Wheel Passed Over Child's Body.

Genevieve, the 4-year-old child of Mr. and Mrs. Ivan Withers, Carlisle street, had a narrow escape from serious injury on Sunday evening. The child had just alighted from a buggy when the horse attached to the vehicle started and the wheel striking her knocked the little girl to the ground and passed over her body. Fortunately she was heavily dressed and the injury was only a few slight bruises. A local physician gave necessary attention.

Arm Ligaments Torn.

While engaged in a friendly tussle with Paul Berkheimer, son of Mr. and Mrs. Norman Berkheimer, of Pleasant street, on the public school grounds, one day recently, George Merritt, colored, aged 15 years, who resides at the home of Mr. and Mrs. C. K. Yeager, on Lincoln Way, West, had several ligaments in his right arm torn when Berkheimer, who is the larger boy, fell on him and accidentally twisted the arm. George has been carrying his arm in a sling.

"To Hellandback."

Here's one on "Ricky"! "Ricky" had been telling his auto friends that he would never be caught without gas. Sunday afternoon, "Ricky" put 5 gallons in the tank. Evening came, with "Ricky" trying hard to get up Red Hill on his way back from McSherrystown. But the darned thing wouldn't go—No gas! So across country "Ricky" trudged for gas. He got it; but he blames young "Ricky" now for "running to hellandback" in the afternoon. How "Ricky's" auto friends do laugh.

Captured Rattler.

While on a chestnut hunt in the mountains at Newman's, beyond Cashtown, on Sunday, Melvin Reibold, Raphael Weaver, Edwin Lough, and Capt. Clare Reed, of town, captured a rattlesnake that measured 3 feet in length and had 5 rattles and a button. The reptile somewhat benumbed by the cold showed a strong resistance but was finally roped by Mr. Reibold. His snakeship is now on exhibition at Hotel Oxford.

Adding Second Story.

The 1 1/2 story frame building owned by Michael Livingston and occupied by the F. H. Shrader Cigar Company, S. Water street, is being improved by being raised to full two stories. The cigar firm is enjoying prosperity, now having about 20 employees, which number will be increased on the completion of the new addition.

New Cigar Factory.

J. E. Miller, of near town, who has had a large experience in the business, has leased the building on West High street, near the creamery, formerly occupied as a dwelling, from Wm. D. Himes, and will at once open a cigar factory therein. He is now advertising for cigarmakers.

Mrs. C. W. Baker, of Lincoln Way, East, vice president, will give the Adams county conference report on Thursday afternoon in York before the synodical convention of the Woman's Home and Foreign Missionary society of the Lutheran church. Miss Carrie Musselman, of Gettysburg, is president of the society. Mrs. Horace D. Becker, of Hanover, will lead the devotional service on Thursday afternoon. Mrs. W. I. Redway, Hanover, is secretary of the church-offering department.

A Gruesome Find.

The badly decomposed body of an unidentified man—evidently a suicide—was found by two Gettysburg hunters, William Gould and Leo Diehl, on Saturday morning when they were scouring the woods on the Albert Hollinger farm north of that place, for small game. The condition of the remains indicated that the man had been dead for many weeks.

The hunters were walking thru a thicket when they came upon the body. It was in a terrible condition and there were evidences that buzzards had been working about it. The features were so badly disfigured as to make identification impossible and there were no papers on the body to allow of any conjecture as to the man's name or place of residence. It is believed that he was a tramp. A hole in the right temple showed where a true aim had sent the ball on its fatal mission. In the man's right hand was grasped a revolver. One chamber of the five was empty while the hammer was down upon another. The weapon was so badly rusted that it was impossible to open it.

District Attorney Tupper was notified, who, in turn, communicated with Coroner Woomer at Cashtown, who is not well, and Mr. Tupper placed the holding of an inquest in the hands of Squire L. H. Meals of Cumberland township.

Employees of the P. & R. RR. who viewed the body state that, even in its decomposed state, it appeared to be that of a man whom they saw walking out the railroad tracks some weeks ago.

It has been learned that the man was Emanuel Young, an Irish traveler who frequently visited Gettysburg. His only profession, so far as is known, was that of tattooing.

Town Must Maintain Streets.

President Judge George Kunkle, of the Dauphin County Court, in a decision handed down on Wednesday clearly stated that when borough streets are a part of a turnpike taken over by the state in organizing the main highway system under the Act of 1911, the borough must maintain the streets, the having no duty toward them. The only way state aid can be secured is on a 50-50 basis.

Judge Kunkle's decision dismissed a mandamus suit brought by the Gettysburg town council and imposed the costs on that body. The proceeding was a novel one and had attracted state-wide attention. It came before the court upon agreed facts points in dispute being entirely legal questions. Upon the Sproul main highway act of 1911, the Gettysburg and Pottersburg Turnpike Road Company was taken over by the state. Portions of it (Baltimore and Chambersburg streets) lay within Gettysburg's limits; the borough contended the state should improve and maintain the streets, as well as the road in townships; the state refused, as not being part of its duty. The borough council proceeded in court against Frank B. Black, then state highway commissioner.

Visiting While Home Burned.

When Frederick Kretz and family returned to their home a 2 1/2 story log structure near Schiever's school house, Union township, after a visit to Hanover on Tuesday night, they found their house and its contents totally destroyed by fire during their absence. The blaze is thought to have originated from an overheated stove. The fire was discovered about 9 o'clock, and a number of persons attracted to the scene tried to extinguish the flames, but the flames had gained to much headway, and everything was consumed. The Kretz family did not arrive home until midnight and were without a place of shelter for the night. They returned to Hanover and spent the remainder of the night there. The loss is said to have been nearly $2000 and is partly covered by insurance. Mr. and Mrs. Kretz have only been married a short while. Mrs. Kretz being the widow of the late Thomas Aumen, formerly of Hanover.

Club House Set Afire.

With the deer hunting season only several weeks distant, the 1 1/2-story club house of the Arendtsville Hunting Club in Menallen township, erected in 1915 on the club's own tract, was found by telephone linemen on Wednesday a mass of wreck age, the result of a destructive fire. The loss is $500. On the Sunday previous the club house was seen to be all right. That the quarters were deliberately set on fire and burned by some person or persons who had a spite at the organization or some of its members, was the inevitable conclusion, for while the building had a wooden framework, the sides and roof were of galvanized metal, and it could not have been set on fire except through the deliberate work of an incendiary. In the building there were destroyed the mattresses, bed springs, stoves, dishes, telephone, and all the other equipment of the club.

Loyalty to President

Going on record as favoring nation-wide prohibition and pledging without the slightest reservation its loyalty to the president and government of the United States, and resolving to use every form of service which may help to hasten the successful outcome of the war and bring a lasting peace based upon righteousness and peace to the weak as well as the strong in the family of nations of the world, the ninety-third annual convention of the West Pennsylvania Synod of the Lutheran church adjourned on Friday afternoon in St. Matthew's Lutheran church, York, Greenacres was selected as the next place of meeting.

Six Tons of Turkeys For Thanksgiving Day.

Uncle Sam's boys turn in the Gettysburg Camp are to have turkey for their Thanksgiving Day dinner. On Thursday afternoon bids were opened for furnishing 12,000 pounds of the great American bird for the annual feast the last Thursday in November. But this does not necessarily mean that the boys will all stay there until that date, it is stated at headquarters of the supply department.

Bids were also opened on supplies for one month. These include: 300,000 pounds of potatoes, 24,000 pounds of lard, 10,000 pounds of oleomargarine, 2,000 pounds of beef, 10,000 pounds of cured ham, 6,000 pounds of cheese, 20,000 pounds of onions.

The bottom dropping out of a two-gallon jug of oil of tar in the cellar of the Auker drug store, Center Square, on Saturday, allowed the fluid to spread over a big part of the floor and gave the entire building a strong tarish scent.

Taken by Death.

Sister Mary Xavier, of St. Joseph's Convent, McSherrystown, died on Thursday morning after a prolonged illness. The deceased, whose name was Martin, was born in Dublin Ireland, and has been a member of the Order of St. Joseph for 49 years, devoting her life to teaching. She taught in the parochial schools of Lebanon, Mt. Rock and McSherrystown. Interment was made in St. Joseph's Chapel burying ground on Saturday morning.

John W. Mahaley, a well known Hanoverian, died suddenly at his home in that place at 3 o'clock on Friday morning after a brief illness from ptomaine poisoning. He was aged 65 years, 6 months and 2 days. The deceased was a son of the late Frederick H. Mahaley, of Carroll county, Md. The family moved to Hanover 25 years ago. Mr. Mahaley was elected a member of the Hanover Town Council in 1904 and served one term. He was a member of Defiance Commandery Knights of Malta; Pride of Hanover Council, Daughters of Liberty, and the Order of Independent Americans. For 25 years he has been employed as a carpenter by the J. F. Rohrbaugh Co., building contractors. The deceased is survived by his wife and six children.

Allen Eicholtz, aged 33, died at his home in Gettysburg on Thursday morning from meningitis. Mr. Eicholtz was taken sick one week previous and his condition grew steadily worse. Four physicians were called during his illness and several consultations were held. He lapsed into unconsciousness on Tuesday and in a final effort to save his life an operation was performed on Wednesday night. The immediate cause of death was meningitis. He was a son of Samuel and Laura V. Eicholtz, and was born in Cumberland township. He served a portion of an enlistment in the United States Army, being discharged on account of physical disability. He leaves his mother, his wife; a sister, Miss Grace Eicholtz, and a step-daughter.

Mrs. Carrie Collins, wife of Alexander Collins, aged 69 years, 5 months and 11 days, died at her home in Cumberland township, Friday night from a complication of diseases, after an illness of ten days. She leaves her husband, a son, Zenas Collins, at home; and one daughter, Mrs. L. Snyder, 115, Gettysburg; also three brothers, Addison P. and Henry Johnson, of Bairdstown, Ohio; and Albert Johnson, of Van Wert, Ohio.

The infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Ambrose Wagaman, of Cumberland township, died at their home on Friday morning, aged nine months.

Taken suddenly ill with a form of heart trouble on Saturday morning, Mrs. Salthe Martin DeLone, wife of Louis DeLone, died at 6 o'clock p. m. on the same, at her home in Harrisburg, aged 62 years. Mrs. DeLone, a native of New Oxford, was the eldest daughter of the late Franklin J. Martin, of North Peters street. She was united in marriage with Mr. DeLone in 1870 since with time she has resided in Harrisburg. Besides her husband, she leaves five daughters and seven sons, all residing in Harrisburg except two of the sons who live in Philadelphia. One of the sons, married on Thursday morning, with his bride, were off on a wedding tour when he received the sad news of the sudden death of his mother. A. J. Martin, of near the cross-pikes; F. L. Martin, of Seven Hundred; Mrs. Chas. Rinehart, of near town; Misses Elizabeth and Bertha Martin, of North Peters street, are half brothers and sisters of deceased. The funeral was held on Tuesday morning, interment being made at Harrisburg.

Miss Mary Criner, aged 85, for the past nine years a resident at the Old Ladies' Department at the County Home, died on Tuesday. She leaves one daughter, Mrs. Jones, of Mt. Holly Springs. Interment was made in the home cemetery on Thursday.

The infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Emory Wolf, formerly of New Oxford, died at their home in Midway, Saturday noon, aged 18 days. Interment was made in Mt. Olivet cemetery, Hanover, on Monday.

Mrs. Emma Whitaker, wife of Samuel W. Whitaker, died at her home in Baltimore, on Saturday evening, after a two weeks' illness. She was aged 39 years, deceased was a daughter of Wm. and Mary Drecher, and was born and spent her early life near Swartz's schoolhouse. Since her marriage 18 years ago, she has resided in Baltimore. She leaves her husband, her parents and a number of brothers and sisters.

Mrs. Elizabeth Lilly died at the County Home at 11 o'clock Monday morning, aged 88 years. She had been a resident at the home for almost 7 years. She was formerly of Latimore township and leaves a daughter, Miss Elmira Lilly, of York Springs.

James S. McGuigan, of York, brother of David McGuigan, of Gettysburg, died at his home on Saturday evening, aged 71 years. He was stricken with apoplexy Thursday while at work at the plant of the York Wall Paper Co.

Moving Here and There.

Harry Weaver and family have moved from Midway to his mother's home in McSherrystown.

John Hahn and John Stover have moved from East Berlin to Hanover.

Albert Bendick and family have moved from the home of George Greasy, in Berwick township to the property of Chas. R. Altland, in Abbottstown, which they formerly occupied.

J. L. Shaffer, of Hanover, moved the barber shop fixtures of William Buddington, from Union Bridge to McSherrystown, where they will be stored for the present. Mr. Buddington is employed at his trade in York.

C. C. Ziegler and family have moved to East Berlin from Harrisburg. Mr. Ziegler has assumed a position as book-keeper for the East Berlin Milling Company.

C. M. Stough, will this week remove his family from one of the Plymire houses, on West High street, to his farm near Heidersburg. Mr. Stough's successor as mail carrier on Route 2 from the local office has not as yet been named.

John A. Halter, teacher of the Pine Grove School in Union township, has resigned on account of ill health, and his place has been filled by the election of Miss Wolf, of Silver Run.

The Sick.

Marguerite, 8-year-old daughter of Pius Wagaman, McSherrystown, who had been sick with scarlet fever and diphtheria, is able to be about.

Sylvester Rider and Earl Weaver, of McSherrystown, have been on the sick list. Jerome Golden, of Bonneauville is reported to be critically ill from a complication of diseases.

Mrs. John Criswell, of Round Hill, is convalescing from a recent spell of sickness.

Wm. Wolf, of York, son of Aaron Wolf, of Abbottstown, is ill with typhoid fever.

Citizens of Adams County

Go to your Bank and buy a Liberty Bond. Your country needs your aid and is now calling on you.

The soldier's duty is to fight—our's to keep him fit to fight.
The nation needs your money, not as a gift, but to secure the moral lesson of your being back of your government in this righteous war, by taking part of its loan which is absolutely secure, bearing 4 per cent. interest and non taxable.

If you have not the ready money, you can subscribe and pay same by installments. Heed the following editorial of a leading Philadelphia daily. S. McC. SPORE, Local Chairman.
DON'T BE A BOND SLACKER.

Your country is at war, not only for its own preservation—for the very life of its liberty-loving institutions—but for the world safety against the brute forces which the Prussian autocrats have let loose.

Every man who does not go to the front is in duty bound to respond to the appeal of the Secretary of the Treasury to buy bonds. Every woman is expected to do her share.

Only a few days are left. Don't put off your purchase. And after all what is it you are asked to do? To give of your savings? Not a bit of it.
You are not asked to contribute one cent to the government, but to invest your money in absolutely safe securities which will yield you a steady income of four per cent.

It is a plain business proposition which is entwined with patriotism.

W. A. DIEHL.

Local Boy in Good Spirit.

Randolph Wolf, a member of the 4th
Penna Inf. band, Columbia, now stationed at Ft. Hancock, Ga., writes his mother, Mrs. S. J. Wolf, Lincoln Way, East, that he has been busy playing in Augusta churches with the orchestra, has had several invitations out to dinner with well-to-do people where he was served by "nigger" waitresses, and has been taken out for auto rides and treated fine in every way in the South. He writes "We get no chicken nor turkey at camp, but get good plain eats. Sometimes we can't eat a little more, but very seldom. The only thing we miss a little is spreading.
(We don't often get butter) and if anyone up there wants to send some once in a while it surely will get used up. One Columbia girl sent me a sponge cake and another a box of candy—it all goes pretty good down here! I don't have any kick coming in the army, and the boys up there ought to look at the matter in the best light. I really like it for it is all new and interesting and I haven't once wished that I would not be here." Young Wolf said they were recently visited by a violent rainstorm but luckily escaped being washed out, as were very many of the boys in camp. A sweater, he continues, feels comfortable. The letter is concluded with a happy paragraph about "Pay day yesterday!"

The Food Administration forecasts no relief in the sugar shortage before December and makes a further plea for economy in its use. People are asked not to pay a cent more than they have been.
Retailers should be able to sell it "around nine cents", says Hoover, who lays the blame on Americans' extravagance, and the great demand from France. City grocers refused to sell more than a pound to any one person and, when the women started to go from store to store buying some at each place, the grocers refused to sell to any but their regular customers.
Western beet sugar manufacturers say they will be able to relieve the sugar shortage in the West, Middle West, and South West in a few days, but that the remainder of the United States will have to wait from 60 to 90 days.

Sitting at the window of a darkened parlor, brooding over the misfortune to her husband, who had fractured two ribs in a 35-foot fall from a scaffold, and expecting a messenger announcing the death of her son, Paul S. Raub, of fever in Argentine, Mrs. Grant Raub, of Red Lion, on Wednesday night at 8 o'clock was startled to see her son descend from a trolley car and approach the house. He was only 5 hours behind a telegram to his parents stating that he was dying of fever in Argentina, where he was employed in the consular service at $1800 per year. Mrs.
Raub's welcome to her son was almost hysterical. Young Raub had the fever four months ago. At that time he requested a telegram be sent his parents.

Thursday evening about 5 o'clock two automobiles, one driven by Jerry Sunday, and the other by a Gettysburg man, collided head on in front of the home of Dr.
Stanbaugh at Thomasville. In the Gettysburg car was a party of soldiers, enroute to York. Mr. Sunday, who is employed at the Thomasville stone and lime plant, and when on his way home, and had just driven on the pike from a side road, when the soldiers' machine approached. A house at the intersection of the two roads obstructed the view of both drivers. Although the occupants cars were shaken up, no one was seriously injured. Both automobiles were disabled.

Seven prisoners were given a hearing
Friday afternoon before Mayor Hagen-tugler, York, on charges of selling liquor without a license and held for the action of the grand jury. The evidence produced was regarded as sufficient to prove that the defendants had procured liquor which they sold to soldiers from the Gettysburg cantonment. They will also have to face charges of selling liquor to soldiers.
The alleged offenders consequently face the possibility of a double penalty. They were all recommitted to jail in default of bail.

Local widows of veterans of the Civil war, the war with Spain and the Philippine insurrection are soon to have their pensions raised to $25 per month. Congress on October 6th, adopted an amendment to the pension law providing for the rate of pension for a widow of an officer or enlisted man of the army, navy or marine corps who served in these wars.
Applications are not required from those entitled to the increase. Prompt action will be taken.

Straying from the home of Mrs. Elizabeth Bixler in Hanover, on Saturday, a half grown cat was later found in Mc Sherrytown. In response to a lost ad in a Hanover newspaper, 20 cats of every variety were brot to the home of the owner for inspection.

Camp Libraries to Supply Soldiers With Best Reading Matter

Nothing is being left undone for the comfort and mental recreation of the men who are preparing to serve their country in the various training camps and cantonments throughout the country. The Y. M. C. A. was early in the field and besides its many activities, providing for the moral and spiritual welfare of the men, it did all it could to provide proper reading matter for them. But the need of libraries furnished in a more adequate and scientific way was so largely felt that the United States government requested the American Library association to undertake the work.

At once, it was decided to raise a million-dollar war fund; not so much for the purchase of books as for the erection of suitable library buildings at every cantonment; for the transportation of books and for the purpose of securing the service of skilled librarians. The first step in the formation of the organization in charge of the million-dollar war fund was the appointment by Secretary of War Newton D. Baker of ten nationally known men and women to constitute a library war council.

United, and co-operating with the war service committee are most of the prominent authors of the United States; practically all of the publishers, who have proved willing volunteers; and practically all of the leading members of the library profession. All these are working in conjunction with the library war council, the commission on training camp activities and the war department itself.

One of the heaviest items of expense at the beginning of the work is the erection of 82 camp-library buildings at the various cantonments throughout the country. Each building will be 40 by 120 feet in size, one-story high, and will have accommodations for 8,000 or 10,000 books, newspapers and magazines, and living quarters for the staff. It is hoped and expected that each of these libraries will be in charge of a trained librarian. In each camp it is planned to have a library headquarters with books and periodicals for reading-room use, together with a system of distributing agencies; affording to the soldiers a kind of first-class city public library service.

A careful survey of the entire field determined that $1 is the amount necessary for the purchase, maintenance and circulation of one book. One dollar, it has been figured, will furnish a book, keep it in circulation until it is worn out, replace it when it is retired for physical disability, and all the time pay a share of the expense of properly housing and caring for these libraries in the various camps.

It is not to be imagined that the stupendous task of furnishing the soldiers with books; equipping, establishing and maintaining libraries, both stationary and traveling, is undertaken with, primarily, an educational idea. The books are needed not only to provide recreation for the soldiers when they are off duty, but to help counteract evil influences in the vicinities of the camps and cantonments. Books to read will help to make the camps so wholesome and attractive that the forces that tend to take men away from their duty will lose, at least part, of their charm.

There is no desire on the part of the American Library association nor the library war council to thrust educational books at the heads of men already tired from training and from fighting and who would desire recreation rather than the acquisition of knowledge. The aim has been and will be to provide in abundance volumes of short stories and novels of the more popular sort; and these when they are purchased, from the present fund, will be selected with all the acumen that comes to men whose lives have been spent in library service. A tentative list has already been prepared, and that it is tremendously democratic may be gleaned from the fact that it starts out with W. J. Abbot's "Battlefields and Camp Fires" and includes novels by George Ade, Balzac, John Kendrick Bungs, James M. Barrie, Rex Beach, Hilaire Belloc, William Black, Booth Tarkington, Meredith Nicholson, Robert W. Chambers, Hall Caine, Winston Churchill, G. K. Chesterton, Wilkie Collins, Irvin Cobb, Marion Crawford, Richard Harding Davis, Charles Dickens, W. M. Thackeray, Conan Doyle, Lord Dunsany, Jeffrey Farquhar, Edna Ferber, Montague Glass and—but one could go on and make a list of practically all the popular American and foreign authors and that list would probably prove a pretty accurate catalogue of the books that are to be furnished the American soldier, wherever he may be, by the library war council.

Mrs. Thomas Watt Gregory, wife of the attorney general of the United States, in the uniform of the food administration. walls of the city of Tsinkiangpu. The grain warehouses of the town, a place of 200,000 inhabitants, were overflowing with wheat, maize and rice, and these supplies were constantly on display; yet there were no riots. The thousands outside the walls sat themselves down to die, while those within continued to transact the ordinary affairs of everyday life.

During this famine parents found it necessary to sell their daughters to wealthy families in which they became slave girls. Early in the period of distress girls of ten to fifteen years of age brought as much as $20 each, but when the suffering was most severe the customary quotation in the slave market was 60 cents each, while in one instance a father is known to have accepted 14 cents and two bowls of rice in exchange for his child.

Something New.

Peru was the first country to add instruction in aviation to its public school curriculum.

A new electric fan can be used on a desk or attached to a wall without changing any of its parts.

Concrete floors can be made almost noiseless by covering them with heavy tar paper, attached by cement.

European factories each week make about 10,000,000 pounds of artificial butter with coconut oil as a base.

Separate wind shields for each of the two seats it contains features a new English motorcycle side car.

A French scientist is trying to prevent fogs by floating small quantities of oil on rivers to check evaporation.

Spring buffers hold new shade rollers in position in a window without the use of tools or marring the woodwork.

Platinum deposits recently discovered in Spain are believed to be greater and richer than those of the Ural mountains, which furnish the greater part of the world's supply.

The New Order.

She (belligerently)—Why weren't you at the station with the car to meet me as usual?

He (meekly)—My dear, you ought to get into this habit of some needless days.

To the Boys Who Were Drafted

By HAPSBURG LIEBE of the Vigilantes.

The writer of this little message to you, boys, has himself been an American soldier, and he is very proud of that fact. He knows army life, and he has seen red-hot fighting, and he knows the ways of officers. I will put it like this: I will simply tell you what I would do if I were going into the army again. First, I would go into it with the rock-firm intention of whipping Germany. I would look at the matter just like that. Save that I would certainly not discount the importance of anybody else, I would believe, so far as it was possible, that it was up to me—to me, myself—to give Germany, the earth's pariah nation, the licking that is going to make all nations safe in a world democracy.

And the moment I was sworn into the service, I would resolve that, no matter whether it suited me or not, I would obey orders very strictly and to the letter. That is the magic phrase—it is the religion of the army: obey orders. During my time in the army, no man who lived up to that as his motto could go through with a term of enlistment without having a chance of being made a corporal, or a sergeant, or even a sergeant major. There are few commissioned officers who will overlook the enlisted man who never disobeys an order, when promotion becomes necessary. And in this war, men from the ranks are going to win commissions, boys; remember that!

But every man of the company, or the troop, or the battery, or whatever it happens to be, cannot be advanced, you say; and you are right. But every man can be a soldier. How much there is bound up in those three little words! You'll know yourself, after awhile. A real, dyed-in-the-wool American soldier, of course, is a gentleman, too. . . .

However, there is bound to be a chance to win your chevrons. I've never yet seen the man who tried hard for promotion, if he tried honorably, who came out of it a private. In spite of their bluff military manners, officers are just like you under the skin; they are quick to recognize, and they are most heartily glad to recognize, the golden qualities of a soldier and a gentleman in an enlisted man. Remember that too!

Also, remember this: You are in the service to fight for your country, and not to make soldiering a trade; you are going across the Atlantic for the purpose of whipping Germany, and for no other reason. So long, boys, and good luck to you; and may the good God of our fathers bring you back to us!

Mother's Cook Book.

It's a gray old world if you're great. And a mean old world if you're small. It's a world full of hate For the foolish who hate Of the uselessness of it all.

Beet Relish.

Take a quart of chopped, cooked beets, two cupfuls of sugar, a quart of chopped cabbage, a cupful of horseradish and a cupful of chopped celery. Cover with cold vinegar and seal. This will keep all winter and makes a very good relish.

Oatmeal Soup.

Take three-fourths of a cupful of left-over cooked oatmeal, one medium-sized onion, a tablespoonful of butter, a fourth of a teaspoonful of celery seed, one-half a bay leaf, two cupfuls of water or stock, two cupfuls of milk, salt and pepper to taste. Cook the onion in the butter until soft. Add the bay leaf, celery seed, oatmeal and milk and water. Boil up and strain, season with salt and pepper and serve on hot buttered toast.

Cereal Coffee.

Mix together two quarts of bran, one quart of whole-ground cornmeal and one cupful of molasses until it resembles moist brown sugar. Turn the mixture into two large dripping pans and brown slowly in the oven, stirring often. When done it will be a rich seal-brown color. Store in fruit jars. Use two tablespoonfuls to a cupful and a half of water and boil 20 minutes. This is especially good for the children who think they must indulge in coffee when the grown-ups have it.

Corn Patties.

Take a half-cupful of corn, three cupfuls of chopped ham, one beaten egg, and a dash of pepper. Form into cakes and fry brown on both sides.

Pecan Macaroons.

Grind a cupful of pecan meats and eight soda crackers through the meat chopper, using the fine knife. Beat the whites of two eggs, add a cupful of sugar, a tablespoonful of cocoa, a teaspoonful of vanilla, then the ground nuts and crackers. Bake in a moderate oven 20 minutes. Coconut could be used in place of the pecans if preferred.

Celery on Toast.

Some Superstitions That Have to Do With Love and Marriage Refuse to Die.

No superstitions persist more strongly than those which concern love. Many people who in general understand the absurdity of folk signs are yet somewhat influenced by those which have to do with the affections. Here are some of the typical superstitions of love and prospective marriage. It will be observed that the great majority apply to the feminine rather than the masculine sex.

If a boy pulls a hair from a girl's head she will always love him. If a girl buries a boy's hair and her own together under a stone he will love her always. The wearing of a wasp's nest in a girl's clothes will cause her lover's affection for her to increase.

If some one takes the combings from your hair she will also take your sweetheart. Similarly, if a girl steps on your heel she is trying to supplant you in your sweetheart's affections. A boy should not give his sweetheart a pair of shoes, for, if he does, she will walk away from him.

If a bramble catches in your skirt a widower is in love with you. The sight of a blue-eyed dog is a sign that your next lover will be white-headed. As many times as you can pop your knuckles, so many lovers have you.

The finding of a one-leaf clover indicates that you are about to get a letter from your sweetheart. If you find a two-leaf clover you will receive a kiss from your sweetheart. If your upper lip itches you will soon be kissed by a tall man.

Great Heat Loss on Ocean Ships Is Held Unavoidable.

On all sea-going steamers the steam is condensed by sea water pumped through the surface condensers. This circulating water is then discharged overboard. In the process of condensation the cooling water, taken in at temperatures varying from 32 to 88 degrees Fahrenheit, according to climatic and other conditions, is raised to temperatures varying from 80 to 120 degrees and then discharged.

This great loss of heat is practically unavoidable, says the Popular Science Monthly. Even on comparatively small steamers hundreds of tons of heated water are pumped overboard daily.

Oldest American City.

The first permanent European settlement in the United States was founded September 8, 1565. Menendez de Aviles had arrived on the coast of Florida on St. Augustine's day in that year, and accordingly he gave the name of that saint to the city he founded. The founding was accompanied by much pomp and display. Accompanied by his chaplain, arrayed in rich sacerdotal robes, Menendez went ashore, followed by numerous ecclesiastics and "gentlemen," while flags waved, cannons roared, drums beat and trumpets sounded. Menendez planted the royal standard in the sands, beside which the chaplain placed the large cross he had carried. With such consecration Menendez laid the foundation of the city of St. Augustine. Only a human sacrifice was needed to give the city a proper start, so the Spaniards sallied forth and slew Jean Ribault and his company of French Huguenots. St. Augustine now has a population of about 6,000 and is known chiefly as winter resort.

POULTRY POINTERS

Two weeks is long enough to fatten a fowl if highly fed.

Late hatched chicks should be fed by themselves, not with a larger stock.

No man can raise poultry and produce eggs at so low a cost as the farmer.

Store away some oats, wheat or rye in the sheaves for the use of the hen in the winter.

Both hens and pullets need to be well cared for during the fall months—winter eggs are wanted.

Fowls should never be kept in such quarters that they cannot take sufficient exercise to promote digestion.

Repair the poultry house if eggs are desired in winter. The first cold weather should find all in good condition.

It does not pay to kill and sell young turkeys until they are well developed.

Young ducks that are to be kept for sale as breeders should have plenty of range and two fair feeds each day.

Do not feed small chicks with big ones, or the latter will get most of the feed and the smaller ones most of the hungry.

Japanese Eat Ice.

The Japanese are probably the only civilized people in the world who eat ice in the way they do. Blocks of small cakes of ice smashed into tiny pebbly pieces are eaten with sugar and lemon or any other mixture one may fancy. But by far the commonest way of eating ice is to shave into snowy flakes by means of a plane and swallow it with sweetened water into which various appetizers may be thrown, such as fruit juice or sweetmeats, says the Japanese Advertiser. Ice cream, milk and eggs shaken with ice, and other kinds of cooling beverages are sold in an ever-increasing quantity, but the old style of eating ice—that is, in the above described "korimidzu" fashion—is still in the greatest vogue. Every summer finds the number of kori shops swelling at an enormous ratio.

Havana's Orphans.

A whole series of romances could be written round the strange little opening in the wall below the iron-barred window through which infants enter Havana's great orphan asylum at La Beneficencia, says a writer in Wide World Magazine. Parents, guardians, and others desirous of getting rid of infants place them within the boxlike compartment, which is really a stile. They then give the stile a turn, which has the effect of ringing a bell in the building, announcing to the sister on duty the advent of another little foundling. The identity of the person who brings the child is never known, and every infant deserted in this way is nourished and cared for by the kindly sisters. Some of Havana's most prosperous citizens were brought up in this institution.

Spoiled His Alibi.

Charging her husband with abusing her, Mrs. Halseum produced a handful of hair which she declared he pulled out of her head.

"Why," said the magistrate, examining the mass, "with the exception of a few strands of woman's hair, this is apparently part of the prisoner's whiskers."

"Them's his whiskers, sure enough, yer worship," she replied. "I took this so that he couldn't prove an alibi—he's such a liar he'd swear any 'tain'."

the front doorstep the first morning, and said disgustedly:

"Ma, that milk is no good at all—there's scum on it!"

Just Ordinary Weapons.

Judge—Describe what passed between you in the quarrel with your wife.

Witness—The plates and cups were regular dinner size, your honor.

She—I don't believe I could ever learn to love you, you are so distant. He—Well, I'll come nearer if you'll let me.

No Rustlers.

"Every man should have the right to enjoy life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness."

"Some men ain't satisfied with the pursuit of happiness," declared Uncle Pennywise.

"Huh?"

Every Bird and Beast Makes A Noise That's All Its Own.

If a complete list could be made of the distinctive names by which the noises produced by birds and beasts are called, it would be found that there are few duplicates. We may judge this even by the most common, says an exchange. The horse neighs the sheep bleats the cow lows, the pig grunts and squeals the turkey gobbles the hen cackles, the cock crows, the goose hisses, the duck quacks the cat mews, the dog barks, the wolf howls, the lion roars the bull bellows, the sparrow chirps, the pigeon coos, the frog croaks, the rook caws, the monkey chatters, the elephant trumpets, the camel grunts, the stag calls, the rabbit screams—only when wounded, the donkey brays, the bee hums, the fly buzzes, the grasshopper chirrups, the swallow twitters, the chick peeps, the bound bay and the owl hoots.

Perhaps the best word for the sound a cricket makes is used by Tennyson,

One Might While Away Idle Hours Reading One of These.

Which is the longest poem in the world? One generally regards "Paradise Lost" as pretty lengthy, and Thomson's "Seasons" and Cowper's "Task." But these are short compared with Spenser's "Faerie Queene," which is easily the longest poem in existence, even as it stands, and had he attained his object and reached the twenty-fourth book, no other poem would have been "in it."

It is only a quarter of the original plan, yet it is as long as the Iliad, the Odyssey, and the Aeneid put together, twice as long as Dante's "Divine Comedy," and three times as long as "Paradise Lost" and "Paradise Regained" in one.

The longest novel in the world belongs to Japan. Its author is Klong Te Bakin. It was commenced in 18-2, and published volume by volume as it came out over a period of fifty years. There are 100 volumes, 100,000 pages, 3,180,000 lines, and about 38,000,000 words. A complete copy weighs 130 pounds.

Chinese Docile Starvers.

No other race is as docile as the Chinese in times of famine, according to the National Geographic Magazine. Their resignation in the face of calamity is amazing. For instance, in the food shortage of 1906-7 a starving army of 300,000 peasants camped beneath the

YOU know there's a difference in coal. There's a difference in kerosene, too. The one kerosene that always gives a bright, clean, odorless mellow light or a steady, warming heat without smoke, sputter or charring of wicks is called Rayolight Oil. Why? To distinguish it from ordinary kerosenes. It's so highly refined and purified that it gives these perfect results yet costs no more than the other kinds.

Instead of just asking for kerosene, look for the dealer who has this sign on his store: "Atlantic Rayolight Oil for Sale Here." You'll find it a quality store—a good place to do most of your buying.

It's a scientific fact that, of any artificial light, a kerosene lamp is the most restful and pleasing to the eyes.

The right of Governor Brumbaugh to appoint until the close of the next session of the Senate four of the state officials whom he appointed on July 9 to the offices for which the Senate, which had adjourned a few weeks before, had refused confirmation, is upheld by Judge Kunkle, of the Dauphin county court, in an opinion handed down on Thursday. The opinion was given in the manner prayed by Banking Commissioner Daniel Lafean to compel Auditor General Snyder to honor warrants from him. The court overrules Snyder's motion to quash the proceeding and awards the pre-emptory mandamus. Judge McCarrell made similar rulings in the cases of Supt. of Printing Long, Fisheries Com. Ruller and Sec. of Agriculture Patton, the Lafean case governing them.

MRS. SMITH RECOMMENDS CHAMBERLAIN'S TABLETS.—"I have had more or less stomach trouble for eight or ten years," writes Mrs. G. H. Smith, Brewerton, N. Y. "When suffering from attacks of indigestion and heaviness after eating, one or two of Chamberlain's Tablets have always relieved me. I have also found them a pleasant laxative." "These tablets tone up the stomach and enable it to perform its functions naturally. If you are troubled with indigestion, give them a trial, get well and stay well."

Jumping from the bushes along the tracks of the trolley line near Thurmont and placing her head on the rail when the car was but half a length away, Mrs. Sarah Wastler, 62, wife of David Wastler, said to have been mentally deranged, on Tuesday morning had her head severed from her body. Death was instantaneous. The suicide was coldly premeditated, the authorities have no doubt. Eight children survive.

CHAMBERLAIN'S COUGH REMEDY THE MOST RELIABLE.—After many years' experience in the use of it and other cough remedies, there are many who prefer Chamberlain's to any other. Mrs. A. C. Kirslein, Greenville, Ill., writes, "Chamberlain's Cough Remedy has been used in my mother's house and mine for years, and we always found it a quick cure for colds and bronchial troubles. We find it to be the most reliable cough medicine we have used."

Gettysburg has notified the Blue Ridge League it would not be back next year. Hanover is doubtful. Ten per cent of Hanover's regular games amounted to $298.81; ten per cent of Gettysburg, $171.87; Hanover contributed $61.14 from holiday games; Gettysburg $35.77. Gettysburg was low, Frederick next, and Hanover third low. Hagerstown led in receipts.

SOUR STOMACH.—Eat slowly, masticate your food thoroughly, abstain from meat for a few days and in most cases the sour stomach will disappear. If it does not, take one of Chamberlain's Tablets immediately after supper. Red meats are most likely to cause sour stomach and you may find it best to cut them out.

The dog license code of 1917 provides a system of licenses and regulations for all dogs especially those in the country, which must be penned up and used in their proper place as watch dogs except when hunting. The dog roaming about and attacking sheep is to be exterminated. It is believed the counties will cooperate when sheep commence to increase.

CHOUR.—If your children are subject to croup get a bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, and when the attack comes on be careful to follow the plain printed directions. You will be surprised at the quick relief which it affords.

The proposal that the government take 65 per cent of all incomes over $1,000,000 hasn't produced any excitement in New Oxford.

Citizens of Adams County

Go to your Bank and buy a Liberty Bond. Your country needs your aid and is now calling on you.

The soldier's duty is to fight—our's to keep him fit to fight. The nation needs your Money, not as a gift, but to secure the moral lesson of your being back of your government in this righteous war, by taking part of its loan which is absolutely secure, bearing 4 per cent. interest and non taxable.

If you have not the ready money, you can subscribe and pay same by installments. Heed the following editorial of a leading Philadelphia daily.

S. McC. SWOPE, Local Chairman.

DON'T BE A BOND SLACKER.

Your country is at war, not only for its own preservation—but for the very life of its liberty-loving institutions—but for the world safety against the brute forces which the Prussian autocrats have let loose.

Every man who does not go to the front is in duty bound to respond to the appeal of the Secretary of the Treasury to buy bonds. Every woman is expected to do her share.

Only a few days are left. Don't put off your purchase. And after all what is it you are asked to do? To give of your savings? Not a bit of it. You are not asked to contribute one cent to the government, but to invest your money in absolutely safe securities which will yield you a steady income of four per cent.

It is a plain business proposition which is entwined with patriotism.

Local Boy In Good Spirit.

Randolph Wolf, a member of the 4th Penna Inf. band, Columbia, now stationed at Ft. Hancock, Ga., writes his mother, Mrs. S. J. Wolf, Lincoln Way, East, that he has been busy playing in Augusta churches with the orchestra, has had several invitations out to dinner with well-to-do people where he was served by "nigger" waitresses, and has been taken out for auto rides and treated fine in every way in the South. He writes "We get no chicken nor turkey at camp, but get good plain eats. Sometimes we could eat a little more, but very seldom. The only thing we miss a little is spreadings. (We don't often get butter) and if anyone up there wants to send some once in a while it surely will get used up. One Columbia girl sent me a sponge cake and another a box of candy—it all goes pretty good down here! I don't have any kick coming in the army, and the boys up there ought to look at the matter in the best light. I really like it for it is all new and interesting and I haven't once wished that I would not be here." Young Wolf said they were recently visited by a violent rainstorm but luckily escaped being washed out, as were very many of the boys in camp. A sweater, he continues, feels comfortable. The letter is concluded with a happy paragraph about "Pay day yesterday!"

The Food Administration forecasts no relief in the sugar shortage before December and makes a further plea for economy in its use. People are asked not to pay a cent more than they have been. Retailers should be able to sell it "around nine cents", says Hoover, who lays the blame on Americans' extravagance, and the great demand from France. City grocers refused to sell more than a pound to any one person and, when the women started to go from store to store buying some at each place, the grocers refused to sell to any but their regular customers. Western beet sugar manufacturers say they will be able to relieve the sugar shortage in the West, Middle West, and South-West in a few days, but that the remainder of the United States will have to wait from 60 to 90 days.

Sitting at the window of a darkened parlor, brooding over the misfortune to her husband, who had fractured two ribs in a 35-foot fall from a scaffold, and expecting a messenger announcing the death of her son, Paul S. Raub, of fever in Argentine, Mrs. Grant Raub, of Red Lion, on Wednesday night at 8 o'clock was startled to see her son descend from a trolley car and approach the house. He was only 5 hours behind a telegram to his parents stating that he was dying of fever in Argentine, where he was employed in the consular service at $1800 per year. Mrs. Raub's welcome to her son was almost hysterical. Young Raub had the fever four months ago. At that time he requested a telegram be sent his parents.

Thursday evening about 5 o'clock two automobiles, one driven by Jerry Sunday, and the other by a Gettysburg man, collided head on in front of the home of Dr. Stambaugh at Thomasville. In the Gettysburg car was a party of soldiers, enroute to York. Mr. Sunday, who is employed at the Thomasville stone and lime plant, and when on his way home, and had just driven on the pike from a side road, when the soldiers' machine approached. A house at the intersection of the two roads obstructed the view of both drivers. Although the occupants cars were shaken up, no one was seriously injured. Both automobiles were disabled.

Seven prisoners were given a hearing Friday afternoon before Mayor Hungen-tugler, York, on charges of selling liquor without a license and held for the action of the grand jury. The evidence produced was regarded as sufficient to prove that the defendants had procured liquor which they sold to soldiers from the Gettysburg cantonment. They will also have to face charges of selling liquor to soldiers. The alleged offenders consequently face the possibility of a double penalty. They were all recommitted to jail in default of bail.

Local widows of veterans of the Civil war, the war with Spain and the Philippine insurrection are soon to have their pensions raised to $25 per month. Congress on October 6th, adopted an amendment to the pension law providing for the rate of pension for a widow of an officer or enlisted man of the army, navy or marine corps who served in these wars. Applications are not required from those entitled to the increase. Prompt action will be taken.

Straying from the home of Mrs. Elizabeth Bixler in Hanover, on Saturday, a half grown cat was later found in Mc Sherrytown. In response to a lost ad in a Hanover newspaper, 20 cats of every variety were brot to the home of the owner for inspection.

"Contraband" The Best Sea Story of the War That Has Been Written

By Randall Parrish

Copyright A. C. McClary & Co.

THE INDIAN CHIEF HAS BEEN STRUCK BY LIGHTNING AND IS ALMOST A WRECK—HOLLIS MEETS THE OWNER AND LEARNS SHIP'S DESTINATION

Synopsis—Robert Hollis, who tells the story, is a guest on Girard Carrington's yacht, Esmeralda. It is supposed to be a "stag" party, and Hollis is surprised on discovering a woman, who evidently wishes to remain unknown aboard. She merely tells him her name is Vera. Carrington tells his guests of the coming war, and that he is engineering a copper pool. The yacht is sunk in a collision and Hollis saves McCann, Millionaire, and one of the party. Hollis and McCann rescue Vera and leave the ship in a small boat. McCann refuses to submit to the authority of Hollis, and the latter enforces obedience. The castaways are sighted by a ship, the Indian Chief, which takes them aboard.

"The lady was sent into the cabin, sir, and given a stateroom where she could fix herself up a bit," he answered soberly. "The other feller had a heap of a lot to say, an' seemed to have some sorter grudge against you, I hadn't any time to listen to his yarn, so I naturally turned him over to the bosom, for he had the eye dressed. He must have got a peach o' a swipe, sir."

"I had to hit him—yes; but we can talk of that later. Where is he now?"

"In the galley, sir, where they're heating some water. After they get him fixed up, is he to go aft, or forward?"

"Aft, if you have room to spare; he is no sailorman, but a millionaire from New York; he has money to burn."

The fellow looked at me with his mouth wide open, his glistening eyes almost laughable.

"The devil you say, sir; he don't look the part to my notion. You was all part of a yacht party?"

"Yes, the Esmeralda, a steam yacht, owned by Gerald Carrington of New York. We were run down about a hundred miles east of Montauk by a big liner, which must have been out of her course. She cut us square in two, but, excepting us three, all living on board got away in the boats. By accident we were left, and escaped later in the dinghy."

"What became of the liner?"

"She picked up the boats, and, thinking they had all the survivors, went on. She was a mail boat, likely. The yacht went down five minutes after we left her; we've been afloat ever since. Now, Mr. Masters, that's our story in brief. What's the trouble here?"

"I'll tell you enough to make it clear, sir," he said slowly, "although there is others on board who can explain more in detail. You're a seaman—or was once—so you'll see easily the sorter fix we're in. I'm the only officer left on the hooker, an' I couldn't navigate a ship if you'd give it to me. I'm only the chief engineer, an' my assistant is in the fo'castle with a broken leg. You see that rifle for-rard, sir? Well, it was lightning did that. Two bolts, so the crew says, fer I was down below, an' never knew what happened till the electrics all went out. Then I shut off steam, and clumb out on deck. Lord, but it was a black night, raining cats and dogs, but no wind to speak of. It was the rain what saved us, for fire started yonder—yer can see where it burned—but it died out of itself. When morning come we saw what we was up against; it looked a lot sight worse then than it does now. Them bolts of lightning hed knocked the foremast into smithereens, killed the wheelman, and put the steering gear plumb out o' commission. Then the topmast an' spars just naturally wrecked the bridge, and charthouse, an' the whole mass caught fire. The second officer was in the wheelhouse, sir, an' never knew what hit him, an' both the captain an' the first officer was a standin' together on the bridge. The top mast crushed the life out of 'em. There was six sailormen hurt the same way, an' four o' 'em died. It was the darndest mess I ever saw at sea, sir."

"Bad enough, surely; when did this happen?"

"Night afore last; we've cleaned up a bit since, but the crew won't work much under me an' we're short-handed. I rigged up this wheel, aft, so as to keep an engine going, and hung on, waiting for something to turn up. There wasn't nothing else I could do."

"No, I presume not," and my eyes rested thoughtfully on the scene forward. "How is the hull—sound? You seem sunk deeply."

"That's cargo, sir; full to the hatches. The ship's dry as a bone; have had the well sounded every three hours."

"And what about the crew?"

"Just so, so; a crimp brought them aboard drunk, an' we were not at sea long enough for the mates to whip them into shape when this thing happened. I'm no deck officer, Mr. Hollis, and they don't take orders from me very well. I call 'em a d—d hard lot."

I made no comment, endeavoring to turn all these facts over in my mind, and reach some decision. It was evident enough that was wanted, and how I could best serve; but would they be satisfied with the offer which I felt willing to make? It was far from my desire to assume command of the Indian Chief, and guide her destinies on a long outward voyage, to whatever port her cargo had been consigned. What that port was made slight difference, for my whole desire was to return as quickly as possible to New York. I would, however, assume temporary command, and consent to navigate the vessel to the nearest American port, where a competent skipper might be procured, and a new crew obtained. The Indian Chief possessed no wireless outfit, and whatever I did must be on my own judgment. These considerations flashed swiftly through my mind, and I attained decision before Masters again spoke. I would navigate the boat to the nearest port on the American coast, notify the owners, and then leave them to do as they pleased with vessel and crew. I cared nothing for the salvage; the presence of the disabled steamer in these waters had saved our lives, which was reward enough surely. All I cared for was to get myself and the young lady safe ashore. My thought was interrupted by the sound of Masters' voice.

"It sorter seemed to me, Mr. Hollis," he was saying, "that maybe it would be best for me to explain these things before you went into the cabin. You'll naturally want to know just the condition before you decide what to do."

"I have decided, Masters," I answered briefly. "There is only one thing I can do legally, and that is navigate the Indian Chief to the nearest American port, and surrender her to her owners. As a licensed captain of steam I have authority to assume command to this extent, but no more."

"I reckoned you would look at it that way, sir. I'm no sea lawyer, but I sorter figured it out about as you do. But that ain't the situation exactly."

"What isn't?"

"Why, this owner business, sir. You see, the owner of the Indian Chief, an' every pound o' cargo below hatches, is on board here."

"The owner is on board?"

"That's the gospel truth; that's why I took the trouble to keep you here, and tell you what I have, before you went down and met him, sir. It gives you a chance to think out your best course."

"But if the man is aboard, why did he not appear on deck to give us welcome? Surely our arrival must have been of interest?"

"Likely as not he hasn't even heard yet that you are aboard. You see, his cabin is on the starboard side astern, and he would see nothing from them ports. Besides, Mr. Hollis, he is lame, and it is a bit hard for him to get around on a ship without help. What do you say, sir? Shall we go down now, an' talk it over below?"

"The sooner the better," I said, with a glance over the port rail. "The fog is thickening out yonder, and we may have a rough night. The steamer would ride a heavy sea better with some more of that rifle overboard."

CHAPTER IX.

Contraband of War.

The knowledge that the owner was actually on board changed the entire situation. I would have to argue it out with him undoubtedly, for quite naturally he would object to any return to an American port. Well, I might be in for a disagreeable interview, but I had made up my mind, and it was not to be changed by any bluster or offer of high wages.

"Come on, Masters," I said brusquely. "Let's get this over with."

The after cabin extended from rail to rail, the door opening directly from the main deck. There were two cabins astern, occupying apparently the full width of the vessel, and the engineer rapped with his knuckles on the panel of the nearest door. There was no response, but a second attempt resulted in a voice bidding us enter.

It was a pleasant enough interior, lighted by two ports, but showing no attempt at decoration. A man arose from one of the chairs and faced us, the light from the stern port shining full upon him. He was tall, delicate looking, his features bearing marks of pain, yet certainly not over thirty years of age. He was not at all like what I had expected to see, and I faced him in surprise. He had taken a step toward us, limping slightly, but at sight of a stranger paused.

"Whom have you here, Masters?" he asked, his eyes on my face. "Is there another vessel near us?"

"No, sir," and the engineer stood, hat in hand, awkwardly shifting his weight. "We have picked up some castaways. This man here is Captain Hollis, late of the Atlas line."

"Indeed," he held out his hand to me, his eyes looking directly into mine. "I regret your misfortune, sir, but your coming is a godsend to us. Your ship was wrecked?"

"Sunk in collision," I answered. "But it was not my ship; I have not been to sea for several years in any position of command. On this occasion I was a guest on board a steam yacht belonging to Gerald Carrington of New York. The name of the vessel was the Esmeralda. I need not relate the details just at present, but three of us have been picked up by this ship."

"Three—all passengers?"

"Yes—one was a woman."

"Yet, if I understand Masters aright, you have been in the merchant service?"

"In every capacity; when I retired, I was captain of the freighter Vulcan. He stood silent a moment, thoughtfully considering me, and I could not determine whether or not he was altogether pleased. Finally, having apparently reached some decision, his gaze shifted to the face of the burly engineer.

"I will talk with Captain Hollis," he said quietly, "and perhaps you had better return on deck, Masters, and keep an eye out; the fog thickens, and we are in the track of ships."

"Very well, sir."

As the door closed behind the engineer's bulky figure, the owner motioned me to a chair, while he took another himself.

"I hardly know how best to approach my subject," he said soberly. "If you were merely a shipwrecked merchant captain, I could make you a rather attractive offer; but, as you have retired from the sea, that would probably prove no special inducement."

"The pay, you mean? Well, hardly; I have no desire for a berth."

"So I supposed, or else you would scarcely have been one of Carrington's guests for a yachting cruise. I presume Masters told you the fix we are in?"

"Yes, as strange an accident as I ever heard of at sea. You have got to have a navigator, and I am perfectly willing to serve you so far as I can. I owe you this for picking us up from an open boat. With your permission, sir, and without mentioning pay, I will agree to take command of the Indian Chief, and sail her to the nearest American port, where you can procure officers, and, if necessary, a new crew."

He sat silent, one white hand crumpling a paper on the desk, his forehead creased, the lines of his face showing clearly. He appeared to hesitate, uncertain how best to answer me.

"I—I certainly appreciate your offer, Captain Hollis. It is a most liberal one, because, if I know anything of maritime law, you would be justly entitled to high compensation for thus saving both ship and cargo. I had intended offering you—at least that was my first thought—the sum of three hundred a month to take command, the contract to remain in force after the conclusion of this voyage, if you so desired. This you will not consider? The money argument has no weight?"

I smiled, but shook my head.

"Then there is nothing left me, except to appeal to your humanity," he went on, leaning forward, his eyes on mine. "You belong, I suspect, to my class, and I can give you my confidence, trust you with my secret. Is this not true?"

"I hope I am worthy of such faith,"

I answered wonderingly, as he paused.

"I repose that faith in you, and ask you to face this situation from my standpoint. I am the sole owner of the Indian Chief, and also of her cargo. Every dollar I possess on this earth is tied up on board this vessel. That is why I sailed as supercargo; I dare not trust the venture to anyone else. Under the hatches I have a cargo valued at nearly half a million dollars. It was purchased and shipped on the strength of a contract signed by a high official of one of the European governments, yet the responsibility of payment rests upon myself and a few intimate friends. If the Indian Chief safely discharges this cargo, within a designated time, at a certain port, or contingent thereto, I shall make a fortune, and retain my honor as a merchant. If not, then I am a ruined man. Mr. Hollis, and my reputation is gone also."

"What port?"

"Hamburg."

I leaned forward, deeply interested by now in his unusual story.

"Then I presume your cargo is largely munitions of war?"

"Of that nature—yes."

"From what port did you sail?"

"Baltimore, July 26th; we were held back within the capes for two days by a severe storm."

"Then you have not heard of the declarations of war in Europe?"

His eyes widened, his pale face grew whiter than ever.

"War in Europe; already declared?"

He exclaimed. "Is that actually true? We carry no wireless, and have spoken with no vessel since we left the Chesapeake. What nations are at war?"

"The last message we received on the Esmeralda was that Germany and Austria were already pitted against France, Russia and England. The German troops had invaded Belgium in an effort to reach Paris. The night before our accident a great British battleship, racing toward New York, passed us. She was under orders to bottle up the German liners. May I see your manifest?"

He took the list from an inner drawer, and handed it over to me without a word, evidently stunned by this unexpected news, and unable to speak. I turned the typewritten pages slowly, glancing quietly over the various items. They were astounding.

"Why, really, I can hardly credit my own eyes," I exclaimed. "You tell me these goods were actually contracted for by the German government agent in the open market?"

"Not exactly in the open market, Mr. Hollis. It was all accomplished in my name; I alone am known in the transaction. Certain intimate personal relations won me the contract, my mother being a relative of a high official. The negotiations were conducted secretly."

"I should suppose so; yet such purchases would look as though war had been anticipated."

I arose to my feet, walked across to the port, and stared out into the thickening mist overhanging the water. The man did not move or speak, and I turned again to find him with head buried in his arms on the desk. His attitude of complete despair was full of pathetic appeal.

"I am no international lawyer," I said gravely, "but there is scarcely an item on that manifest which is not contraband of war. The getting of this cargo into Hamburg, or any other port of Germany now, will be almost impossible—a mere gambler's chance. English and French vessels are no doubt gathering along the coast like birds of prey."

"The German navy is strong."

"Yes; but not strong enough to cope with both Great Britain and France. For a while, however, they may succeed in keeping open a passage through the North sea. That would be your only hope, for the English channel will be closed already. The Indian Chief sails under the United States flag?"

"Yes."

"That might prevent a search, providing you had a good explanation ready, especially as you left port before war was declared. However, spies are everywhere, and the nature of the cargo aboard may be known. If so, every cruiser on watch has already been notified by wireless."

He arose to his feet facing me, his slender hands opening and closing nervously, his face white and drawn.

"I realize all this, Captain Hollis," he said, his voice trembling, "and also that there still remains a chance of success. I like your face, your manner of fronting things. I think you are the very man whom God has sent to me in this emergency. Listen: I tell you I am absolutely ruined unless I complete this voyage. I am a young man, not over thirty, but my health is gone. You can see I am practically a physical wreck, yet I am the only support of an aged mother and three younger children. Two years ago no one had brighter prospects in life than I; now I am struggling desperately for mere existence. A little more than a year ago I met with a serious accident; I need not go into details—the result you can see by looking at me. For eight months I was in a hospital in New York, lingering between life and death. There was no one to attend to my business affairs, and everything went to the dogs. When I got out again all that was left me was this vessel, a reputation for business ability, and a few thousand dollars. This contract came to me as a godsend; it was so arranged that I was able to carry it with a little help. If successful, it will put me on my feet again."

"You are not German?"

"Not a drop of Teuton blood is in my veins, so far as I know. I never dreamed of the possibility of war, or even asked the nature of the shipments."

"I understand. Of course it makes little difference where one's sympathies chance to be in a case like this. I put my hand on his shoulder, and looked into his eyes. "You have been perfectly frank with me; now I am going to be just as frank with you. I believe your story, and my whole inclination is to stand by and help you through."

"You will," he interrupted eagerly, his eyes glowing. "You mean you are going to make the attempt?"

"No, I didn't say that, my friend; only that such is my natural inclination. If there was only my own peril, my own time, to be considered, I would shake hands with you instantly, and accept the adventure. But there is another on board this ship to be considered—a woman, whose comfort and wishes I cannot ignore."

"But she could be transhipped?"

"Which would at once reveal our whereabouts and probable course. Any vessel speaking us would make report as soon as it reached harbor. Our only safe method of procedure will be to keep far enough away from any passing vessel during daylight to escape recognition, and to run the main European routes by night. If we so much as speak a ship, it will double our peril of capture; the wireless is our greatest enemy."

"Then what is it you propose doing?"

"Just this: I'll go out now and talk with the lady. I'll explain the whole situation to her fully, so that she will understand every detail."

"But is this fair to me?"

"Yes, perfectly fair. She is no nervous creature to be awed by peril. She is a healthy, sensible girl, ready to do her part anywhere; her sympathy will all be with you. Anyway, I shall leave the affair entirely to her decision. I'll give you my answer in thirty minutes."

As I closed the door and stood outside in the main cabin, it suddenly occurred to me that I did not know the man's name. Masters had not mentioned it; I had not asked, nor did I recall noticing the signature on the manifest.

The next installment tells of Vera's old friendship for Robert Bascom, the steamer's owner, and of the new danger arising from the old and deadly enemy existing between Bascom and McCann.

Clipping With a Pin.

When you lose your knife or do not have a pair of scissors at hand for cutting the paper a common pin or needle of any kind serves the purpose admirably, says Popular Science Monthly. If it is a single sheet from which the clipping is to be removed, lay the part on another paper, hold the pin slantwise so that the point will follow around the clipping, just as if tracing its outline.

Pass back over the scratch with the point in the lead and you will be surprised how smoothly the pin cuts the paper.

Tropical Rains.

Tropical rains are of relatively short duration, the reason of the small number of cyclonic storms in the tropics, and this duration is fairly uniform throughout the year.

The heaviest general rainfalls in Porto Rico are associated with West Indian hurricanes. The historic hurricane of August 8, 1899, precipitated rainfall equivalent to 1,113 tons per acre.

No Exceptions.

The KITCHEN CABINET

If there is any one point which in six thousand years of thinking about right or wrong, wise and good men have agreed upon or successfully by experience discovered, it is that God dislikes idle and cruel people more than any others.—Ruskin.

PALATABLE COLD THINGS.

These are always favorites at all times under most circumstances and conditions.

Oatmeal Beverage.—This is a drink which is especially cooling, and a great favorite on the farm. Take a quart of a pound of oat meal, one cupful of sugar and the strained juice of two lemons. Add a half cupful of boiling water to the oatmeal, mix the other ingredients and pour into a gallon of boiling water, stir well, put through a sieve and chill before serving.

Apple Water.—Core, pare and cut four apples in small pieces, then put them into a pitcher, adding the lemon rind from a small lemon, a quarter of a cupful of sugar and four cupfuls of water, boiling hot; cover the pitcher and let it stand aside to cool.

A table-spoonful of ginger mixed with three of sugar stirred into a pint of iced water makes a fine drink.

Boston Cream.—Take three quarts of boiling water, one and a half pounds of sugar, two teaspoonfuls of lemon extract, two ounces of tartaric acid and the whites of two eggs. Boil the water and allow it to get cold, then stir in the other ingredients, beating the whites until stiff. Mix well and pour into bottles and keep in the ice chest.

When serving, put a pinch of soda in a glass and half fill the tumbler with ice, pour in enough of the cream to fill the glass and drink immediately.

Chocolate Syrup.—Take three squares of chocolate, one ounce of cocoa, one and a half pounds of sugar and a pint of water, one and a half teaspoonfuls of vanilla. Boil the cocoa in a double boiler ten minutes with a half-cupful of water; grate the chocolate and mix it with one-third of its measure in sugar; add this to the boiling cocoa, stirring constantly, then add the remainder of the sugar and boil for ten minutes. Remove from the fire, strain, cool and add the vanilla. This will keep in the ice chest until it is used. A table-spoonful of the syrup added to cold milk or iced water topped with a marshmallow or whipped cream makes a most inviting drink.

It is great who is a bit of a home-maker, and who never ventures out of doors.—Emerson.

LOW-COST DISHES.

While the corn season lasts there are many most appetizing dishes which may be made from it or in combination with other foods.

Fried Corn. Cook the corn for the family, then into the hot bacon fat turn in corn cut from half a dozen ears, stir and mix well. Can add a half-cupful of water, cover and cook slowly until tender. Season with pepper and more salt if needed.

Corn and Tomatoes. Cut the corn from the cob and stew until nearly dry, add a third as much shredded tomatoes as corn, and season, using a teaspoonful of vinegar, a teaspoonful of butter and sugar, and salt and pepper to taste, to one pint of tomatoes. Serve hot. This is a favorite combination with some cooks to put up in cans for winter.

Economical Cake.—Stir together one cupful of flour, two-thirds of a cupful of sugar, one teaspoonful of baking powder and a little salt. In a half-pint measuring cup put a table-spoonful of melted butter, drop in one egg, and fill the cup with milk. Stir into the dry ingredients and beat rapidly two or three minutes. Flavor as desired. Bake in a loaf.

When baking cake, fruit juice may be used in place of milk, which will result in a moist, finely flavored cake.

Corn for the table, if cooked over steam is much better flavored than that allowed to cook in water.

Add peanut butter when cooking fried potatoes, using a table-spoonful to the fat in the pan. It adds variety, and where the flavor is liked makes an appetizing dish.

Purée of Summer Squash.—Slice three onions and cover with two quarts of cold water; when boiling, add a large summer squash cut in thin slices. Let simmer slowly for two hours, then rub through a sieve. Mix one table-spoonful of ground rice or corn starch with a cupful of milk or table-spoonful of butter and seasonings; cook until smooth and add to the soup. Serve hot.

A Bright Clean Odorless Mellow Light

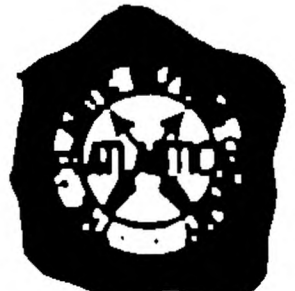

ATLANTIC
Rayolight
OIL

YOU know there's a difference in coal. There's a difference in kerosene, too. The one kerosene that always gives a bright, clean, odorless mellow light or a steady, warming heat without smoke, sputter or charring of wicks is called Rayolight Oil. Why? To distinguish it from ordinary kerosenes. It's so highly refined and purified that it gives these perfect results yet costs no more than the other kinds.

Instead of just asking for kerosene, look for the dealer who has this sign on his store: "Atlantic Rayolight Oil for Sale Here." You'll find it a quality store—a good place to do most of your buying.

It's a scientific fact that, of any artificial light, a kerosene lamp is the most restful and pleasing to the eyes.

The right of Governor Brumbaugh to appoint until the close of the next session of the Senate four of the state officials whom he appointed on July 9 to the offices for which the Senate, which had adjourned a few weeks before, had refused confirmation, is upheld by Judge Kunkle, of the Dauphin county court, in an opinion handed down on Thursday. The opinion was given in the manner prayed by Banking Commissioner Daniel Lafean to compel Auditor General Snyder to honor warrants from him. The court overrules Snyder's motion to quash the proceeding and awards the pre-emptory mandamus. Judge McCarrell made similar rulings in the cases of Sup't. of Printing Long, Fisheries Com. Ruller and Sec. of Agriculture Patton, the Lafean case governing them.

Mrs. SMITH RECOMMENDS CHAMBERLAIN'S TABLETS.—"I have had more or less stomach trouble for eight or ten years," writes Mrs. G. H. Smith, Brewerton, N. Y. When suffering from attacks of indigestion and heaviness after eating, one or two of Chamberlain's Tablets have always relieved me. I have also found them a pleasant laxative. These tablets tone up the stomach and enable it to perform its functions naturally. If you are troubled with indigestion give them a trial, get well and stay well.

Jumping from the bushes along the tracks of the trolley line near Thurmont and placing her head on the rail when the car was but half a length away, Mrs. Sarah Wastler, 62, wife of David Wastler, said to have been mentally deranged, on Tuesday morning had her head severed from her body. Death was instantaneous. The suicide was coldly premeditated the authorities have no doubt. Eight children survive.

CHAMBERLAIN'S COUGH REMEDY THE MOST RELIABLE.—After many years' experience in the use of it and other cough remedies, there are many who prefer Chamberlain's to any other. Mrs. A. C. Kreiten, Greenville, Ill., writes, "Chamberlain's Cough Remedy has been used in my mother's house and mine for years, and we always found it a quick cure for colds and bronchial troubles. We find it to be the most reliable cough medicine we have used."

Gettysburg has notified the Blue Ridge League it would not be back next year. Hanover is doubtful. Ten per cent of Hanover's regular games amounted to $298.81; ten per cent of Gettysburg, $171.87; Hanover contributed $61.14 from holiday games; Gettysburg $35.77. Gettysburg was low, Frederick next, and Hanover third low. Hagerstown led in receipts.

SOUP STOMACH.—Eat slowly, masticate your food thoroughly, abstain from meat for a few days and in most cases the soup stomach will disappear. If it does not, take one of Chamberlain's Tablets immediately after supper. Red meats are most likely to cause soup stomach and you may find it best to cut them out.

The dog license code of 1917 provides a system of license and regulations for all dogs especially those in the country, which must be penned up and used in their proper place as watch dogs except when hunting. The dog roaming about and attacking sheep is to be exterminated. It is believed the counties will cooperate when sheep commence to increase.

GROUP.—If your children are subject to croup get a bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, and when the attack comes on be careful to follow the plain printed directions. You will be surprised at the quick relief which it affords.

The proposal that the government take 65 per cent of all incomes over $1,000,000 hasn't produced any excitement in New Oxford.

Sale to commence at 12:30 o'clock p. m. Terms by MRS. JAMES W. HOOK, S. H. Crawford, Auct.

Enjoys "Item" 'Over There'.

Allen H. Diehl, with an Engineer's regiment in France, recently wrote in part to his parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Diehl of Lincoln Way, West: "I have not received any mail from you since we left the states. Yesterday (September 4th) I received the 12th and 29th July copies of the 'Item'. I will bet it's the farthest the 'Item' has ever traveled. The company I am in has been on the job for about a month and so far I have liked the work I have to do. The country we are in at present is beautiful—very much like California. I have not been sick yet and we have good quarters and eat so far, what I mean for the army in foreign service. The only thing I am kicking about is that we would like to get some American tobacco."

Plot At York.

According to Grier Hersh, President of the York National Bank, a German propaganda is being carried on in York county to hinder the success of the Liberty Loan.

"Germany's agents seem to have a definite plan of action here," declared Mr. Hersh. "There is an attempt to intimidate banks into not subscribing to bonds through threatened withdrawal of deposits."

"There is also a persistent rumor circulated that the United States government will seize the money of depositors of national banks. There is a constant effort to spread the false information that the people are asked to give this money to the government."

Three persons were injured Sunday evening, when an automobile owned and driven by Melvin Keller turned turtle while descending a steep incline on the state highway at a point between Dover and Mt. Royal. Losing control of the machine the car ran into a gutter at the side of the road, where it upset. The injured occupants of the car are Melvin Keller and his 5 year old son, and Mrs. Clarence Stough, none seriously, however. The other passengers were Mrs. Melvin Keller, John Stough and Clarence Graver, all residents of Dover township.

The jury in the case of Daniel Wingert of Chambersburg against the P. & R. R. for damages for the death of his wife and for personal injuries and destruction of his automobile, returned verdicts in favor of Wingert. For the death of his wife the jury gave $2,800 and for injuries to himself and damage to the auto $1,000. The accident happened Jan. 29, 1916, when a train hit the Wingert auto that had stalled on the track. In court Friday a jury awarded Cyrus Carbaugh, also of Chambersburg, $2500 for the death of his wife. She was killed in the same accident.

After Emanuel Smith farm implement dealer, York, left a roll of wire fencing, containing 70 perches, at Martin's lane, Tuesday, so that J. S. Martin, farmer on the B. C. Fair farm, at Thomastown, could get it the next morning, an unknown person "beat Martin to it." When Martin went for the roll of wire, which weighed about 550 pounds, he found nothing there but tracks in the road apparently left by the thief, who used an automobile to haul it away.

The Mont Alto and Caledonia sections seem to be trying all new and novel methods of deer depopulation. Caledonia station killed a doe on the Lincoln Highway with an automobile the other night. Then an electric car within 24 hours smote a doe to its death with one blow. Within another day—the Waynesboro branch train, when approaching the Fayetteville zone, hit a 3-antlered stag, breaking both its legs, and it had to be killed.

Frank Litnaw, York, and Richard Altland, Hanover, members of Co. A, of York, now stationed at Fort Hancock, Cal., and who deserted and ran away from the company Oct. 6th, were arrested on Tuesday night at a party in the East End, York, and the arrests broke up the party. Another deserter from Co. K, William Lightner, of York, was also placed in jail. The military authorities were notified.

Peter Reider, of York, was run down and injured on Wednesday evening by an automobile carrying a party of Gettysburg soldiers while crossing the street to await a car at the Cliff House West York. The machine was driven by J. C. Fasnot, of Gettysburg. Mr. Reider is suffering from contusions and abrasions of his head and face. The driver of the machine, it is said, failed to see the pedestrian.

Mrs. Margaret Schaffner, wife of David Schaffner, of Andersonstown, York county, a bride of less than four months, died suddenly Friday morning, following a sickness of five days, suffering from diphtheria. She was 18 years old. Besides her husband she is survived by her father, Henry Hollinger, and several brothers and sisters.

Missing from home since Sunday morning, Joanno Mossbruger, 15-year-old daughter of Fred Mossbruger, York, returned to the parental domicile on Monday telling she eloped with Carl Lightner, a soldier, and married him in Baltimore.

It is about time for those girls who have been wearing furs all summer, to get out extra low cut waists.

The Best Sea Story of the War That Has Been Written

THE INDIAN CHIEF HAS BEEN STRUCK BY LIGHTNING AND IS ALMOST A WRECK—HOLLIS MEETS THE OWNER AND LEARNS SHIP'S DESTINATION

Synopsis—Robert Hollis, who tells the story, is a guest on 'Girard Carrington's yacht, Esmeralda. It is supposed to be a "stag" party, and Hollis is surprised on discovering a woman, who evidently wishes to remain unknown aboard. She merely tells him her name is Vera. Carrington tells his guests of the coming war, and that he is engineering a copper pool. The yacht is sunk in a collision and Hollis saves McCann, Millionaire, and one of the party. Hollis and McCann rescue Vera and leave the ship in a small boat. McCann refuses to submit to the authority of Hollis, and the latter enforces obedience. The castaways are sighted by a ship, the Indian Chief, which takes them aboard.

"The lady was sent into the cabin, sir, and given a stateroom where she could fix herself up a bit," he answered soberly. "The other fellow had a heap of a lot to say, an' seemed to have some sorter grudge against you. I hadn't any time to listen to his yarn, so I naturally turned him over to the bosom, ter have that eye dressed. He must have got a peach o' a swipe, sir."

"I had to hit him—yes; but we can talk of that later. Where is he now?"

"In the galley, sir, where they're heating some water. After they get him fixed up, is he to go aft, or forward?"

"Aft, if you have room to spare; he is no sailor man, but a millionaire from New York; he has money to burn."

The fellow looked at me with his mouth wide open, his glistening eyes almost laughable.

"The devil you say, sir; he don't look the part to my notion. He don't look the part to my notion."

"Yes, the Esmeralda, a steam yacht, owned by Gerald Carrington of New York. We were run down about a hundred miles east of Montauk by a big liner, which must have been out of her course. She cut us square in two, but, excepting us three, all living on board got away in the boats. By accident we were left, and escaped later in the dinghy."

"What became of the liner?"

"She picked up the boats, and, thinking they had all the survivors, went on. She was a mail boat, likely. The yacht went down five minutes after we left her; we've been afloat ever since. Now, Mr. Masters, that's our story in brief. What's the trouble here?"

"I'll tell yer enough to make it clear, sir," he said slowly, "although there is others on board who can explain more in detail. You're a seaman—or was once—so you'll see easily the sorter fix we're in. I'm the only officer left on the hooker, an' I couldn't navigate a ship if you'd give it to me. I'm only the f'f' engineer, an' my assistant is in the f'f' castle with a broken leg. You see that rattle for-ward, sir? Well, it was lightning did that. Two bolts, so the crew says, fer I was down below, an' never knew what happened till the electrics all went out. Then I shut off steam, and clumb out on deck. Lord, but it was a black night, raining cats and dogs, but no wind to speak of. It was the rain what saved us, for fire started yonder—yer can see where it burned—but it died out of itself. When morning come we saw what we was up against; it looked a lot like them worse than that it does now. They bolts of lightning had knocked the foremast into smithereens, killed the wheelman, and put the steering gear plumb out o' commission. Then the topmast an' spars just naturally wrecked the bridge, and charthouse, an' the whole muss caught fire. The second officer was in the wheelhouse, sir, an' never knew what hit him, an' both the captain an' the first officer was a standin' together on the bridge. The top mast crushed the life out of 'em. There was six sailormen hurt the same way, an' four of 'em died. It was the darndest mess I ever saw at sea, sir."

"Bad enough, surely; when did this happen?"

"Night afore last; we've cleaned up a bit since, but the crew won't work much under me an' we're short-handed. I rigged up this wheel, aft, so as to keep an engine going, and hung on, waiting for something to turn up. There wasn't nothing else I could do."

"That's cargo, sir; full to the hatches. The ship's dry as a bone; have had the well sounded every three hours."

"And what about the crew?"

"Just so, sir; a crimp brought them aboard drunk, an' we were not at sea long enough for the mates to whip them into shape when this thing happened. I'm no deck officer, Mr. Hollis, and they don't take orders from me very well. I call 'em a d—d hard lot."

I made no comment, endeavoring to turn all these facts over in my mind, and reach some decision. It was evident enough what was wanted, and how I could best serve; but would they be satisfied with the offer which I felt willing to make? It was far from my desire to assume command of the Indian Chief, and guide her destinies on a long outward voyage, to whatever port her cargo had been consigned. What that port was made slight difference, for my whole desire was to return as quickly as possible to New York. I would, however, assume temporary command, and consent to navigate the vessel to the nearest American port, where a competent skipper might be procured, and a new crew obtained. The Indian Chief possessed no wireless outfit, and whatever I did must be on my own judgment. These considerations flashed swiftly through my mind, and I attained decision before Masters again spoke. I would navigate the boat to the nearest port on the American coast, notify the owners, and then leave them to do as they pleased with vessel and crew. I cared nothing for the salvage; the presence of the disabled steamer, in these waters had saved our lives, which was reward enough surely. All I cared for was to get myself and the young lady safe ashore. My thought was interrupted by the sound of Masters' voice.

"It sorter seemed to me, Mr. Hollis," he was saying, "that maybe it would be best for me to explain these things before you went into the cabin. You'll naturally want to know just the condition before you decide what to do."

"I have decided, Masters," I answered briefly. "There is only one thing I can do legally, and that is to navigate the Indian Chief to the nearest American port, and surrender her to her owners. As a licensed captain of steam I have authority to assume command to this extent, but no more."

"I reckoned you would look at it that way, sir. I'm no sea lawyer, but I sorter figured it out about as you do. But that ain't the situation exactly."

"What isn't?"

"Why, this owner business, sir. You see, the owner of the Indian Chief, an' every pound o' cargo below hatches, is on board here."

"The owner is on board?"

"That's the gospel truth; that's why I took the trouble to keep you here, and tell you what I have, before you went down and met him, sir. It gives you a chance to think out your best course."

"But if the man is aboard, why did he not appear on deck to give us welcome? Surely our arrival must have been of interest?"

"Likely as not he hasn't even heard yet that you are aboard. You see, his cabin is on the starboard side astern, and he would see nothing from them ports. Besides, Mr. Hollis, he is lame, and it is a bit hard for him to get around on a ship without help. What do you say, sir? Shall we go down now, an' talk it over below?"

"The sooner the better," I said, with a glance over the port rail. "The fog is thickening out yonder, and we may have a rough night. The steamer would ride a heavy sea better with some more of that rattle overboard."

CHAPTER IX.

Contraband of War.

The knowledge that the owner was actually on board changed the entire situation. I would have to argue it out with him undoubtedly, for quite naturally he would object to any return to an American port. Well, I might be in for a disagreeable interview, but I had made up my mind, and it was not to be changed by any bluster or offer of high wages.

"Come on, Masters," I said brusquely. "Let's get this over with."

The after cabin extended from rail to rail, the door opening directly from the main deck. There were two cabins astern, occupying apparently the full width of the vessel, and the engineer rapped with his knuckles on the panel of the nearest door. There was no response, but a second attempt resulted in a voice pleading us enter.

It was a pleasant enough interior, lighted by two ports, but showing no attempt at decoration. A man arose from one of the chairs and faced us, the light from the stern port shining full upon him. He was tall, delicate looking, his features bearing marks of pain, yet certainly not over thirty years of age. He was not at all like what I had expected to see, and I faced him in surprise. He had taken a step toward us, hesitating slightly, but at sight of a stranger paused.

"No, sir," and the engineer stood, hat in hand, awkwardly shifting his weight. "We have picked up some castaways. This man here is Captain Hollis, late of the Atlas line."

"Indeed," he held out his hand to me, his eyes looking directly into mine. "I regret your misfortune, sir, but your coming is a godsend to us. Your ship was wrecked?"

"Sunk in collision," I answered. "But it was not my ship; I have not been to sea for several years in any position of command. On this occasion I was a guest on board a steam yacht belonging to Gerald Carrington of New York. The name of the vessel was the Esmeralda. I need not relate the details just at present, but three of us have been picked up by this ship."

"Three—all passengers?"

"Yes—one was a woman."

"Yet, if I understand Masters aright, you have been in the merchant service?"

"In every capacity; when I retired, I was captain of the freighter Vulcan."

He stood silent a moment, thoughtfully considering me, and I could not determine whether or not he was altogether pleased. Finally, having apparently reached some decision, his gaze shifted to the face of the burly engineer.

"I will talk with Captain Hollis," he said quietly, "and perhaps you had better return on deck, Masters, and keep an eye out; the fog thickens, and we are in the track of ships."

"Very well, sir."

As the door closed behind the engineer's bulky figure, the owner motioned me to a chair, while he took another himself.

"I hardly know how best to approach my subject," he said soberly. "If you were merely a shipwrecked merchant captain, I could make you a rather attractive offer; but, as you have retired from the sea, that would probably prove no special inducement."

"The pay, you mean? Well, hardly; I have no desire for a berth."

"So I supposed, or else you would scarcely have been one of Carrington's guests for a yachting cruise. I presume Masters told you the fix we are in?"

"Yes, as strange an accident as I ever heard of at sea. You have got to have a navigator, and I am perfectly willing to serve you so far as I can. I owe you this for picking us up from an open boat. With your permission, sir, and without mentioning pay, I will agree to take command of the Indian Chief, and sail her to the nearest American port, where you can procure officers, and, if necessary, a new crew."

He sat silent, one white hand crumpling a paper on the desk, his forehead creased, the lines of his face showing clearly. He appeared to answer me, and I took the trouble to keep you here, and tell you what I have, before you went down and met him, sir. It gives you a chance to think out your best course."

"I certainly appreciate your offer, Captain Hollis. It is a most liberal one, because, if I know anything of maritime law, you would be justly entitled to high compensation for thus accepting the adventure. But there is another on board this ship to be considered—a woman, whose comfort and wishes I cannot ignore."

"But she could be transhipped!"

"Which would at once reveal our whereabouts and probable course. Any vessel speaking us would make report as soon as it reached harbor. Our only safe method of procedure will be to keep far enough away from any passing vessel during daylight to escape recognition, and to run the main European routes by night. If we do as much as speak a ship, it will double our peril of capture; the wireless is our greatest enemy."

"Then what is it you propose doing?"

"Just this: I'll go out now and talk with the lady. I'll explain the whole situation to her fully, so that she will understand every detail."

"But is this fair to me?"

"Yes, perfectly fair. She is no weak-nerved creature to be awed by peril. She is a healthy, sensible girl, ready to do her part anywhere; her sympathies will all be with you. Anyway, I shall leave the affair entirely to her decision. I'll give you my answer in thirty minutes."

As I closed the door and stood outside in the main cabin, it suddenly occurred to me that I did not know the man's name. Masters had not mentioned it; I had not asked, nor did I manifest noticing the signature on the manifest.

The next installment tells of Vera's old friendship for Robert Baccam, the steamer's owner, and of the new danger arising from the old and deadly enmity existing between Dascom and McCann.

Clipping With a Pin.

When you lose your knife or do not have a pair of scissors at hand for cutting the paper a common pin or needle of any kind serves the purpose admirably, says Popular Science Monthly. If it is a single sheet from which the clipping is to be removed, lay the part on another paper, hold the pin slantwise so that the point will follow around the clipping, just as if tracing its outline.

Pass back over the scratch with the point in the lead and you will be surprised how smoothly the pin cuts the paper.

Tropical Rains.

Tropical rains are a relatively short duration, the reason of the small number of cyclonic storms in the tropics, and this duration is fairly uniform throughout the year.

The heaviest general rainfalls in Porto Rico are associated with West Indian hurricanes. The historic hurricane of August 8, 1899, precipitated rainfall equivalent to 1,113 tons per acre.

The KITCHEN CABINET

If there is any one point which in six thousand years of thinking about right or wrong, wise and good men have agreed upon, or successfully by experience discovered, it is that God dislikes idle and cruel people more than any others.—Ruskin.

PALATABLE COLD THINGS.

These are always favorites at all times under most circumstances and conditions.

Oatmeal Beverage.—This is a drink which is especially cooling, and a great favorite on the farm. Take a quarter of a pound of oatmeal, one cupful of sugar, and the strained juice of two lemons. Add a half cupful of boiling water to the oatmeal, mix the other ingredients and pour into a gallon of boiling water, stir well, put through a sieve and chill before serving.

Apple Water.—Core and cut four apples in small pieces, then put them into a pitcher, adding the lemon rind from a small lemon, a quarter of a cupful of sugar and four cupfuls of water, boiling hot; cover the pitcher and let it stand aside to cool.

A tablespoonful of ginger mixed with three of sugar stirred into a pint of cold water makes a fine drink.

Boston Cream.—Take three quarts of boiling water, one and a half pounds of sugar, two teaspoonfuls of lemon extract, two ounces of tartaric acid and the whites of two eggs. Beat the water and allow it to get cold, then stir in the other ingredients, beating the whites until stiff. Mix well and pour into bottles and keep in the ice-chest. When serving, put a pinch of soda in a glass and half fill the tumbler with ice, pour in enough of the cream to fill the glass and drink immediately.

Chocolate Sirup.—Take three squares of chocolate, one ounce of cocoa, one and a half pounds of sugar and a pint of water, one and a half teaspoonfuls of vanilla. Boil the cocoa in a double boiler ten minutes with a half-cupful of water; grate the chocolate and mix it with one third of its measure in sugar; add this to the boiling cocoa, stirring constantly, then add the remainder of the sugar and boil for ten minutes. Remove from the fire, strain, cool and add the vanilla. This will keep in the ice-chest until it is used. A tablespoonful of the sirup added to cold milk or ice-water topped with a marshmallow or whipped cream makes a most inviting drink.

It is great who is what he is from nature, and who never fails of others.—Emerson.

LOW-COST DISHES.

While the corn season lasts there are many most appetizing dishes which may be made from it or in combination with other foods.

Fried Corn. Cook bacon for the fatty, then into the hot bacon fat turn in corn cut from half a dozen ears, stir and mix well, then add a half-cupful of water, cover and cook slowly until tender. Season with pepper and more salt if needed.

Corn and Tomatoes.—Cut the corn from the cob and stew until nearly dry, add a third as much stewed tomatoes as corn, and season, using a teaspoonful of vinegar, a teaspoonful of butter and sugar, and salt and pepper to taste, to one pint of tomatoes. Serve hot. This is a favorite combination with corn cobs to put up in cans for winter.

Economical Cake.—Sift together one cupful of flour, two-thirds of a cupful of sugar, one teaspoonful of baking powder and a little salt. In a half pint measuring cup, put a tablespoonful of melted butter, drop in one egg, and fill the cup with milk. Stir into the dry ingredients and beat rapidly two or three minutes. Flavor as desired. Bake in a loaf.

When baking cake, fruit juice may be used in place of milk, which will result in a moist, finely flavored cake.

Corn for the table. If cooked over steam is much better flavored than that allowed to cook in water.

Add peanut butter when cooking fried potatoes, using a tablespoonful to the fat in the pan. It adds variety, and where the flavor is liked makes an appetizing dish.

Purée of Summer Squash.—Shoe three onions and cover with two quarts of cold water; when boiling, add a large summer squash cut in thin slices. Let simmer slowly for two hours, then rub through a sieve. Mix one tablespoonful of ground rice or corn starch with a cupful of milk or tablespoonful of butter and seasonings; cook until smooth and add to the soup. Serve hot.

Greatest Joy in Life.

Life would not be worth the living, joy the pain and struggle, were it not for joy, the joy of loving and being loved.—F. L. Ogden.

A wire frame to hold a cup securely on the edge of a plate has been invented for use where refreshments are served informally.

Camphor is now grown in Florida and Texas, the trees forming attractive hedges.

It is great who is what he is from nature, and who never fails of others.—Emerson.

Corn and Tomatoes.—Cut the corn from the cob and stew until nearly dry, add a third as much stewed tomatoes as corn, and season, using a teaspoonful of vinegar, a teaspoonful of butter and sugar, and salt and pepper to taste, to one pint of tomatoes. Serve hot. This is a favorite combination with corn cobs to put up in cans for winter.

Economical Cake.—Sift together one cupful of flour, two-thirds of a cupful of sugar, one teaspoonful of baking powder and a little salt. In a half pint measuring cup, put a tablespoonful of melted butter, drop in one egg, and fill the cup with milk. Stir into the dry ingredients and beat rapidly two or three minutes. Flavor as desired. Bake in a loaf.

When baking cake, fruit juice may be used in place of milk, which will result in a moist, finely flavored cake.

Corn for the table. If cooked over steam is much better flavored than that allowed to cook in water.

Add peanut butter when cooking fried potatoes, using a tablespoonful to the fat in the pan. It adds variety, and where the flavor is liked makes an appetizing dish.

Purée of Summer Squash.—Shoe three onions and cover with two quarts of cold water; when boiling, add a large summer squash cut in thin slices. Let simmer slowly for two hours, then rub through a sieve. Mix one tablespoonful of ground rice or corn starch with a cupful of milk or tablespoonful of butter and seasonings; cook until smooth and add to the soup. Serve hot.

Greatest Joy in Life.

Life would not be worth the living, joy the pain and struggle, were it not for joy, the joy of loving and being loved.—F. L. Ogden.

A wire frame to hold a cup securely on the edge of a plate has been invented for use where refreshments are served informally.

LOW-COST DISHES.

While the corn season lasts there are many most appetizing dishes which may be made from it or in combination with other foods.

Fried Corn. Cook bacon for the fatty, then into the hot bacon fat turn in corn cut from half a dozen ears, stir and mix well, then add a half-cupful of water, cover and cook slowly until tender. Season with pepper and more salt if needed.

Corn and Tomatoes.—Cut the corn from the cob and stew until nearly dry, add a third as much stewed tomatoes as corn, and season, using a teaspoonful of vinegar, a teaspoonful of butter and sugar, and salt and pepper to taste, to one pint of tomatoes. Serve hot. This is a favorite combination with corn cobs to put up in cans for winter.

Enjoys "Item" 'Over There'.

Allen H. Diehl, with an Engineer's regiment in France, recently wrote in part to his parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Diehl of Lincoln Way, West: "I have not received any mail from you since we left the states. 'Yesterday (September 4th) I received the 12th and 29th July copies of the 'Item'—I will bet it's the farthest the 'Item' has ever traveled. The company I am in has been on the job for about a month and so far I have liked the work I have to do. The country we are in at present is beautiful—very much like California. I have not been sick yet and we have good quarters and eat so far, that is I mean for the army in foreign service. The only thing I am kicking about is that we would like to get some American tobacco."

Plot At York.

According to Grier Hersh, President of the York National Bank, a German propaganda is being carried on in York county to hinder the success of the Liberty Loan.

"Germany's agents seem to have a definite plan of action here," declared Mr. Hersh. "There is an attempt to intimidate banks into not subscribing to bonds through threatened withdrawal of deposits."

"There is also a persistent rumor circulated that the United States government will seize the money of depositors of national banks. There is a constant effort to spread the false information that the people are asked to give this money to the government."

Three persons were injured Sunday evening, when an automobile owned and driven by Melvin Keller turned turtle while descending a steep incline on the state highway at a point between Dover and Mt. Royal. Losing control of the machine the car ran into a gutter at the side of the road, where it upset. The injured occupants of the car are Melvin Keller and his 5 year old son, and Mrs. Clarence Stough, none seriously, however. The other passengers were Mrs. Melvin Keller, John Stough and Clarence Grover, all residents of Dover township.

The jury in the case of Daniel Wingert of Chambersburg against the P. & R. R. for damages for the death of his wife and for personal injuries and destruction of his automobile, returned verdicts in favor of Wingert. For the death of his wife the jury gave $2,800 and for injuries to himself and damage to the auto $1,000. The accident happened Jan. 29, 1916, when a train hit the Wingert auto that had stalled on the track. In court Friday a jury awarded Cyrus Carbaugh, also of Chambersburg, $2500 for the death of his wife. She was killed in the same accident.

After Emanuel Smith farm implement dealer, York, left a roll of wire fencing, containing 60 perches, at Martin's lane, Tuslay, so that J. S. Martin, farmer on the B. C. fair farm, at Thomsville, could get it the next morning, an unknown person "let Martin to it." When Martin went for the roll of wire, which weighed about 550 pounds, he found nothing there but tracks in the road, apparently left by the thief, who used an automobile to haul it away.

The Mont Alto and Caledonia sections seem to be trying all new and novel methods of deer depopulation. Caledonia station killed a doe on the Lincoln Highway with an automobile the other night. Then an electric car within 24 hours smote a doe to its death with one blow. Within another day—the Waynesboro branch train, when approaching the Fayetteville zone, hit a 3-antlered stag, breaking both forelegs, and it had to be killed.

Frank Litchaw, York, and Richard Aldland Hanover, members of Co. A, of York, now stationed at Fort Hancock, Ga., and who deserted and ran away from the company Oct. 6th, were arrested on Tuesday night at a party in the East End, York, and the arrests broke up the party. Another deserter from Co. K, William Lightner, of York, was also placed in jail. The military authorities were notified.

Peter Reider, of York, was run down and injured on Wednesday evening by an automobile carrying a party of Gettysburg soldiers while crossing the street to await a car at the Cliff House, West York. The machine was driven by J. C. Fasot, of Gettysburg. Mr. Reider is suffering from contusions and abrasions of his head and face. The driver of the machine, it is said, failed to see the pedestrian.

Mrs. Margaret Schaffner, wife of David Schaffner, of Andertown, York county, a bride of less than four months, died suddenly Friday morning, following a sickness of five days, suffering from diphtheria. She was 18 years old. Besides her husband she is survived by her father, Henry Hollinger, and several brothers and sisters.

Missing from home since Sunday morning, Joanna Mosbrugger, 15-year-old daughter of Fred Mosbrugger, York, returned to the parental domicile on Monday telling she eloped with Carl Lightner, a soldier, and married him in Baltimore.

It is about time for those girls who have been wearing furs all summer, to get out extra low cut waists.

CHARLES E. GOLDSBOROUGH, Thompson, Auct. Deatrick, Clerk.

William Wolf, York, says he was brutally assaulted and robbed of a sum of about $60 early last Tuesday evening on one of Frederick's main thoroughfares, as he was returning to the fair grounds, where he and a man named Myers, also of York, were conducting a lunch stand during the fair. Wolf's assailants, he says, were two white men, who were in company with two negro women.

Thieves on Tuesday night entered the barn on the farm of Elmer E. Wilt, near Farmers, and stole 24 bushels of wheat which had been bagged by the farmer during the day for shipment.
